NOS. 2416 to 2441 JULY—DECEMBER, 1914, INCLUSIVE. VOL. XCIV.

PREFACE.

The following is the semi-annual Index of Volume XCIV of the Record and Guide, containing complete lists of the Auction sales, Conveyances, Leases, Mortgages and Buildings Projected in Manhattan and Bronx during the last six months of 1914. Those wishing to keep a file of past six months for permanent reference should see that all the numbers are complete and have them bound. Cost of binding, $3.50 per volume. A suitable temporary binder, holding one volume, can be obtained at the office, 115 to 119 West 40th Street; price, one dollar.

The Record and Guide is now published in two sections; Section One containing auction sales and projected buildings, Section Two containing conveyances, mortgages and leases.

The folios on both sections begin with page one, continuing consecutively up to the end of the volume.

In order that there may be no confusion all auction sales folios are preceded by an asterisk (*) and all projected buildings folios are preceded by a dagger (†). These marks indicate that these folios will be found in Section One, all folios not so marked will be found in Section Two.

THE KEY.

Auction Sales.

The * before any folio indicates an auction sale, which will be found in Section One.

Conveyances.

are distinguished by numbers without having signs attached thereto. In many instances there will be found streets, etc., indexed under pages which, on being examined, show at once that they are not in their proper order according to our customary alphabetical and numerical arrangement. A further examination will disclose the fact that while the properties appear more prominently under the other street descriptions, they nevertheless extend to the streets, etc., indicated by the Index, and having a frontage on same have been included in the paging, and it will necessitate a somewhat more thorough search than usual to locate it. The Leases, Mortgages, Auction Sales and Projected Buildings are indexed in a similar manner to the plan followed with the Conveyances.

Leases.

The figures in parenthesis denote that the transaction on the page given is Leasehold, an assignment of lease or a lease running for a short or long term of years. This explanation is made so that subscribers searching for transfers in fee can at once distinguish between the former and the latter without referring to the pages mentioned.

Mortgages.

Figures preceded by capital letters are mortgages, said capital letter indicating the first letter of the name of the mortgagor.

All the mortgages are indexed against the street or avenue in which the property is located, and memoranda added to enable searchers to find the particulars in "The Record and Guide." See "Example."

The streets and avenues are so subdivided that very few references are necessary. All readers of "The Record and Guide" are aware that the mortgages appear weekly in alphabetical and numerical order. This publication of an index against property completes the information which those interested may require.

Projected Buildings.

The † before any folio indicates a Projected Building, which will be found in Section One.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

THE GOVERNOR PROMISES RELIEF FOR OWNERS

The Next Legislature Will Amend the State Fire Prevention and Factory Laws—Kings County Grand Jury Brings in Presentment Against Inspection Evils.

IT has just developed that Governor Glynn has for some time been quietly weighing the whole situation as regards the labor laws in their relation to expensive structural changes to buildings throughout this State, and has come to the conclusion that in many particulars these laws are unnecessarily severe. The Governor's attention was turned to this matter by complaints which for some months have been pouring into his office.

These complaints have come from manufacturers and real estate owners all over New York State, but especially from New York City, where most of the orders for structural changes have been issued and where the laws have pressed most heavily.

In the position which he takes on this matter, in a statement given out at Albany, the Governor vindicates the attitude taken by the Real Estate Board of New York in its efforts for reasonable amendments to the labor law. He says:

"We have already placed New York far in advance of many other States of the Union in the line of progressive legislation to meet the justified demands of the toilers of our State. The State Factory Investigating Commission heard the cry of the mass of men and women toilers and was responsible for the enactment of remedial measures that guarantee to the factory employees the right to live as well as the license to work. As a result of the new laws secured by the Factory Commission, many factory buildings were practically remodelled so that now their occupants are given healthful surroundings. The result has been the manufacturers get better work out of their employees, because they are healthy and cheerful, and the cemeteries and tuberculosis sanitariums are the only losers."

Has Gone Too Far.

The Governor makes it plain that there should be no laxity in the care of the factory employees throughout the State. On the other hand, he thinks the pendulum has swung too far in the other direction. He says:

"I do not believe in legislation so radical that it means an attack on the valuation of real estate or driving out of our State manufacturing concerns or other large business enterprises. Real estate owners tell me that strict compliance with some of our laws would mean reconstruction of their buildings; while others insist there is such a general mix-up of orders from State and local authorities in New York City, that it is often a question as to whether an order given by a local authority today will not be rescinded by State authority tomorrow. It has also been stated that inspectors from the Department of Labor in New York, and attaches of the Fire Prevention Bureau and the Industrial Board, are seemingly pulling against one another in their work of building supervision and inspection, to the end that the real estate owners and the manufacturers are often in serious doubt as to just where they are at."

The Governor commends the work of the State Factory Investigating Commission and especially its energy in arranging hearings in New York and in other large cities of the State in order to bring out, as it is doing, facts and suggestions on the workings of the law. The Governor adds:

"That these hearings will be fruitful of excellent results is beyond question, and I feel that enough information will be gathered to make certain a solution of this great industrial problem, which will be as fair to the real estate owner and manufacturer as we are so zealously insisting it should be for the men and women workers of the State."

Governor Glynn, seeing the injury that is being done to the majority of the people of the State, directly or indirectly, through ill-advised fire-prevention and factory laws, frankly avows it and virtually promises to have amendments made by the next Legislature. The Kings County Grand Jury has set the courts in motion against those responsible for continuing the public annoyance and official extravagance resulting from the over-inspection of buildings.

Comment by President McGuire.

Commenting on this statement by Governor Glynn, Laurence M. D. McGuire, President of the Real Estate Board of New York said:

"The conclusion reached by the Governor is the inevitable conclusion bound to be reached by everyone who gives serious consideration to the way the drastic features of the law have been working in New York and throughout the State.

"The purpose of the Labor Law was to make life safe and work more pleasant for factory operatives. This was a laudable purpose and every humane person will uphold it. But zeal has carried some of us too far. This whole thing must be brought down to a practical plane. We must have safety without confiscation; fithout conflict of authority; without needless expense that in many cases has reached practically the point of confiscation.

"We must have, as I infer from the Governor's language he wishes us to have, a rational law rationally administered. Any other kind will ultimately be as harmful to workers and operatives as it will be to owners."

Hearings by the Industrial Board.

Real estate owners generally, and particularly owners of factory buildings, will be interested in several public hearings to be held next week by the Industrial Board at its offices, 381 Fourth avenue.

The first subject to be taken up by the Industrial Board will be the proposed rules and regulations relating to the construction, guarding, equipment, maintenance and operation of elevators and hoistways. This hearing will begin at 10 a. m., Tuesday, July 7th.

The hearing on Wednesday will begin at the same hour and will be on the proposed rules defining fireproof and fire-resisting materials and describing certain specifications relating to construction. These matters are all to be taken up in the report of the Industrial Board's Committee on Fire Hazards. On this committee the Real Estate Board of New York was represented by Alfred R. Kirkus and later by George W. Olvany.

On July 7 and 8 at 3 p. m. will be held public hearings on three propositions of the Industrial Board. The first is for the amendment of what is known as Regulation 2, which makes certain severe requirements for the enclosure of stairways.

Proposition 2 is to amend the Board's Regulation 3 so as to substitute the words "fire resisting" for the word "incombustible" applying to stairway enclosures in factory buildings in which articles of a combustible nature are kept.

Proposition 3 is a proposed new rule which will correct a provision of the law that has given a great deal of trouble to owners of factory buildings. The proposed new rule reads as follows:

"When, in addition to the required exits of any factory or factory building, there exist one or more outside fire-escapes not constructed in accordance with the provisions of the Labor Law relating to fire escapes, such fire escapes may be retained without being changed to conform to such provisions, if steps are taken, satisfactory to the Commissioner of Labor, to prevent their use as a means of exit."

Grand Jury Presentment.

The courts are taking cognizance of the unfair burdens that have been put upon property owners. Among the indictments handed up this week by the Grand Jury of Kings County was a presentment to the court in which it deplored the "foolish, ridiculous and useless system" of building inspection now in vogue in the Greater City and in the Borough of Brooklyn in particular, and urged the assembling of the authority of inspection in one or two departments instead of eight, as at present.

Judge Fawcett, in accepting the presentment, congratulated the members of the jury on its timeliness, as the matter has been taken up by many civic bodies and is now receiving the attention of the authorities at Albany.

The presentment reads:

"The Grand Jury of the County of Kings for June, 1914, deems it its duty to protest against the great burdens that are put upon the real estate owners of the County of Kings by the multiplicity of inspections of the various departments of the city, and of the foolish, ridiculous, useless system that goes with it, which menaces the progress of the Greater City and the Borough of Brooklyn in particular.

"There is no question about this fact that we are over inspected. Over 1,000 inspectors, at an expense of over $1,500,000, are continually harassing the unfortunate property owners and each one literally falling over the other in their eagerness to find fault and order changes in buildings already built or in construction. The result is that many property owners are selling their property for almost anything they can get and many factories and manufacturing plants are being removed from the city to other localities.

"The cry of the taxpayers for relief is so great that we, the Grand Jury, desire to recommend the assembling of the authority of inspection in one or two departments, instead of eight, as at present.

"We recommend that the Tenement House Department, in particular, be consolidated with the Building Department.

"We believe that departments which conflict with each other should be consolidated.

"We believe, for the economy of the taxpayers, that not more than two departments should have authority over buildings of the city."

NEW ELEVATOR REGULATIONS OUT

Framed by State Industrial Board to Cover Construction and Maintenance—A License Ordinance Pending in the Board of Aldermen.

THE subject of elevator construction and operation has come to the fore this week. Tentative rules and regulations were promulgated by the Industrial Board of the State Labor Department, with the announcement of a public hearing to be held at 381 Fourth avenue on July 7 at 10 a. m. A new elevator ordinance, providing for the licensing of elevator operators is also pending in the Board of Aldermen, before the Committee on General Welfare, which is to give a public hearing on the measure.

The regulations of the Industrial Board amount to an entire new code, and give the Commissioner of Labor a large degree of authority where the local Bureaus of Buildings have had authority heretofore. The new rules virtually supersede whatever is inconsistent therewith in the carefully prepared elevator regulations of the city building department. The new ordinance requiring a license also gives the Commissioner of Licenses certain authority over the operation of elevators. The general effect, it is feared, will be to still further complicate the inspection of buildings.

Supt. Miller on the Licensing Feature.

Taking up first the proposed city ordinance requiring elevator runners to take out a license, it is noted that the license must be obtained from the Commssioner of Licenses and be renewed annually upon payment of a fee of two dollars. Penalties are provided for operating an elevator without a license.

Asked for his opinion of the proposed ordinance, the editor of the new Building Code, Rudolph P. Miller, Esq., remarked upon the severity of the rule.

"It would mean," he said, "that all the elevators in private residences would have to have licensed operators, which I don't think is the intention of the proposer of this ordinance. There is a type of elevator in use known as the push-button elevator, which is expressly designed to avoid an operator. The elevator is automatic in its operation and movements, and as it is being installed under the present carefully drawn rules of the Bureau of Buildings is one of the safest forms of elevators in use. Unless some exception were made of certain elevators, this push-button elevator would be driven out of business entirely, much to the disadvantage, I think, of the general public.

"I am generally in sympathy with the purpose of this ordinance, as it is drawn, placing the liability for the employment of unlicensed operators on the owner, but should not perhaps the lessee or tenant be held liable in many cases, as the owner when letting his building for a long term of years loses control of the operation of the elevators and should not be held liable in that case.

Overlapping Jurisdictions.

"Another thing that should be carefully considered," said Mr. Miller, "is the fact that the different bureaus of building now have control over the installation and operation of elevators, and they should for this reason have some authority over the elevator operators. At the present time the bureau prescribes, as required by the building code, certain qualifications for elevator operators, and where they are found to be violated steps are taken to have the operator removed.

"While I appreciate the difficulty of prescribing in the ordinance that the bureaus of buildings shall conduct the examination for the license, as there are five separate bureaus of buildings, I do think this could be possibly taken care of by inserting a provision under which the Commissioner of Licenses must take action toward revoking an elevator operator's license if a report is made to him by any of the Superintendents of Buildings to the effect that such operator is not competent or has failed to observe the requirements of the elevator regulations, or has been guilty of carelessness or neglect. Provision should, of course, be made that such an operator can have a hearing upon five or ten days' notice.

As to Qualifications.

"If the Commissioner of Licenses is to conduct the examination of applicants for elevator operators' licenses, it seems to me that the ordinance ought to provide either directly for certain qualifications for the operators or should authorize and direct the Commissioner of Licenses to publish rules prescribing the necessary qualifications for elevator operators.

"In considering this ordinance it would be well to remember that there are in the Borough of Manhattan alone over ten thousand passenger elevators at the present time. I imagine that in the other four boroughs together you would find about five thousand. I am not posted on this. It must also be remembered that the average number of operators to each elevator is probably about two. It would mean that the Commissioner of Licenses would have to undertake at once to examine and qualify thirty thousand operators in the City of New York. I notice that the ordinance is to take effect immediately. A little consideration would show that it will take considerable time to examine thirty thousand persons and issue licenses to them."

The New Rules.

The new rules and regulations of the State Industrial Board fill ten pages of a pamphlet. The existing law (section 79-i) provides that all elevator shafts shall be protected on all sides at each floor by substantial vertical enclosures. The proposed new regulations require that all hoistway enclosures shall not be less than six feet high. The grillework enclosures of shafts and cars shall contain no space between any two bars or members larger than one and one-half inch; where plain straight bars are used the space shall not exceed one inch.

Passenger elevators must have a lifting capacity of not less than 75 pounds for each square foot of floor area. In the top of every door there must be a trapdoor to afford egress for passengers. Where there are two cars in the same shaft there may be means of egress in case of emergency in the side of each car. Car doors must be kept closed when the car is in motion. No lock will be required on the principal car door, but other gates or doors in the car must have latches or locks to prevent their being used except in an emergency.

Cars must be lighted when in service. All passenger cars are to have safety jaws of a type approved by the Commissioner of Labor that will grip the guard rails and hold the car whenever the safeties are released by the speed governor. All elevators must be equipped with a speed governor whose action will trip and release the safeties whenever a car attains a downward speed of two hundred feet a minute, or forty per cent over the normal speed. Car safeties will not be required on plunger elevators, nor for sidewalk elevators which travel less than twenty feet.

Safety Devices.

Freight elevators in factories where more than one hundred people are employed on one floor, in order to be available in case of emergency, shall be capable of safely lowering a live load of fifty pounds per square foot of its platform area. All power driven elevators hereafter installed shall have no less than two hoist ropes and two ropes attached to each counterweight. All elevators must have devices to automatically bring the car to rest at both limits of travel. Weekly inspection reports of the condition of the elevators in a building shall be made by a competent person on a form prescribed by the Commissioner of Labor and shall be kept on file for his examination.

Highway Improvements.

Because of the steady growth and structural improvement and consequent increase in vehicular traffic in the southern half of Nassau County, Long Island, the important highways in the township of Hempstead are being rebuilt to meet the traffic demands put upon them. Christian Hook road, in use since colonial days, is being newly macadamized from De Mott avenue to Long Beach road, thus making a smooth highway between the village of Hempstead and Long Beach. Bethpage turnpike, from Hempstead east to Farmingdale, is an important highway that has been rebuilt, as well as the main road through Floral Park. The road leading from Hempstead across Long Island to Great Neck is also undergoing improvement.

Rapid progress is being made on the improvement of the main highway between Hempstead and Freeport and it will soon be reopened to traffic. The bitulithic improvement of the Merrick road through Rockville Centre and Lynbrook, now under way, will make more popular this already famous automobile highway that runs the length of the south side. Another road that is under contract to be much improved is the one running east from Long Beach through Foxhurst to a point on the Merrick road between Rockville Centre and Baldwin.

HOME RULE FOR BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

Architects' Representative Interrogates Building Superintendents Before State Commissioners to Show Overlapping Jurisdictions.

BY JOSEPH C. SCHAEFFLER

THE public hearings held by the State Factory Investigating Commission last week were productive of sufficient evidence of the fact that not only are the new fire prevention laws undesirable but also that their administration is wasteful and inefficient. The writer has made a specialty of designing manufacturing buildings for over sixteen years, during which time he has carried on operations in fourteen States, and no such chaotic condition of conflicting laws and regulations as now exists in the City of New York has ever before been experienced.

Many persons affected took the stand during these hearings and made statements which tended to show that these laws are unreasonable in many respects and that the duplication of inspections by the great number of inspectors now employed by the various city and State departments not only creates constant trouble but is a needless source of expense to the property owner and taxpayer as well.

But a bald statement of facts without the actual evidence necessary to firmly establish a case rarely, if ever, succeeds in convincing any legislative body that a law, once enacted, should be amended or repealed; and it was for the purpose of procuring this evidence that the writer, as chairman of the Committee on Factory Laws representing the New York Society of Architects, determined to request former Superintendent of Buildings Rudolph P. Miller to answer a series of thirty-nine questions and to insist that both the questions and the answers be entered upon the records of the hearings. Subsequently Supt. P. J. Carlin, of Brooklyn, and Supt. John W. Moore, of Queens, were induced to answer the same questions at a later hearing. Their answers were, in effect, the same as those received from Mr. Miller.

Some of the questions with the answers thereto received from Mr. Rudolph P. Miller, follow:

Q. Can any alterations to buildings be made before plans and applications have been filed with the Bureau of Buildings?

A. If they are structural alterations, it is unlawful to make them before plans and applications are filed with the Bureau of Buildings and approved by the bureau.

Factory Plans.

Q. Can any order from the Labor Bureau to make certain structural changes or alterations to a building be carried out before plans and applications have been filed at and approved by the Bureau of Buildings?

A. It is unlawful to make such changes within the City of New York without a permit from the Superintendent of Buildings.

Q. Would the Bureau of Buildings stop any structural alterations to a building as ordered by the Labor Bureau unless it first received approval?

A. This would depend upon the nature of the changes. If these changes were to relieve a serious unsafe condition, the Bureau of Buildings would probably not stop the work, though it would insist upon having plans and applications filed and approved. If the necessity for the changes were not immediate, it would probably stop the work.

Q. Do the Inspectors of the Bureau of Buildings inspect the premises while structural alterations are being made to conform with the requirements of the Labor Laws and the Industrial Board?

A. If the inspectors of the Bureau of Buildings are doing their duty, they will inspect alterations being made under orders from the Labor Department.

Fire Prevention Plans.

Q. In the case of orders from the Fire Prevention Bureau for structural changes, can they be made until plans and applications have been filed at and approved by the Bureau of Buildings?

A. Any structural changes to buildings made under orders of the Fire Prevention Bureau are subject to the same provisions of the Building Code as changes made under the Labor Law. In other words, a permit must be obtained from the Bureau of Buildings in any case of structural changes to buildings.

Q. In the case of a tenement building, must the plans first be approved by the Tenement House Department before the plans will be examined by the Bureau of Buildings?

A. In the case of tenement houses it is not necessary that the plans should be first approved by the Tenement House Dept. before they are examined by the Bureau of Buildings. By arrangement with the Tenement House Dept. the Bureau of Buildings, however, will not issue permits until the Tenement House Dept. has approved the plans.

Tenement Plans.

Q. Do you examine the approved tenement house plans to find out if they conform with the Building Code?

A. The Bureau of Buildings examines the tenement house plans only with reference to the requirements of the Building Code and such ordinances over which it has direct jurisdiction.

Q. Would your plan examiners be qualified to also examine the plans as to the matters of light and ventilation of tenements?

A. There is no reason why competent plan examiners would not be qualified to examine tenement houses or other buildings with respect to the provisions for light and ventilation.

Q. Also as to the sanitary requirements and privacy of the plans arrangement?

A. The plan examiners would also be competent to judge of sanitary requirements and privacy.

Q. Your inspectors inspect the alteration and erection of tenement buildings?

A. The inspectors of the Bureau of Buildings do inspect the construction and alteration of tenement buildings.

Q. Is this in addition to the inspection as made by the inspectors of the Tenement House Department?

A. The inspection made by the Inspectors of the Bureau of Buildings is, I believe, in addition to the inspection made by the inspectors of the Tenement House Department, though the latter, I believe, are confined to the determination of rooms, courts, and other requirements of the Tenement House Law, and the Tenement House Department does not inspect as to construction, so far as I know.

Availability of Inspectors.

Q. Have you found any difficulty in getting proper and qualified inspectors for your Department?

A. There is no real difficulty in getting competent inspectors for the Bureau of Buildings. Generally speaking the man furnished by the Civil Service Commission from the eligible lists are satisfactory, but in case they should not prove so the process of removal is a very simple one.

Q. In the case of factory buildings, does the Labor Bureau or Industrial Board first examine and approve the plans of proposed new or altered buildings before your bureau will examine same as to the Building Code?

A. In the case of factories I do not know whether the Labor Bureau examines and approves plans. The Bureau of Buildings will issue permits for factory buildings that conform with the requirements of the Building Code and other ordinances over which it has jurisdiction.

Q. Is this the same in the case of the Fire Prevention Bureau?

A. The Bureau of Buildings will approve any plans submitted to it provided they conform to the requirements of the Building Code and other ordinances over which it has jurisdiction. It is suggested, however, to applicants that it would be well to obtain the approval of the Fire Prevention Bureau as well as that of the Bureau of Buildings.

Q. Would your plan examiners be qualified to pass on such structural matters as exists, stairways, fire escapes and other items required by the Labor and Factory Laws?

A. The plan examiners of the Bureau of Buildings are qualified to pass on matters as to exits, stairways, fire escapes and other items required by the Labor and Factory Laws.

Theatre Inspection.

Q. In the case of theatres, moving picture houses, dance halls and other places of public amusement, does not your department examine and inspect the premises before a final approval certificate is given?

A. The Bureau of Buildings does inspect theatres, moving picture houses, dance halls and other places of public amusement, as well as other buildings, before they are completed.

Building Bureau Takes Precedence.

An analysis of the foregoing questions and answers will reveal the startling fact that, although several city and State departments may order a property owner to make alterations to buildings in the City of New York, it rests entirely with the Bureau of Buildings to determine whether the execution of such alterations, or the erection of new structures, will be permitted. In other words, the power of the Bureau of Buildings over building operations in the City of New York takes precedence over that of all other departments. And, furthermore, if any alteration ordered by the Department of Labor, Fire Prevention Bureau, or other department is not in conformity with the Building Code, such alteration may not be approved even in the case where the Bureau of Buildings has temporarily waived its prerogative to first having plans and applications filed for its approval as it may do where delay might result in serious loss of life or danger to the public.

Under such conditions how is a property owner to know how to act when delay may mean that he will incur the payment of a penalty, whereas, on the other hand, if he proceeds promptly to clear his building of the violation imposed by another department the Bureau of Buildings may not approve the work when completed.

It will also be noted that, although the inspectors of the Department of Labor, the Fire Prevention Bureau, Tenement House Department, and other departments having jurisdiction are sent to inspect buildings under construction in the City of New York, the inspectors of the Bureau of Buildings must also make practically all of these inspections for their department regardless of any other inspections.

These inspections cover not only structural work, but plumbing and sanitary work as well, and it is very clear that the rules and regulations for plumbing and drainage which are a part of the Building Code cover all phases of that part of the work found in the Labor Laws.

In the case of the plan examinations it is exactly the same as with the future inspection at the building. The Department of Labor insists upon examining all plans for building operations affecting factory buildings before they are submitted to the Bureau of Buildings, after which the latter goes over practically the same examination a second time before the final approval of both departments is obtained.

One Lone Plan Examiner.

There is at present only one plan examiner at the Department of Labor for all of Greater New York City, and he is at present about five weeks behind his schedule. This means that it will require five or six weeks for one department, and an additional two weeks for a second department, or about eight weeks in all before an owner can expect to be allowed to commence building operations after filing plans and applications under the present system. As the law reads, this filing of plans is not obligatory and the law further provides that the Department of Labor may call upon the Bureau of Buildings to make the plan examinations and report on same.

All of this tends to demonstrate that the Bureau of Buildings is the department of prime importance in connection with all structural and building operations carried on in the City of New York. If this be true, it appears to be logical that all other departments could report to the Bureau of Buildings and all orders subsequently issued from that office. This would most probably result in a much more economical system of inspection and it would certainly obviate issuing the conflicting orders which are too often the result of our present system. The Department of Labor should, in this case, relinquish its claim to supervise structural and plumbing details in the City of New York, and its duties and inspections would revert to the "Wellfare Work" for which it was primarily established.

Proposed Extension of Sixth Avenue.

On Thursday, July 9, a hearing will be held by the Committee on City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at City Hall at 3 p. m. on a petition for the extension of Sixth avenue southerly to Varick street (or Seventh avenue extended). The hearing set for June 26 was postponed. The extension of this avenue is a project that is closely related to the extension of Seventh avenue, which is now constructively progressing.

Two principal plans are under consideration. The first contemplates extending Sixth avenue into and through Carmine street to the junction of Carmine with the new Seventh avenue, which would be accomplished by widening Carmine street. There would be an elbow at the intersection of Sixth avenue and Carmine, and another at the intersection of Carmine with (new) Seventh avenue. Estimates of cost exceed one million dollars.

The other principal plan provides for cutting a straight course in a southerly direction through all the blocks now intervening between the present terminus of Sixth avenue to Varick street (Seventh avenue extended) coming out at the intersection of Broome street. The estimated cost runs into the millions. The Central Mercantile Association, an organization of West Side merchants, favor this route which would affect about two hundred real estate parcels. Many short and irregular blocks would be created by following this line.

—L. Tannebaum, Strauss & Company have issued an interesting pamphlet on Tax Efficiency Service. The realty concern has instituted a service for property owners which ascertains whether too much is being paid in taxes, and if so an adjustment is sought. No charge is made unless a reduction is obtained.

THE NEED OF GOOD GUTTERS

Important Feature of Road Building if Permanent Highway is Desired.

Following is an address to be delivered by T. Hugh Boorman, C. E., Highway Engineer, before the American Society of Engineers, Architects and Constructors, today at the Brighton Beach Casino:

"The most important difference I found in my research work on pavements in England in 1911, between construction there and in the United States, was the matter of the construction of gutters. I called the attention of one of our New York City engineers to the question immediately on my return to this Empire City and was advised to bring the matter up before the Committee on Specifications for Streets, and I now ask this national society to appoint a committee to confer with committees of other engineering bodies to suggest and recommend suitable clauses in paving contract specifications to obtain improvements in this important detail of construction. Highway engineers and road specialists have always agreed that the pre-requisite for a good pavement is proper drainage and a substantial foundation for the wearing surface, and it is now generally conceded that we must have a waterproof surfacing for even country roads.

Attention to Gutters.

"Given the fact that we are to roof our roads with waterproofing material, does it not follow that as on the building's roof, we must pay the greatest attention to the gutter and afford the best method possible for the carrying off of the rainwater to the outlets as efficiently and speedily as possible; does it not follow that we should apply similar precautions for road roofs?

"In the June 10, 1914, issue of 'Engineering & Contracting' (Chicago) is given the construction of concrete curb and gutter as adopted in Washington by the District Commissioners, whose work is now under the supervision of Captain Mark Brooke Engineer Corps, U. S. A. This construction calls for an 8-inch curb and 24-inch gutter. The brick gutter calls for a width of 18 inches, and specifications for such material provide that:

"In laying the gutter as soon as practicable after the concrete base has been laid, a dry mixture of sand and cement is spread to a thickness of not less than ½ inch as a bed for the paving blocks. The blocks are laid on edge, joints being broken so that each block has at least a 4-inch lap in every course. A plank is laid over several courses and a rammer used until the blocks reach a firm bed and present a uniform surface. After ramming, the gutter is grouted with a thin, easy-flowing grout of neat cement.

Remedy for Defects.

"On examination of the concrete gutter on the Chevy Chase experimental road sections in Washington and Maryland last month, I found several cracks, and venture the opinion that a prepared asphalt joint applied across the work every twenty-five feet would obviate this trouble at a very trifling expense. The work referred to, however, is in connection with broad avenues and streets, having no business traffic, and what I wish to impress on this conference is the fact that in our city streets particularly, our construction of gutters is generally poor, from the fact that stone blocks are used transversely, instead of longitudinally; in old work such as one finds on Governor's Island, N. Y. Harbor, it is seen that our army engineers laid granite blocks for the gutters parallel with the curb.

"In England the gutters are laid longitudinally generally in the case of stone or wood blocks, with the inner two lines depressed about half an inch, so forming a natural curved gutter.

"I have seen asphalt blocks on roads at Irvington, N. Y., so laid, and on the approaches to the North Philadelphia Depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, brick has been set in this way; on one side of the depot twelve courses of brick and on the other eight courses.

"I contend that in all cases where other than a monolithic sheet pavement is used the gutter should be paved with blocks, longitudinally laid, and with a natural curve."

To Study English Housing Work.

Under the auspices of the National Housing Association, a dozen American housing workers sailed yesterday to study what England has done to improve the living conditions of its wage-earners. In the party are Frank B. Williams, chairman of the City Planning Committee of the New York City Club; Miss Madge D. Headley, secretary of the Tenement House Committee of the New York Charity Organization Society; Miss Emily W. Dinwiddie, supervisor of the dwellings of Trinity Church Corporation; James Jenkins, Jr., Director of the Department for the Improvement of Social Conditions of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities; Robert E. Todd, Secretary of the Detroit Housing Association; Otto W. Davis, Assistant Secretary of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association; Maurice R. Scharff, Civil Engineer, Pittsburgh; T. J. Kelly, Superintendent of the Brighton Mills, Passaic; Miss Udetta D. Brown, Housing Investigator, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ihlder. Mr. Ihlder is Field Secretary of the National Housing Association.

On their arrival in England the party will be joined by several others, among them Lawrence Veiller, secretary of the National Housing Association; Edward M. Bassett, chairman of the Height of Buildings Commission; Howard Woodhead, of the University of Chicago, and Dr. E. Brown, of McGill University, Montreal.

During their first week in England the Americans will join a large international party, organized by the British Garden Cities and Town Planning Association, which is to visit the principal garden villages and suburbs, including Hempstead, Bournville, Liverpool Garden Suburb and Letchworth. After this International Tour is ended, the Americans will study many other phases of English housing, including the work done by Miss Octavia Hill and her associates in London, Manchester and other cities, the operation of the housing and town planning laws of 1890 and 1909, the building and management of dwellings at municipal expense in London and Liverpool and the contrasting policy pursued by Birmingham. The methods of the latter city have been very much like those of New York, setting definite minimum standards and requiring the owners to bring their property up to these standards.

The Park Avenue Improvement.

The committee on the city plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will hold a public hearing in room 16, City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, on Thursday, July 9, at 3.30 p. m., on the proposed modified plan for the change of grade at the intersection of 34th street and Fourth and Park avenues, Borough of Manhattan.

FUTURE OF EAST SEVENTY-SECOND STREET

Owners Hold Realty At High Prices, Having Faith In The Continuance of Section As A Place Of Residence

DESPITE the fact that the real estate market has been dull for the last couple of years, still there has been a steady absorption of properties in East 72d street, especially in that section between Fifth and Third avenues. Last week there was a decided impetus given to the movement when a syndicate, said to be composed of Philadelphia capitalists, purchased the Hotel St. Lorenz, a 7-story structure, occupying a plot 125x102.2, located at 125 to 133 East 72d street; also the Hotel Premier, a building of similar height, on plot 30x102.2, adjoining at the northwest corner of Lexington avenue. The St. Lorenz was erected about thirty years ago and was originally designed for an apartment house, but some years ago there was a demand for an apartment hotel in the section and the building was reconstructed. The corner property was improved for sanitarium purposes, there having been installed in the basement, a Turkish bath. The use to which this building had been put was changed and for several years it has been run as a hotel.

Seventy-second street is one of the important east and west thoroughfares in the Central Park zone. It has a width of 100 feet and faces entrances to the park, both at Fifth avenue and Central Park West, at this latter point the thoroughfare being under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks. It forms the connection link between Central Park and Riverside drive.

East 72d street differs from West 72d street inasmuch as the former section, at least as far east as Third avenue, is destined to be residential in character for many years to come, while on the other hand in some of the blocks in West 72d street, notably between Columbus avenue and Broadway, several fine dwellings have been converted into business establishments. In many instances apartments have been installed on the upper floors. Other buildings have been razed and upon their sites high class apartment houses erected. These have been easily tenanted, largely on account of the splendid transit facilities.

The north corner of Fifth avenue and 72d street, a vacant plot with an avenue frontage of 62.2 feet, has been under the ownership of James Stillman for several years, while the south corner of these thoroughfares, 25x125, is improved with a 5-story dwelling, the owners of record being Mary I. Burden and others.

Last January an interesting transfer was recorded affecting the 4-sty dwelling on lot 24x67, at 58 East 72d street. The property, which is assessed at $83,000, was given as a gift by Gorden K. Bell to Marian M. Bell. George Raymond, as executor, transferred, to Argall L. Hull, the 4-story dwelling, on lot 16.8x102.2, for a stated consideration of $25,000.

John J. Kavanagh, who is the dean of real estate brokers in this section, said this week: "Except in the Park avenue section the real estate market has been quiet. It is encouraging the way tenants have been found for the new apartments and the rentals have been well maintained. During the last couple of years a new city has sprung up in this district. There is but little question in my mind that East 72d street, at least west of Third avenue, will maintain its residential character, and even to the east I contemplate the erection of only a few business structures. In all probability the only innovation for several years to come would be the altering of a few dwellings for high class retail business.

"Seventy-second street is unlike some of the other main east and west arteries, notably 86th street, because the Central Park forms a barrier to all but pleasure vehicles. There is projected an express station in Lexington avenue and 72d street, which will materially increase the accessibility of the section. Whatever improvements are being made are substantial in character. The sale and improvement with a 12-story apartment house on the plot sold last year by the trustees of the Freundschaft Society, is a notable example. The future of this section of the city is assured for many years to come."

SCENES IN EAST 72D STREET.

LOOKING NORTH ON FIFTH AVENUE FROM 72D STREET.

Several interesting sales were closed during the current week in the Lenox Hill section. One deal in particular is interesting inasmuch as it will mean the altering of a stable into a studio building, designed for the use of architects. It is proposed to institute a school for young architects in the building.

Putting the cost of everything up to the ultimate consumer cannot continue indefinitely, for inevitably there comes an economic readjustment equivalent to retribution.

Now that the State seems willing to do its share, the city administration should also do something to reduce the annoyance and unreasonable expense to which real estate owners have been subjected. Don't discourage the ambition to own city real estate.

The Board of Estimate "moved" the new court house a block or so to the eastward with ease and celerity this week, and voted eighty thousand dollars for beginning construction work. This seems to bring to a successful conclusion an agitation of nearly twenty years' duration.

Staten Island real estate will derive a substantial benefit from the free transfer between the ferry and Manhattan surface car lines, which is about to go into effect. After awhile there will be direct subway connection which will mean a very rapid development for a borough that has many attractions for homeseekers.

In the $6,600,000 voted this week for new port and terminal works at South Brooklyn, real estate will see an incentive for new activity. Two great impulses are expected by the business interests of New York. One will come from the development of oversea commerce via the Panama Canal, and the other from the completion of the new subways.

Exceptions to the Rule.

However unsatisfactory the real estate market has been during the last season throughout the larger part of the city, there are two avenues which are exceptions to the general rule. One of these avenues is Fifth avenue, or rather that part of Fifth avenue between 34th and 50th streets. Another is Park avenue, from 45th street north. There has been comparatively little building on Park avenue during the past winter and spring because an over-supply of apartment house accommodation had been put up; but an unusually large proportion of vacancies and some concessions in prices have not affected the underlying strength of real estate on that avenue. It is one of the few parts of the city in which speculative purchases have recently been made, and in which plans for future development are being confidently drawn up. Corners of 92d and of 93d streets have been bought during the past two weeks by operators who presumably intend to re-improve them with high class modern apartment houses. Such intentions are peculiarly interesting, because this part of Park avenue is at present improved with cheap flats. The whole character of the neighborhood will have to be changed; but there is every reason to believe that the attempt to change it will be successful.

It has succeeded farther south in the vicinity of the Grand Central Station, and it is likely to succeed farther north. For many reasons Park avenue is particularly available as a site for expensive apartment houses. In the first place, it is wider than either Lexington or Madison avenues, so wide that sixteen-story buildings can be erected on it. In the second place, it is much to be preferred as a residential avenue to either of the others, because it is free from the noise and the obstruction of surface cars. Most of the people who live in these expensive apartments own motor cars, and need an open thoroughfare to the south. This they will obtain as soon as the carriageway around the Grand Central Station is finished, and as soon as the grade at 34th street and Park avenue is improved. Finally, a serious obstacle to the better improvement of upper Park avenue will be removed as soon as the Lexington avenue subway is in operation. Many business men are obliged now to take the surface cars to the 42d street express station of the existing subway, which is inconvenient and slow.

It is very probable, consequently, that every foot of under-improved land on Park avenue as far north as the end of the tunnel will eventually be occupied by tall expensive apartment houses. It is the most available avenue in the city for this class of building, and as we pointed out recently, apartment houses are superseding private residences for the patronage even of very rich people. The very corners which have recently been purchased by Bing & Bing had been bought by their recent owners as the site for private residences. Life in apartments is becoming more and more general and Park avenue is being picked as the best avenue for the highest grade buildings of this class.

Could Be a Great Convenience.

The Franchise Bureau of the Board of Estimate has before it applications for a large number of motor "bus" franchises, and on the basis of these applications it is trying to work out a comprehensive group of "bus" routes for Manhattan. The planning of a comprehensive "bus" system is a desirable thing; but it should be undertaken with a good deal of circumspection. It is in the first place, distinctly undesirable that too many omnibuses should be permitted to careen around the streets of Manhattan. The avenues not now occupied by trolley cars are becoming more and more popular and necessary for private vehicles. All over Manhattan the congestion of street traffic is a serious problem, and the necessity of not allowing it to become too serious should be seriously considered in the drawing up of any plan.

Yet it is undoubtedly the case that a certain number of motor "bus" routes can be laid out which will be a convenience to the public without increasing disproportionately the congestion of traffic.

The great advantage of the motor bus is that it can take a diagonal and irregular route much more easily than can a surface car; and diagonal routes are peculiarly needed in a rectangular city like New York. One desirable line could run down Park avenue to 42d street, on down Madison avenue to 23d street, then through Irving place to 14th street. The travel on this route might cause congestion on 42d and 23d streets, but the other parts of it are now comparatively free from traffic. Another line should connect the upper East Side with the lower West Side—or at least with the Pennsylvania station. Here again the route would have to run along Park and Madison avenues to 32d street and then across. Manifestly in planning all these lines of traffic Park avenue will be the big prize. It is the one wide avenue running through a densely populated district, which is still unsoiled either by the trolley car or the bus. A good many of its property-owners and residents would doubtless prefer to have it remain unsoiled, for a bus is an unsightly and a noisy thing and makes trouble both for pedestrians and private vehicles, but Park avenue can hardly escape. A line or two of motor omnibuses will be more of a benefit than a burden, and the necessity should be accepted gracefully by owners of real estate. Every effort should be made, however, to shut off only the least noisy and most convenient of these vehicles. There is a lot of difference among motor omnibuses.

New York as a Distributing Point.

The failure of the H. B. Claflin Co. is being charged in part to the increasing difficulties under which the New York jobber is suffering; and it is predicted that these difficulties will increase in the future rather than diminish. It is pointed out, for instance, that the zone system of trans-continental and intermountain rates, which has been established by the Interstate Commerce Commission and recently affirmed by the Supreme Court, will make it more difficult than ever for the New York jobber to compete with his brethren of Chicago or other middle western points for middle and far western business. It is probable that this is true. New York, being a seaport, benefited as did San Francisco and Seattle from a system of rates, whose great object was to enable the railroads to compete for traffic, which could more economically be moved by water. But there will be compensations for these losses. What New York will lose as a shipper by rail, it may gain as a shipper by water. The Barge Canal and the Panama Canal will open up sources of supply and markets to New York business men such as they have never enjoyed in the past.

For this and other reasons New York is likely to gain as a manufacturing center. The barge canal will carry raw materials to the city cheaper than ever before. New York will have peculiar advantages in shipping its manufactures by water both to foreign purchasers and domestic purchasers, who live at or near a seaport. The effect of the tariff reducton will be to stimulate New York, as compared to interior points, as a manufacturing center. The tendency is to make transportation by rail more expensive than it has been in the past, and consequently to give an increasing economic importance to American seaports. In order to take advantage of this situation the city of New York must, however, adopt some effectual measures to modernize the port. It will never be able to handle the increased volume of sea-going traffic with sufficient economy unless the wasteful methods and the antiquated machinery that are now in use are replaced by an up-to-date equipment. We know that the present administration is not neglecting this matter and that a plan is now being drawn up; but its working out is taking an extremely long time. The Record and Guide sincerely hopes that when it is brought forth, it will be acceptable and can be rapidly carried out.

The Cost Will Be Shared.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I noticed in several of the evening papers last week that articles on the Workmen's Compensation Law quoted the law in large print as being hard on the employer and a boon to the workmen. This seems to me an impossibility. How any law of this nature can be hard on one and a boon to another is paradoxical, and I write hoping that someone may explain it.

If they are really correct in their statement, all economic problems would be solved. All you would have to do is to pass a law that the minimum wage would be $10 a day, and if that was not enough make it $20. If it is simply going to be hard on the employer and a boon to the workman, the workman will have plenty of money to spend, and necessarily times will be good in consequence. I think that this is a misstatement and should not go unchallenged.

What they ought to say is that the law is a burden—possibly a necessary one—borne equally by the employer and the workman, as they both gain their livelihood out of the same thing, and there certainly can be no such distinction as stated in these papers.

I presume it is hardly fair to accuse the Legislature at Albany of deliberately trying to deceive workmen. It would probably be more charitable to lay it down to a lack of knowledge of the general economic principles governing all business. When the present law has been put in such shape, as it no doubt will be, that one can understand just who is entitled to be insured under it and who is not (as it certainly is not a very clear document at present) I think it may prove a boon to both sides.

The Wholesale Drygoods Centre Association.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is seldom that an organization of tenants is found that keeps up the "esprit de corps" in its original purpose like that now being shown by the Wholesale Drygoods Centre Association—which was organized to preserve and unite the section around the "Worth Street District."

In this it has been successful. The uptown movement has been checked and leases for a term of years guarantee the continuance of the houses now located here.

Real estate brokers interested in uptown property are trying again to artificially organize an uptown movement.

It is the confident expectation of the entire trade that the great house temporarily in difficulties will be continued as a going concern in its present location.

It is conceded by all those interested that it would be a serious calamity and a source of great additional expense if this district were broken up and any of its component parts located elsewhere.

This is sent out merely as a reminder for all hands to stick together, thoroughly realizing the advantages of doing business in our present location.

(President Wholesale Drygoods Centre Association).

A Disastrous Mesalliance.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Richmond Borough is the classic of the City of New York in everything but land values, and that would adjust itself in time. But the property-owners cannot afford to wait, they have waited too long, been entirely too patient, accepted excuses that they knew were false, believing the island's intrinsic worth and value would soon carry it over all barriers.

There should have been a double-tube tunnel from the Battery, Manhattan, to St. George years ago, and there would have been, but for the jealousy of Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens. These boroughs knew that given equal advantages, Richmond would soon lead. There is needed at least a hundred miles more of double-track trolley and a double-track steam road entirely around the island. These things have been a crying need since 1898. They are more and more apparent every day. They must be done. No real progress can or will be made until they are accomplished.

Richmond has spent millions of dollars building retaining walls for railroad yards, park-like highways for the automobilist, sewers fifty years in advance of all requirements and a topographical map that any competent company would gladly have made for half the price and in one-third the time. After fourteen years of this thing, real estate is on the bargain counter. There is a deep, strong undercurrent of dissatisfaction. The people generally know that something is wrong and they believe they know what it is—it is not incurable, quite to the contrary, it is reasonably easy to rectify.

What and practically all that is needed to increase the value of Richmond Borough real estate 20 per cent. per year for the next twenty-five years is transportation. The municipal ferry is first class, in fact there is nothing better anywhere. But Richmond has an abominable system of trolleys and steam roads. Nothing worse would be tolerated by intelligent people. Richmond's officials know all about these things, New York City knows and the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens take delight in telling it, printing and advertising it. This must cease. We are equals, we pay our taxes twice, three and four times what we paid before we became a part of New York City.

The writer did all in his power to bring about consolidation, as he believed it would be a great, good thing for Staten Island and old New York City. It has for the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens. They have prospered amazingly and they have chained Richmond fast and kept it out of competition. There is a remedy. Get out of New York City; it's folly to stay where you are not wanted and are not appreciated. Certainly, Richmond does not owe the other parts of New York City one penny.

Let Richmond make a proposition to the State of New Jersey. By every geographical law, it belongs to New Jersey and it would be a wonderful acquisition to that State. New Jersey is a progressive State in every sense of the word. A very large proportion of the wealthiest and most influential business men of New York City are residents of New Jersey.

New Jersey is the manufacturers' paradise, and justly so, because it makes them comfortable by looking after their needs and requirements. New Jersey has the Pennsylvania, West Shore, Erie, Lehigh Valley, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, N. Y., O. & W., N. Y. S. & W., and a great many other high-class railroads.

But New Jersey has no shore fronts to compare with Staten Island. New Jersey has no nearby beaches like the great South Shore of Staten Island. New Jersey has no home sites within the same distance from Manhattan that approaches Grymes, Dongan, Emerson, Todt, and Richmond Hills. New Jersey has no romantic, enhancing, enchanting scenery near Manhattan like Brighton Heights, the Clove Valley, Silver Lake, Castleton Hill, Ocean Driveway and the beautiful hill country from Richmond to Huguenot.

Richmond Borough can offer New Jersey an almost virgin soil of wealth for homes and commerce with health in every zephyr. And New Jersey will reciprocate and make billions of dollars for Staten Island and itself out of the partnership. We both win.

Think it over, give it consideration, it is time to do something. Real, enduring prosperity is worth any amount of effort and work.

J. STERLING DRAKE.

Property Rights Should Be Vigilantly Guarded.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The oft-repeated and constant attacks on real estate, by the various city departments and State Legislature, make it incumbent on the loaning institutions, such as insurance companies, trust companies and savings banks, to present a combined front, so that all may realize, that real estate interests will refuse longer to submit meekly to the harsh and tyrannical rules and laws primarily evoked for the purpose of bleeding it to the utmost.

The absence of confidence does much to undermine the general stability, and it would seem as though every State and city official made it his especial study to increase the heavy burden, already carried by real estate.

President Marcellus of the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, in a letter to the writer, of the date of February 25, 1914, says:

> "There seems to be a class of men, and women too, who have lately sprung up in the community and are determined to start in and make the world over again in accordance with their own crazy designs. The old things and all old methods which have been good enough in the times that are past, which have stood the test of many years, and have been for the peace, prosperity and advancement of the people, must be all torn down and demolished, in this age, to give place to some new, better way. If some check is not put to this sort of thing right now it is difficult to say where all this is going to lead in the near future."

We have recently seen a strong union of allied interests in a determined and vigorous fight against the iniquitous and absurd Herrick-Schaap's bill. The energetic earnestness of the opponents of this bill speedily relegated it to that obscurity from which it never should have emerged. With the final disposition of this bill, the interests dispersed, perhaps, only to be brought together again, to fight some momentous question.

Instead of these spasmodic eruptions it would be well if the allied interests would remain on constant guard and be alert in the extermination of all offensive measures whilst still in embryo.

Why should a man own real estate, which nets him less than 5 per cent. and submit himself to the constant annoyance of the Building Department, Fire Prevention Bureau, Labor Department, Board of Aldermen, Board of Health and the State Legislature, and others so numerous that it is difficult to recall each one of them. It seems to me that the real-estate interests have not been sufficiently diligent in presenting their side of the case, whilst they permit demagogues who are attemptng to ride into office, to appeal to the prejudice of the tenants, and do as they please. It is time to take the offensive and not continue to remain on the defensive as we are doing. Our public officials should be made to understand that it is their duty to protect real-estate values, as the city's chief source of income depends thereon.

Mortgage investments are staple. The seeming weakness is temporary, as our city is daily spreading in improvements, and there will always be a large majority of property owners in need of mortgage moneys, and there will likewise always be many investors who realize the stability of such investments. The weakness of the situation is not inherent, and is due to artificial means and uncertain conditions. Loans made on a two-thirds basis of a value, fixed by competent appraisers of property, well located, carry every possible security. Investors are often persuaded by misleading rates to go to Wall Street, in the hope of securing a compensating rate of interest. They do not take into consideration that any and every idle rumor plays havoc with their securities, sending them either up or down like the mercury in a thermometer. For many years the tendency has been to burden real-estate so that now it pays 95 per cent. of the City Budget.

INDUSTRIES OF QUEENS.

Chamber of Commerce Makes An Interesting Comparison.

The Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens makes the following interesting comparison between the manufactured products of that borough and those of the principal cities along the lines of the Barge Canal for the year 1909:

| City | Value of Products | No of Factories |
|---|---|---|
| Queens Borough | $151,680,000 | 771 |
| Rochester | 112,676,000 | 1,203 |

It is estimated that Queens has now 1,050 factories, with an output valued at $225,000,000.

The continued commercial and industrial development of Queens Borough is shown by the following report of new industries recently settled in the borough, which was made by A. L. Langdon, traffic manager of the L. I. R. R., at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens:

The Autosales Gum & Chocolate Co., 10th street and Vernon avenue, Long Island City, has given up the manufacture of bonbons and chewing gum and will manufacture vending machines only. A new company has been formed to handle the bonbon and chewing-gum business, to be known as the Sterling Gum Co., and located in the same building.

The works of the General Kompolite Co., manufacturing cement compositions, formerly at Tenth avenue and North 8th street, Brooklyn, have been moved into the brick building formerly occupied by the Brooklyn Range Boiler Works, at the corner of Borden avenue and Heyward street, Long Island City, where they will commence operations at once, employing about twenty-five hands.

The Willey Paint Works, now at Mott and Vernon avenues, Long Island City, will soon begin the erection of a six-story concrete building, about 75 x 130 feet, on their property at the corner of Hancock and 13th streets, to which they will move early in 1915.

The Singer Motor Co., recently incorporated, has leased from the American Locomotive Co. a part of their building on Jackson avenue, between Honeywell street and Harold avenue. The company is composed of some of the members of the Palmer-Singer Mfg. Co., which recently discontinued operations.

The Pan-O-Lite Grease & Oil Co. has recently been incorporated with capital stock of $30,000. This is a reorganization of the firm formerly known as Wm. P. Miller & Sons, located at Hancock street and Nott avenue, Long Island City.

"The Empire Art Metal Co., of College Point, has leased the old Karsh Brewery property, a three-story brick building at Second avenue and 10th street, College Point, for the purpose of storing the materials they are manufacturing for the new Equitable Building in New York.

The W. P. Collins Iron Works, at 3d and Creek streets, Long Island City, have leased their building, 50 x 100 feet, to the Indian Refining Co., office 17 Battery Place, New York City, for use as a distributing plant. The Collins Iron Works will move into their old building, 90 x 100 feet, at the same location, sub-letting about half of it to the Franklin Garage, Inc., Brooklyn.

Suburban Homes Sales Service.

The new Clearing House for Suburban Homes service recently inaugurated by the New York Suburban Land Co. has already established a high mark of efficiency in handling hundreds of inquiries for suburban homes, consummating sales each day in a market that in other directions appears stagnant and devoid of life or interest. Edward R. Holden, Jr., originator of the Clearing House for Suburban Homes idea, in speaking of the new undertaking said:

"I am thoroughly convinced from the interest already evinced by the home-seeking public in my new method of bringing the buyer and seller together, that it is the proper solution for obliterating the many objectionable features a prospective home-seeker usually encounters in trying to find a property to his liking. I feel and have maintained that there exists in New York at all times from ten to twenty thousand families willing and eager to buy and locate in suburban New York if able to find a home suitable to their needs. In most cases disappointment and discouragement on the part of the home-seeker is the result of much lost time, energy and money, spent in fruitless efforts to be satisfied before buying.

"I conceived the idea of centralizing suburban homes through my realization of the above objections and with the object in view of reducing to a minimum the trials of the home seeker I undertook the organization of my present system, which is proving a success beyond by expectations. I am listing each day an average of fifty additional houses, making in all to date over 3,500 suburban houses for sale, situated in 110 separate locations, within a radius of 30 miles of New York. These houses are regularly listed with newly taken photographs, accurate and complete description of each. Real estate brokers unable to satisfy a client seeking a suburban home are privileged to avail themselves of this extended service."

Want New Transit Line.

At the meeting of the Dyckman Taxpayers' Association held this week, Minturn Post Collins, the president, appointed a committee to co-operate with the Upper Manhattan Owners' Association to endorse the Bolton Rapid Transit scheme of connecting the Elevated Railroad at 155th street with Spuyten Duyvil via Fort Washington avenue and Riverside drive extension, St. Nicholas avenue crossing the present Broadway subway at 168th street. (See Record and Guide June 13 for map and description.) At the meeting maps of this section were distributed and resolutions adopted authorizing the secretary to send one of these to the prominent builders showing them the improvements that have been made in the last three years in the Dyckman tract.

It was also noted that permanent loans have been procured in this district through the efforts of John N. Golding and that the feeling of lenders was very much improved, building and permanent loans now being procurable for responsible builders. It was also noted that the 215th street stairway had been completed at a moderate cost and the assessment therefore to be equable livided.

Business at Bronx Register's.

Register Edward Polak's prediction in March last as to the amount of business to be transacted in his office is now borne out by the facts. The fees collected June 30 amounted to $109,144.54. The salaries in the general administration department for 1914 will approximate $75,000. In the Mortgage Tax Department $9,500, rent $4,875, equipment and supplies $1,300, making a total of $90,675, thus leaving a substantial balance.

It is estimated that the receipts for the ensuing six months will exceed $210,000, which includes $110,000, due by the New York Central R. R. for its apportioned share of its $500,000,000 mortgage.

Register Polak declares a surplus of $100,000 will be returned to Bronx County, and says that the volume of business in his office exceeds all expectations which proves that Bronx County is growing at an amazing rate.

The following is the Register's report of the first six months: Mortgages recorded, 5,084; conveyances recorded, 4,589; Commissioner of Deeds and Notary Certificates filed, 2,659; mortgages taxed, 2,122; chattel mortgages, 10,056; police recorded, 145,369; consideration of conveyances, $3,533,742; mortgage tax indebtedness, $17,618,988.

Historical Photography.

—The Art Commission of New York has recently set about the procuring of a series of photographs of the ancient landmarks in New York City. The rapid changes that are occurring in every borough have in the past resulted in the demolition of many buildings of historic and architectural interest. Less than fifty buildings in the whole city remain from Colonial times. The Art Commission has arranged to photograph every important street and all notable buildings in their various locations for the benefit of posterity.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

While the realty transactions reported this week were not as spectacular as those of last week, still a number of large deals were closed. Several of the properties will be improved with modern structures, both of the mercantile and apartment house types. The Park avenue section came in for the major share of the attention, operators being the principal purchasers. Taken all and all, the sales and leases were well distributed. During the last few weeks the market has shown a tendency to broaden, and indications point to the small investor coming back into the field. It is not anticipated that the man with limited capital will be a strong factor in the market for some time to come, but he has become more active of late than for several months past. The large private investor is still in evidence, Alexander R. Peacock, a partner of Andrew Carnegie, having repurchased a large loft building which he traded last March. Several interesting leases were also reported by brokers.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 32, as against 27 last week and 17 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 11, as compared with 12 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 21, as compared with 15 last week and 12 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 189, as against 145 last week, 21 having stated considerations totaling $3,038,989. Mortgages recorded this week number 111, involving $2,703,140, as against 80 last week agregating $2,379,418.

From the Bronx 25 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 14 last week and 3 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $217,802, compared with $1,602;050 last week, making a total since January 1 of $22,250,377. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $464,859, and the total from Januarv 1, 1913, was $33,840,957.

Sisters Add to Holdings.

The Protestant Episcopal Home of the Holy Comforter sold to the Sisterhood of St. Regis the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 139th street, having a frontage of 100.8 feet on the drive, 140 feet in 139th street, the other lines measuring 152.6 and 99.11 feet, respectively. The purchasing institution now controls the entire block front on Riverside Drive between 139th and 140th streets, including 200.8 feet on the drive, 365 feet in 139th street and 354 feet in 140th street. Possession will be given in about one year, at which time the Home of the Holy Comforter will move to its new edifices at the northwest corner of Grand Boulevard and Concourse and 196th street. Geo. R. Read & Company and John N. Golding were the brokers.

Sale at Greenwich.

The Copp Estate holdings at Belle Haven Park, Greenwich, Conn., offered at public auction last Saturday, were sold for a total of $96,050. The sale was largely attended and was conducted by the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Co., auctioneers. "Althea Lodge," consisting of a stately mansion and stable, and about 3.3 acres of ground, 314x348, was sold to George Hepburn of Stamford, Conn., for $39,750. "Cozy Corners," comprising a house of equal size with 2.2 acres of land, 169.3x315, was bought by Mrs. George Banks, of Mohegan Heights, N. Y., for $31,500 and "Bonny Breeze" was purchased by James Bliss Coombs for $24,800.

Quick Resale.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have resold for the Henry Morgenthau Company the Elbe, a 6-story apartment house, on plot 100x65, at the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 143d street. The property was held at $170,000. The deal completes the resale of the two properties, the other being the Glenham, at 2626 Broadway, taken in part payment by the selling company last month from William F. Burns in exchange for the Columbus, a 10-story apartment structure, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 157th street. The same brokers negotiated all of the transactions.

School for Architects.

William A. White & Sons sold for Jacob H. Schiff his 3-sty stable at 126 East 75th str., on plot 39.6x102.2. The purchaser is the Beaux Arts Association, which was represented by E. De-Forest Simmons. The new owners will alter the structure into studios and apartments, which will be principally for the use of architects. There will also be instruction for young architects. Satterlee & Boyd, as architects, will draw the plans for the conversion of the Schiff stable.

Madison Avenue Deal.

Pease & Elliman announce that negotiations are far advanced for the sale of 414 Madison avenue, a 4-story converted dwelling, 24x95, owned by John L. Suydam, held at about $125,000. The purchaser is said to be Dr. James Bishop, who recently acquired the adjoining property at 416, through the same brokers from James A. Farley. Dr. Bishop will control a plot 44.5x95.

S. C. Clark Sells.

Stephen Carleton Clark, son of the late Alfred Corning Clark, sold the dwelling on Lenox Hill, which he purchased last year from William H. Barnard, at 38 East 68th st. The house, a 5-sty English basement, which occupies a lot 16x100.5, was sold by the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company. Mr. Clark held the dwelling at $80,000.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

OBITUARY

GEORGE W. SMITH, one of the founders of Rockaway Beach, died last Monday of Bright's disease in his home in Rockville Centre, L. I. He was seventy-four years old and as a young man served three terms in the Queens County Board of Supervisors and five terms as president of the village in which he died. Mr. Smith established a business in Rockaway Beach in 1880, when the place was sparsely settled, and five years later, with his business partner, John W. Wainwright, purchased a tract of land fronting the lower Long Island coast. Bathing pavilions were erected and railroads were induced to connect Rockaway with New York city. He leaves his wife and two sons.

JAMES MADISON HORTON, manufacturer of ice cream and for many years a large holder of real estate in Greater New York, died at his home, 112 West 126th st, from heart disease. Mr. Horton was seventy-nine years old, having been born at Middletown, N. Y., August 3, 1835. He came to New York City in 1853 and started in the milk business, with, it is said, a capital of only $100. A few years later he started the manufacture of ice cream and to-day his concern is one of the largest in the country. The company operates several stores in Manhattan and Brooklyn and its products are sold in thousands of stores throughout the country. Mr. Horton, at the time of his death, was a director of the Mount Morris Bank and was also a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Congregational Club. He is survived by a son, Harry C. Horton, and by a daughter, Mrs. Edward B. Lewis.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Offerings in the various Exchange Salesrooms during the week were more or less commonplace, no properties of special note having been advertised for sale. This is not altogether unnatural when the season of the year is considered and when the fact that it is a holiday week is also taken into account. The market is in a generally healthier condition than it was a year ago. The number of foreclosure sales are less largely due to the willingness of the loaning institutions to renew mortgages. The outside purchasing power, however, has not asserted itself to any great extent, though it is felt that the autumn will see renewed interest on the part of the small investor.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

PRACTICABILITY OF TWELVE STORY LOFTS

By FREDERICK FOX

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager For The American Real Estate Co.

THIS is an explosive age, at times serious but usually just merely the bursting of harmless bubbles gives evidence of the fact. It is therefore not altogether surprising that, contrary to former notions, statisticians now inform us that spring time is war time. Many owners of mercantile property in New York City have had some suspicion of this for a number of years. Whatever doubt may have existed has been swept away through the bombardment of the small army of interlocking directors of our state and municipal departments. This bombardment of commercial buildings, which is continuous, gives notification beyond all question that real warfare has begun. Last year there was talk of halving the taxes on buildings. In the coming years, if the present well laid plans of the myriad officials in the various departments governing such matters are successful, there will only be half buildings to tax, the balance being made up of fire towers, sprinkler pipes, stand pipes, fire walls, fresh air devices, dressing and rest rooms and batteries of plumbing fixtures. Criticism of proper supervision over factories and the right kind of protection to factory employes, will ever be a fruitless and altogether unworthy employment of time, but objection can properly be made to such rules, regulations and orders directed against property, as do not materially benefit the workers and which do, on the contrary, seriously injure the owners of property and jeopardize the business prestige of this city.

No Rule Can Be Applied.

It should be evident that no rule can be applied indiscriminately to all commercial buildings alike, there being no two buildings in New York City where the condition of occupancy is parallel. Each building is a unit in itself. To set down a definite rule governing all properties of a certain height or certain number of floors, and forcing this rule to be applied, irrespective of neighboring conditions or internal arrangements, is perfectly absurd, and, as our Borough President said: "The enforcement of such unreasonable regulations will make anarchists of real estate owners," and goodness knows, we have plenty of such people already.

In the periods of the last dozen years or so, the twelve-story commercial building has become the standard business structure for various manufacturers, for salesrooms, showrooms and offices of a great bulk of our mercantile establishments. The new departments, as well as the old bureaus of the city and State, have had their attention particularly focused upon such buildings, and the orders issued have appeared to multiply just about as fast as new buildings were constructed. The fireproof building of today means more than that word meant twenty years ago. If the Triangle fire proved anything, it clearly proved this fact, that the building having stood the test of flames in a manner wholly creditable to its architects, its builders and its owner. The loss of life has at no time been properly charged against any fault in the construction of that building, but, as experts have pointed out time and time again, the unfortunate inmates were the victims of their own panic.

Exits of Benefit.

Sprinklers, fire-towers and extra stairways may be helpful when a test arises, though too many exits may be simply confusing, and it is doubtful if any of these things of themselves will prevent a panic among undisciplined, ignorant and maddened hordes of employes. Despite this fact, the majority of the orders sent out from the various departments are directed against supposed mechanical and construction errors, too little attention being given to the consideration of the involved human element. Some of these orders utterly conflict with present regulations, others are set aside almost as rapidly as issued, as for instance, the orders concerning the use of nothing but metal window frames. Suggestions are continually being made that are altogether impractical of execution, or, if executed, would make a building useless for service, such as the proposition to honeycomb large floor space into small compartments, where, if a fire occurred in any particular compartment, the occupants of the others could close all means of egress and allow the imprisoned ones to roast without endangering those on the other side.

FREDERICK FOX.

Another brilliant idea is exposed in recent orders concerning occupancy. In the case of the ordinary twelve-story building, constructed during the last ten years, in some cases the entire income and in other cases a very large percentage of the income, has been expended by the owner during the last three years in an effort to comply with the various requirements of officialdom. This last and worst order concerning the occupancy of such buildings, has in a large measure not been complied with and is not likely to be without considerable trouble. These orders, on an average, reduce the number of hands permitted on each floor from one-half to one-third of the number usually employed.

Recent Test Made.

A test conducted in a building in the Twenties recently, to determine the adequacy of the present exits in connection with the number of hands employed, proved that the entire building would be emptied in three minutes. Any reasonable human being would say that this was a perfectly safe limit, even under the most pressing circumstances. Should this order affecting the number of occupants permitted in the premises be enforced, the owner will have either to spend thousands of dollars in what his advisers claim will be perfectly useless expense, or his tenants will be forced to seek other quarters and the building remain idle.

Experience has taught managers of most buildings, that discipline rather than mechanical devices is what is most needful in the protection of life. A force of one thousand people may be much safer under proper discipline than a force of one hundred people would be without proper direction in the most modern of the structures planned by our pseudo experts with departmental authority.

Special Privileges.

Any privilege by indirection is entirely wrong. A subsidy or special privilege works sometimes to the advantage of a majority of the people, if there are certain districts of the city where manufacturers employing a large number of hands are out of place, it would seem perfectly justifiable to directly exclude them. Some time ago, former Chief Guerin of the Fire Department stated to the writer that in his opinion at least 90 per cent. of all the fires in this city were either the result of gross carelessness or incendiary origin. To this source, the Bureau of Fire Prevention should devote its activities, and if such attention were properly given, the present buildings would afford ample protection against the possibilities of a new holocaust.

An architect has recently pointed out that under a strict interpretation of the present requirements, the improvements of a 25-foot lot with a modern six or seven-story building is absolutely impractical. The requirements covering a 50-foot plot are also so drastic as to make it impractical to erect anything but a very tall building on such a plot. This is directly out of sympathy with the present ideas of city planning, which are against the erection of very tall buildings, and there are very few people knowing anything about the subject, who are willing to urge the use of very tall buildings by manufacturing interests. So many private schemes and ulterior motives are at present parading under the broad emblem of human rights, that, unless a clear discernment is maintained, the public is very apt to be misguided.

Conflicting Authorities.

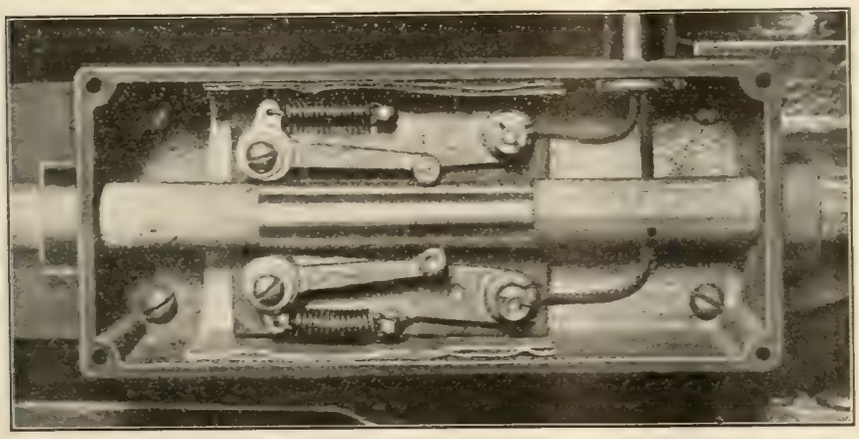
The activities of a dozen different bureaus and the conflicting authorities of State and city in relation to the regulation of factories and buildings, overlap one another, adding to the prevailing confusion without in any measurable extent doing any good; but if the people of New York are ambitious to turn its magnificent commercial structures into lofty sepulchres, the way to do it is to continue along the present line of governmental activity, which is being very much mistaken for governmental efficiency.



The presentation of such conditions, expressed in various newspaper articles, has been full and definite and should have appealed to the good sense of all those who have taken the pains to be informed. It is essential now that aggressive action be taken by not only the real estate people and the owners of property, but by the big business interests of New York City looking to the final and permanent adjustment of just what is necessary for the standard building and what is unnecessary, to formulate a working plan for the co-ordination of the sources of inspection and regulation and the abolishment of the duplication of supervision by the amalgamation of departments that are now trying to accomplish the same things under different leadership at the ridiculous economic laws.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Elevator Door Control.

MANY of the accidents that occur in elevators are due to the doors sometimes failing to close by the hand method. To insure closing of doors under all circumstances the Burdett-Rountree Manufacturing Co., of 119 West 40th street, is introducing a safety door operator with interlock. With this mechanism the operator cannot move the elevator until the enclosure doors and car gate are both closed.

The soul of this device centers in the contact points, shown in the illustration. This device is being introduced in buildings especially where traffic is very heavy. This safety door operator consists of two single acting open-end cylinders. Each cylinder contains an independent piston with leather cup and brass cup-expander. The two pistons are fastened together by end cross-heads and parallel connecting rods, so that they work in unison.

The air is admitted into the proper cylinder through the valve on top. No packing-glands or stuffing-boxes are required, as the valve-stems and piston-rods are not subjected to air-pressure. A swinging arm is attached to the back edge of the door by means of a door-slide, and a connecting bar couples the cylinder crosshead to the swinging arm. As the crosshead travels to and fro, the energy is transmitted to the connecting bar and arm, thus opening or closing the doors. At the highest point in the air-supply piping is installed an automatic device, which lubricates all the valves and the inside of the cylinders. About once a month it will be necessary to renew the lubricant.

A Kitchenette Range.

REALIZING the fact that the apartment house kitchenette has come to stay, the Eclipse Gas Stove Co., of Rockford, Ill., has manufactured a range that has virtues particularly attractive to apartment house hunters. The great difficulty with the ranges as now installed in kitchenettes is that they are built to conform to the general restricted area of the culinary departments. The result is that roasting space in the ovens is decidedly limited, and as occasions sometimes arise when it is necessary for persons living in apartments to have turkeys roasted by delicatessen dealers.

The range, as shown in the illustration, takes up practically no more floor space than an ordinary gas range, yet it has an oven 22 inches wide by 19½ inches deep and 14 inches high, large enough to hold two good-sized roasts or a big baking. The type without side shelves measures 38 inches wide by 24 inches deep, and the side shelves add 10 inches to the width. There are six top burners, three of these are of giant capacity for quick boiling. There are also furnished three double ring burners in place of the giant capacity burners.

Another attractive device about this range is that it comes with an automatic lighter and has wheel valves instead of lever valves so as to avoid accidental turning on or shutting off of gas. The range is equally applicable for use in clubs, hospitals and public institutions.

Double Acting Floor Hinge.

APPARENTLY containing all the virtues of the familiar door check and spring, a device that the Benjamin S. Alder Co., of 37 Warren street, is introducing here for the Standard Manufacturing Company, of Shelby, Ohio, has the additional advantage of being practically invisible and, installed, does not in any way detract from the appearance of the door.

The floor spring for doors is familiar to builders, but the combined checking feature in this device is novel. It is adaptable for double swinging doors in all sorts of buildings. The cut shows the general arrangement. It is a door check and hinge, it automatically closes the door without a slam, it prevents children from being knocked down, it prevents injury to hands if caught when the door is closing, it stops the door exactly at centre automatically and holds it open when desired, it renders the action of the door noiseless and has long life, according to the manufacturers. The 1914 model is simple and effective. The working parts are protected against dust and dirt. They come packed one set in a box complete with screws.

A Straight Edge Corner Bead.

BY VIRTUE of a special method of manufacture the Penn Metal Company, of Boston, is putting on the market a metal corner bead that possesses great rigidity, lightness and permanent stability of line. This bead is bent over a micrometered die of special steel that produces a positive line, regardless of the different grades of metal that may be encountered in the raw material.

Makes Floors Durable.

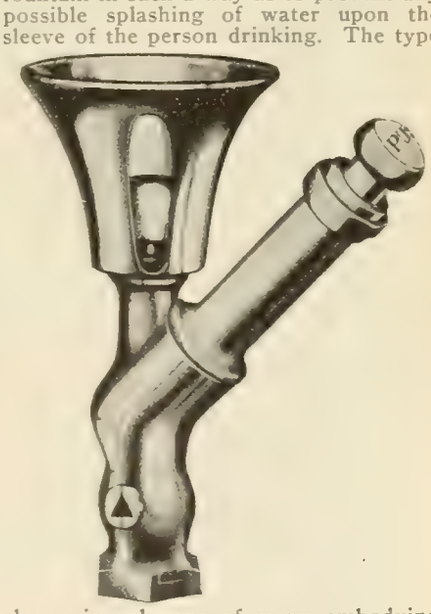
FLOOR wear is most annoying to tenant and owner alike. It has therefore been the aim of building managers to find some preparation that will preserve the life of floors whether they are laid in wood or concrete, not only because of its economic value to them, but because of the greater satisfaction protected floors will give the tenant.



Such a preparation has been perfected and is now on the market here, where according to the statements of manufacturers it has given good service. It is known as the Saums preservative and is distributed by George J. Healey, of 1482 Broadway. It is made in two distinct formulas, one for concrete and one for wood, but both operate exactly alike in producing even, dustless wear. It is not a paint, nor a substitute for it. It penetrates from a quarter to a half inch below the surface of wood floors and keeps it from splintering, cracking, buckling in new floors, and dry rot. It permits the floor to be scrubbed as easily as a linoleum surface. It is suitable in all sorts of buildings, factories and clubs, loft buildings and apartments, offices and residences. It may also be used as a waterproofing agency in stopping leaks in tanks, etc.

Inter-Phones Increasingly Popular.

LITTLE conception is possessed by the average person of the extensive use of inter-department telephones, not only in business buildings, but in private houses, until he comes in contact with information such as that contained in recent publications issued by the Western Electric Company, which manufactures something like 100,000 of them in a year. There is practically no combination of telephone communication that cannot now be served by the devices now on the market. Each separate room in a dwelling may be as readily connected to any other room or with the central station as the operation of merely taking a combination ear and mouthpiece from a hook after first pressing a button either on the wall or on a panel placed on the desk or table. More than twenty million inter-phones are now in use in this country and the demand for them is such as to keep great plants busy all the time.

A New Push Button Fountain.

MANY different types of sanitary drinking fountains have been put upon the market in the recent past, but one of novel design is being introduced by the Hames Robertson Company, of Montreal. This fountain, as the cut will show, has its chief novelty in the push button control which projects from the fountain in such a way as to prevent any possible splashing of water upon the sleeve of the person drinking. The type shown is only one of many embodying this principle of control. They are all made of heavy metal, but in the control device the shut-off is operated by the water pressure thus eliminating quick closing and strains on pipes. The device has had considerable service in Canada, where it has been used in schools and factories.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Detention Home And Court For Women On Old Tenderloin Police Station Site To Cost $450,000.

THE Detention Home and Court for Women, which will be erected upon the site of the old Tenderloin Police Station, in the north side of 30th street, is an innovation in the history of the Department of Correction and will be distinctly novel in many respects. The central idea of the scheme is to do away with the detention of women in police stations and the various City District Prisons in the Borough of Manhattan. This idea is the outcome of prolonged study and investigation of a troublesome city problem, on the part of a number of civic organizations and prominent individuals.

The new project is designed to correct the numerous abuses attendant upon the imprisonment of women. Heretofore, both men and women were confined in the same building, and because many of the police stations and city prisons, especially the older parts of the Tombs, in which women are now confined, are of such antiquated design, there is no possibility of making a distinction between first offenders and hardened habitues. The necessity for segregation into convenient groups of the inmates was the idea of the instigators of the scheme and this became the problem uppermost in the minds of the architects who were appointed to design the building.

Griffin & Wynkoop, 30 Church street, are the architects who are preparing the plans and specifications for this building and it will be erected under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections, Dr. Katherine B. Davis, Commissioner.

Project Decided Upon.

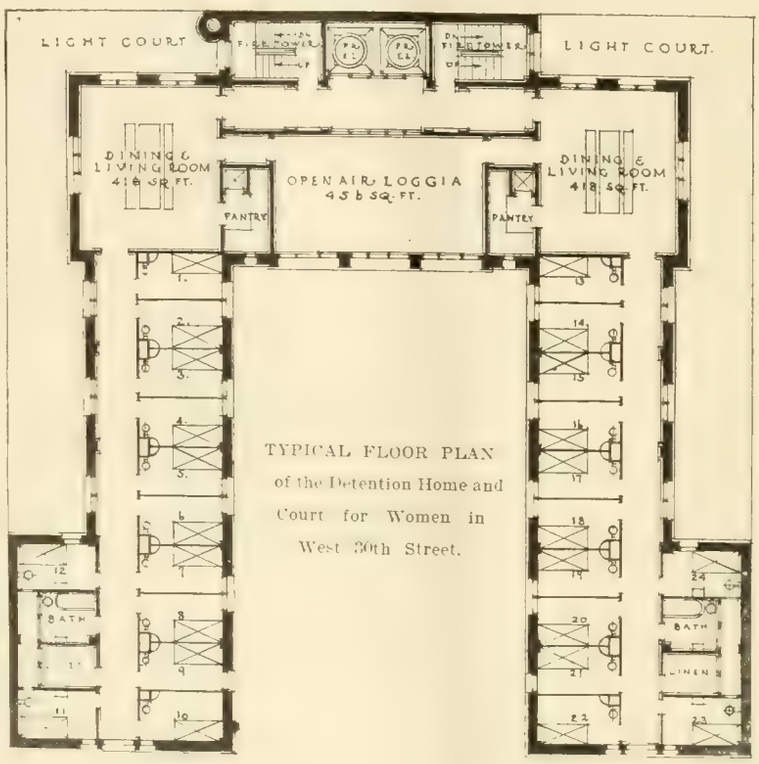
The city authorities decided upon the erection of this project during the year 1913 and an appropriation was made to cover the cost of the lot and erection of a suitable building. It was agreed at the time that the building should contain a Magistrate's Court for women with its administrative and probation departments and its provisions for the temporary detention and arraignment of arrested persons. It was also further decided that the building should contain a Home of Detention for Women and a city district prison for women with their administrative offices and rooms for general purposes.



After preparing preliminary plans for buildings to be erected on various sized lots it was finally decided that a plot approximately 100x100 feet afforded the best facilities for providing light and air for the prisoners in the building as well as the best for obtaining the structure within the amount called for by the appropriation. The building will include forty temporary detention rooms for arrested persons prior to arraignment, 110 detention rooms in the house of detention and 150 prison rooms in the city district prison.

To Cost $450,000.

The building will be built of Indiana limestone, terra cotta and brick and will be sixteen stories in height. The estimated cost will be in the neighborhood of $450,000. The building will be absolutely fireproof with the most up-to-date and complete sanitary equipment.

The Magistrates Court with its entrances and sub-divisions will occupy the first four stories of the structure. The Detention Home and District Prison occupy the fifth to fourteenth floors. Dangers arising from communication of prisoners is obviated by arranging the small rooms around a court recessed from the street, thus making the introduction of weapons and drugs an impossibility. This court opens onto the north side of 30th street and admits sunlight into each room of the home and prison at the same time of day.

Prisoners arriving at the building enter through a driveway court into the room for arrested persons and are then put into individual detention rooms on the first and second floors. From there they pass through the complaint room, prisoners waiting room, court room, finger print room and after sentence to the room for detained persons. Prisoners are then examined by women guards and are placed among that group of prisoners of which their degree of crime permits or requires.

TYPICAL FLOOR PLAN of the Detention Home and Court for Women in West 30th Street.

Details of Lay-Out.

The public enters the building through a public vestibule, to which toilets for men and women are accessible. Telephone facilities are also provided in this corridor. A large stairway leads to the court room and complaint room on the second floor.

Women on probation can report to their probation officer by coming through a special vestibule at the southwest corner of the building thus avoiding the crowds frequenting the court room and general entrance lobby.

The sixth to fourteenth floors have a typical arrangement for housing the inmates of the home and prison. Twenty-four individual rooms are placed on each floor, twelve on each side of the recessed light court. Each series of twelve rooms will have in connection with them a dining and living room, serving pantry, bath room and storage room for linen and clothes. An open air exercise loggia will connect the two dining rooms on each floor which will be used at different times by the inmates of each series of rooms. Each of the individual rooms will be provided with a wash basin, water closet and a bed.

Open Air Loggias.

On the top floors will be located the general rooms necessary to a building of this type. They include a kitchen, laundry, staff dining room, rooms for nurse, doctor and hospital or infirmary. On the roof will be a small isolation ward for contagious disease cases pending removal, and an open air exercise space for inmates. One of the open air loggias in the middle section of the building will be enclosed and is intended to be used as a chapel.

Storage rooms, sterilizing rooms, heating and electric plants will be located in the basement.

This building is being designed in a simple way after much thought and careful planning on the part of the commissioner's advisors and architects, to meet to the fullest extent the demands made from a humanitarian standpoint on the imprisonment of women and is a marked advance on prison construcaion.

Committee on Building Districts and Restrictions.

Edward M. Bassett has been elected chairman, Lawson Purdy vice-chairman and Robert H. Whitten secretary of the new Committee on Building Districts and Restrictions. The committee has held two meetings and taken a recess for the summer. At the second meeting, on Wednesday of this week, the secretary was empowered to employ help to make investigations and collate information for a report to the commission along the line of its work, which will be carried on in this manner during the summer. Chairman Bassett has sailed for Europe.

Manhattan's representatives on the committee are all closely allied to real estate interests and are all possessed of first-hand knowledge of the important questions they are now called upon to consider. Brooklyn members have also been chosen with regard to their special fitness. The representation from the Bronx and Queens is yet incomplete. The seventeen members so far appointed are: From Manhattan—Alfred E. Marling, chairman of the Mayor's Commission on Taxation; Lawson Purdy, president of the Tax Board; George T. Mortimer, president of the United States Realty Company; Otto M. Eidlitz, builder; Edward M. Hardy of the Board of Fire Underwriters; Walter Stabler, comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and Burt L. Fenner, architect.

From Brooklyn—Edward M. Bassett, chairman of the former Height of Buildings Commission; Edward C. Blum, merchant; Frederick B. Pratt, chairman of the Brooklyn City Plan Committee; George C. Whipple, sanitary engineer, and Frederick S. Tomlin, secretary of the Brooklyn Central Federated Union.

From The Bronx—Richard W. Law-

Three Great Terminals

The small user may take a chance on the cement he buys.

Big users don't.

There is too much at stake. They are building for generations to come.

They apply every recognized test. They insist that the cement be properly burned, properly ground, properly aged; that it be uniform; that the delivery be certain; that the cement manufacturer be thoroughly responsible.

The New York Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal, the Hudson Terminal Building, and the Bush Terminal Buildings are just three of scores of notable undertakings in which

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

TURN OF FIRST HALF OF YEAR SHOWS PRICES AT LOWEST LEVEL BUT DEMAND IMPROVING—CURRENT WHOLESALE QUOTATIONS.

Some Improvement in Sentiment Since First of the Year—Cement Shaded.

PRICES of building materials at the opening of the second half of the year show little change for current business from those ruling on January 1 in the metropolitan district. Quotations being made now for fall deliveries, however, are firmer to higher. This means that building material firms have expectations of better things to come. On the one hand, and that prices have reached their lowest wholesale level, on the other.

There was a chance of prices reacting further prior to the first of the month. Conspicuous departments in this regard were structural steel, Portland cement and common brick, but the improved demand for the latter and the relinquishment of equipment orders favorably influencing the former seem at present to have turned the tide in favor of more stability in these two basic building commodities. As for Portland cement, there is still considerable price cutting here which makes that commodity practically the only unsettled one in the whole supply list.

Aside from Hudson River common brick, Portland cement is the only industry supplying the building trade that has large stock reserves. Certain distributors declare that it is necessary to keep their mills going full and that to do this it is necessary to take strenuous measures to get business, hence the shading and granting of concessions. In the case of common brick, it is not obligatory on the part of manufacturers to sell their last year's left over product at prices below cost of manufacture. Therefore there is every reason to believe that Hudson and Raritan river brick have reached their lowest wholesale market price, especially since demand is improving.

Building supplies, like glass, paints and oils, floor dressings, hardwood trim and flooring, roofing materials, pipe and radiators are all in a more buoyant market. There are few concrete examples of heavier contracting on immediate deliveries, but there are innumerable instances where dealers and consumers have inquired for prices on subsequent delivery, especially covering fourth quarter movements. Timber is the first to find a firmer level and if the building movement continues to improve, as it recently has shown evidences of doing, common brick quotations will be firmer.

New building plans filed in Greater New York during the last week, compared with those of the week previous, follow:

PORTLAND CEMENT.

Unsettled Conditions Due to Keen Competition.

CONDITIONS in the Portland cement department of the building material market do not appear to be quite satisfactory. The current quotation is 90c mill. That makes the official price at dock in large quantities, this city, $1.58 a barrel. Some are quoting this price and are rigidly standing by it. Cement may be purchased below this figure, however. In most cases such purchases are made on back contracts. Under such circumstances quotations have dropped ten cents below the official price for the high grade products.

This instability of prices is unquestionably doing much to disturb construction work at this time. In practically all departments of the building material market prices are being held more firmly for early fall delivery in anticipation of improved building conditions then. Portland cement is practicaly the only basic commodity that is being cut, and there are instances where business is being taken at prices so near to cost as to leave little or no margin of profit.

Manufacturers do not seem to realize that price-cutting under the present circumstances unless on bona fide back contracts will result in making it difficult for them to get back to standard quotations when the market recovers from this present depression. Dealers naturally will cite precedence and consumers will be apt to stick out for the lower price, even when the market has regained its normal tone, as a condition for specification.

Conditions have reached a point in this market, it is said, where price cutting tactics may result in retaliation, unless a change of policy is speedily brought about by the cutters.

COAL.

Heating Fuel Contracts Crowd Distributors on Deliveries.

FILLING of contracts for fuel coal are keeping the distributors busy making deliveries for fall reserves. Commercial sizes of anthracite are only in moderate demand, but the supply coming here is not any too generous. Bituminous is easy. Prices are steady in both grades.

According to the advance reports received from the United States Geological Survey the production of anthracite in 1913, was in excess of all previous records by nearly a million tons.

Including the coal recovered from old culm banks and a small quantity dredged from Susquehanna river, the production of anthracite for the year was 81,718,680 long tons, valued at $195,181,127, compared with 75,322,855 tons, valued at $177,622,626, for 1912. This is an increase of over 6,000,000 tons in quantity and more than $17,500,000 in value. The previous highest record was 80,771,488 long tons in 1910. Anthracite miners and operators are now working under an agreement extending over a period of four years from April 1, 1912, and industrial peace is assured in the anthracite region until 1916.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

TO SIMPLIFY ADMINISTRATION OF LAWS

Pertinent Suggestions Made by Well Known Architect, Tending to Eliminate Conflict of Authority and Unnecessary Red Tape.

By JULIUS FRANKE

THERE is much criticism at the present time with the workings of the Labor Law as affecting the building industry, as well as New York City real estate. The criticism is due, first, to conflict of authority and the unnecessary cumbersomeness of administering the law affecting buildings, both old and new; second, because of the numerous "orders" and many inspections from different departments; and, third, the expense that property owners are being put to in remodeling old buildings to suit the new Labor Law.

At the present time the Building Law requires that all buildings of whatever nature, erected in the City of New York, must have plans filed in the Bureau of Buildings and permits obtained. This is a wise procedure. Past experience teaches us too much care cannot be exercised in the erection of buildings. Many lives have been lost due to collapse from reckless construction, and although there has lately been a meritorious agitation for fire-prevention measures, the danger from poor building construction should not be lost sight of.

Pertinent Suggestion.

There is no reason why the Bureau of Buildings cannot take charge of the proper construction of buildings to prevent the spread of fire, as well as of the proper construction of buildings to prevent collapse. The bureau has all the plans and records of old buildings, has the experience, and is, therefore, more qualified to take care of the fire-prevention subject as it affects buildings, than any new department which would require at least four or five years to get the proper men and accumulate the necessary experience to do what the present bureau could more efficiently and without additional expense, do; besides which, if other departments continue to have parallel jurisdiction, such as they have now, with the Bureau of Buildings in the matter of plan and construction, there is bound to be conflict of authority.

Should one department have exclusive charge of the construction of one class of buildings, and another department have exclusive charge of the construction of another class of buildings, there would be different standards of workmanship and materials. This would be confusing and uneconomical. If, on the other hand, the present system is modified so that the Building Department were to have exclusive charge of the construction, that is workmanship and materials only, and the Labor Department have charge of the planning of the building and exits, the dealings with these two departments on practically the same subject would lead to same misunderstandings, confusion and dissatisfaction that now exist, and would be little or no relief from the present unsatisfactory conditions of affairs.

Simplifying System.

Even the plans for tenement houses must, at the present time, be approved by the Bureau of Buildings. But they must be first filed and approved by the Tenement House Department before the Bureau of Buildings will consider them and give a permit. There is no sane reason for this. Whether a building be a tenement house, a factory, a theater, a lodging house, or any other kind of a building, the law affecting plan and construction should be explicit, and the Bureau of Buildings could readily, and without any additional expense, pass on all such matters.

The present justifiable movement for reform in factories originated from the lamentable catastrophe of the Triangle Waist fire. The lesson taught by that fire was not that the danger to the worker was from the construction of the building or its plan, but that it was from what I will designate as "house-keeping," meaning the management and arrangement within the building itself. This fire brought forth tremendous agitation, though it was afterwards discovered that the particular building itself was not at fault; still the impulse of that agitation has resulted in certain new laws affecting new buildings, and made necessary radical changes in old buildings.

Too Little "House-Keeping."

In the agitation following the Triangle Waist fire, undue prominence was given to building construction to prevent fire, and too little to "house-keeping." Most of the lives lost in the fire could have been saved. First, had the doors been unlocked; second, more would have been saved had the aisles between the sewing machines been wider and had there been more of them; third, had there been some systematic cleaning up of rubbish and proper storing of the inflammable material as soon as it came from the operators, still more would have been saved; fourth, there would have been no loss of life had there been no carelessness due to smoking; and, fifth, and lastly, there would have been no loss of life had there been sprinklers.

The present Labor Law, as well as the Tenement House Law, places too much responsibility on the owner of the building, and too little or no responsibility on the occupant or tenant. It makes the owner responsible for certain conditions due to the action of his tenant over whom he has no control, particularly on the question of keeping aisle space, having doors unlocked, keeping place free of rubbish, and last, but not least, keeping the place in a sanitary condition.

Carelessness of Occupants.

From the agitation against our fire-resistive buildings, one would imagine they were the worst in the world, when, in reality, there are none superior. On the other hand, the carelessness of the occupants, the way rubbish accumulates, and the way goods are stored and manufactured, or the "house-keeping" is, I believe, worse than in Europe. Given a building with all possible means of exit, lives will still be lost by fire, if the "house-keeping" is not proper.

The theory that "house-keeping" is of more importance than the building construction is accepted by an association of New England insurance companies, who will not insure a factory unless they are assured there will be proper "house-keeping," and this theory on their part is proving wonderfully successful in keeping down their fire losses.

I particularly dwell upon this to illustrate the fact that the activities of the Industrial Board, the Labor Department and the Tenement House Department should be in the matter of "house-keeping;" and the construction of the building itself, which in comparison is easy, can readily be taken care of by the Bureau of Buildings. The Industrial Board, the Labor Department and the Tenement House Department will have all they can do if they only take care of the "house-keeping."

Placing Responsibility.

To the Industrial Board and the Labor Department should be assigned the administration of the laws which deals with the conditions under which labor may be employed, such as safeguards about machinery to prevent accidents, ventilation to take off poisonous gases, dust, fire-drills, removal of waste and cuttings, smoking in factories, keeping the place clean, providing emergency rooms, toilet and washing facilities, hours of labor, overtime, and many other matters of this kind.

The Tenement House Department should relinquish the construction of tenement houses. This could be just as well done by the Bureau of Buildings as it has been in the past.

The exits of a factory should be proportioned to the number of occupants. Why should we assume that those working in a factory are more easily killed by fire than any other of the human species? I believe that the Labor Law, with few exceptions, in regard to new buildings, is about right. The real trouble is with old buildings. These old buildings should be treated separate and apart from the law for new buildings. In dealing with old buildings it must be borne in mind that new buildings soon become old ones, and to "order" radical and expensive changes to buildings that have been built in good faith within the law as it existed at the time is often unjust. If changes are deemed necessary, after careful and due consideration, they should be made generally over a term of years. Rather than order radical changes in old buildings, it would be better to limit the occupancy to a reasonably safe number on each floor.

Owners Get Many "Orders."

The property-owners of the City of New York have, for the last twenty years, been treated to more "orders" for changes to their buildings than have the owners of all the other buildings of the world put together. In spite of this it is remarkable that the property-owners of New York have been willing, and are doing so much and with good grace; but in regard to old buildings, I really believe they have been made to carry too great and unnecessary a burden, not only of expense, because of alterations, but continual annoyance due to the very "numerous orders."

In regard to new buildings there is not much that is new in the Labor Law that had not been provided by prudent builders. The principal points in the new law are sprinklers and the enclosing of stairways for certain classes of buildings, and these, due to the influence of the Underwriters and to obtain low fire insurance rates, were provided for most new buildings of the factory class, although not required by the present building code.

At the present time there is little or no criticism because of the Labor Law as it affects new buildings, except that the law as now administered is cumbersome and slow, resulting in loss of time by those erecting new buildings, and unnecessary extra expense to the city administration, because of the splitting up of the jurisdiction over building construction into many departments. Considering the cumbersomeness of the present system of administering the building laws, I would suggest that the administration of all the laws affecting building plan and construction be placed with the Bureau of Buildings.

Next, in order that there be an appeal from the decision of the Superintendent of Buildings on building matters, when he is afraid to use his judgment, that the Board of Examiners, which now, according to the Charter of the City, has power to review and reverse a decision of the Superintendent of Buildings, be enlarged, not only in regard to its membership, but also that its power be enlarged to take in the Labor Law and any other law affecting the construction or planning of a building.

Board Members Suggested.

I would suggest that the following organizations have representation on this Board: The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, the Fire Department, the Bureau of Buildings, the Industrial Board, the Department of Labor, the Society of Civil Engineers, the Society of Structural Engineers, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association, the United Real Estate Owners' Association, the Real Estate Board of New York and the Council of Real Estate Interests.

It would also be well worth considering the advisability of reorganizing the Industrial Board along the line of the Board of Examiners, i. e., by having representatives from the mechanical and ventilating societies, the Medical Association, the Board of Health and other similar societies, and possibly it might be well to put some on from the Chamber of Commerce and the Fire Department.

There is another provision in the Building Law in regard to what is known as "Unsafes," whereby in case the Superintendent of Buildings declares any building construction "unsafe" and in danger, and the owner of the property is dissatisfied, a survey is held, consisting of representatives of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, a representative from the Building Department and a representative from the owner. The decision of this Board must be complied with unless reversed by the Court, which is seldom or never done.

There is some similar arrangement to this in connection with orders issued by the Fire Department and the Labor Department, but the object of the law is nullified by making it mandatory on the part of the property owner receiving the notice to demand this survey within 48 hours after the issuance of the same, which is absurd, as many of the matters in connection with these orders are not immediately dangerous, like the collapse of a building due to unsafe conditions. This 48 hour limit should be abolished and no limit whatsoever should be set, but a limit should be set for the starting and finishing up of the work in connection with orders issued.

MANHATTAN AND BRONX SALES COMPARED

Table Compiled Showing Weekly and Monthly Totals for Six Months, Together With Corresponding Period Last Year

IN order that real estate brokers and property owners can get a clear idea of the realty activity since January 1, the Record and Guide prints a table showing the sales closed at private treaty and also the number of conveyances recorded in both Manhattan and the Bronx, together with comparative figures for the corresponding period in 1913.

The total number of private sales during the current year shows a considerable falling off, as compared with last year, but when the transfers as a whole are considered the figures about offset each other. In the Bronx the number of private sales and conveyances are almost exactly the same, which is rather remarkable when the large auction sales held last year, notably the Morris Park Race tract, are taken into consideration.

During the current year the sales in Manhattan showed a consistent monthly increase from January 1 to June 1, while during the latter month there was a slight falling off. This same condition existed in the Bronx. As far as the transfers the number recorded did not show the same consistent increase, the month of May, however, being the high water mark for both Manhattan and the Bronx.

May, 1913, witnessed the greatest realty activity for the first six months of the year, in both Manhattan and the Bronx. This is a natural condition and seems to follow the precedent established during former years. The market during the other months was spasmodic in character and showed considerable width of range.

The total assessed value of the properties transferred in Manhattan from January 1 to July 1 was $258,546,641, as against $264,807,422 during the corresponding period in 1913. There has been, however, a big falling off in the mortgages recorded, those put on record during the current six months totaling $69,007,819, as against $122,106,773 during the same period in 1913. In the Bronx the total for this year is $18,585,704, as against $24,-150,792.

ADVISORY COUNCIL APPEALS FOR RELIEF

More Trouble and Expense Threatened by Industrial Board—Hearings on Proposed Regulations for Fire-Resisting Materials.

THE Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, since its inception, has endeavored to have certain provisions of the Labor Law modified, and has done all it possibly could to reenforce the positions taken by its constituent organizations, particularly in impressing upon public officials and men of high authority in administrative circles, the necessity of complying with the moderate and reasonable requests made by real estate owners in this particular respect.

Through various sources this matter has been brought to the attention of Governor Glynn, and he has been so favorably impressed with the justice and reasonableness of the claims of the large property owners of New York City, that he publicly stated that those features of the law which have been somewhat distressing and obnoxious should be eliminated in the re-codification, or be changed in such a manner as not to be harrassing in their enforcement.

In the preliminary work attending the proposed re-codification, the chairman of the Advisory Council has been selected as a member of the Advisory Committee of the State Factory Investigating Commission, and will represent the Council upon three sub-committees of this Advisory Body. In addition, it is proposed that the Staff of Experts, which is affiliated with the Advisory Council, shall co-operate with the State Factory Investigating Commission in the work which it is now doing.

However, an anomalous situation has been created by the proposed re-codification of the Labor Law, particularly since the State Factory Investigating Commission has been forced to realize that the property owners of New York have been burdened with excessive and multifarious legislation. At the recent meeting of the Advisory Council many complaints were received from property owners to the effect that the Labor Department is now enforcing various provisions of the present Labor Law, which may be amended. Although there was no objection whatsoever to complying with these orders and regulations, the question arose as to whether these regulations might not be changed within the next six months, particularly since the State Factory Investigating Commission itself was planning to propose a number of changes. In order to obviate the difficulties that might arise from this situation, the Council decided to call the attention of the State Factory Investigating Commission to this condition of affairs.

Consequently, the Advisory Council is making a strenuous effort to relieve property owners of the expense and trouble that may prevail during the interim between the hearings of the State Factory Investigating Commission and the enactment of the proposed amendments to the Labor Law, and has written to Lt.-Governor Wagner and the State Factory Investigating Commission, through Hon. Cyrus C. Miller and Adolph Bloch, saying in part:

"Would it not be expedient to suspend or hold in abeyance the operation of those particular provisions of the Labor Law which your commission contemplates changing, and which will, in all probability, be re-drafted in accordance with your suggestions? By adopting this course, Real Estate owners will be certain that they will only be amenable to the Law, as it will be ultimately defined upon the statute books.

The Industrial Board of the State Department of Labor is proceeding with its duty of interpreting the Labor Law as if the Legislatures Factory Investigating Committee, headed by the Lieut.-Governor, were not engaged in revising the law. The presumption follows that the board expects to be invested with broad powers and that the rulings which are to be promulgated will survive. On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week public hearings were held on a number of important propositions at the office of the board in the Fourth Avenue Building, with Commisssioner James M. Lynch of Syracuse presiding, and Messrs. Flaesch of Unadilla, Cullen and Wertheim, members, and Secretary Williams present. The fact that the board was traversing subjects fully treated in local codes and ordinances was frequently referred to and as often disregarded. At one stage Commissioner Lynch impatiently exclaimed, "I have heard and read so much about the duplication of work that I have almost come to believe it."

"Where the State building laws come in conflict with the local building codes, which are the ones to be followed?" an architect representing the New York Society of Architects asked several times during the hearings, and each time he was put off with the remark by the Commissioner saying, "The matter is not relevant to the paragraph under discussion; the secretary will proceed," etc.

AN ANOMALOUS SITUATION is presented by the proposed re-codification of the Labor Law, which includes the State Fire Prevention requirements,and the sudden activity of the State Labor Department in framing rules for the enforcement of the existing law which by public opinion has been impeached as an unkind and unnecessary imposition upon real estate and manufacturing interests. Hearings were held this week by the Industrial Board upon proposed regulations for the construction and alteration of all buildings in which any amount of manufacturing, however small, is carried on, and upon other regulations for the construction and maintenance of elevators, which new rulings will supposedly supersede and nullify conflicting portions of the Building Code and Regulations of the City of New York.

New Fireproof Rules.

The most interest centered in the proposed rules defining fireproof and fire-resisting materials and describing certain specifications relating to construction. These rules have been long awaited, and do not come with the same force now that the State Factory Investigating Committee in public hearings went over the same ground only a few weeks ago with a view to revising the law on which the Industrial Board's rules are predicated.

The Labor Law in section 79-f, subdivision 2, requires the Industrial Board to specify what materials are fireproof materials and which materials, not being fireproof and incombustible, are fire-resisting material within the meaning of the law.

The law is (section 79-a) that all factory buildings hereafter erected more than four stories in height must be of fireproof construction, the roofs to be of incombustible material supported on arches of fireproof material. Here the Industrial Board comes forward with Rule 500, which tells how all roofs and floors shall be constructed. They may have segmental brick arches, terra cotta hollow tile arches, reinforced stone concrete arches, or (this is the important clause) any form of construction not less than four inches thick that shall have passed successfully the standard four-hour test from fire, load and water.

Fireproof Partitions.

Tentative rule 501 permits not only reinforced cinder and stone concrete, brick and terra cotta to be used in constructing fireproof partitions, but it welcomes any form of construction not less than four inches thick when safely supported that has passed a standard three-hour fire and water test.

Fire Doors.

Fire doors may be tin clad, iron or steel clad or composit or any form of door construction that stand a standard one-hour fire and water test. Fireproof windows may have frames of iron or steel or be metal covered, or of any other material that will stand a standard test.

Fire-Resisting Material.

For stairway enclosures rule 504 permits (a) any form of fireproof partition previously defined, (b) any form of construction that has passed a standard one-hour test, (c) wood studs lathed each side with metal lath and plastered with Portland cement mortar ¾-inch thick, (d) or wood studs filled in with mineral wool, asbestos, gypsum, or other similar incombustible material, plastered with Portland cement at least 1⅛-inch thick, or covered on either side with metal lath or wire netting and plastered with Portland cement ¾-inch thick, (e) or wood studs filled in with masonry and plastered with Portland cement, (f) or existing wood stud lath and plaster partitions stripped of all wood base or other trim and covered with No. 24 U. S. standard gauge metal lath on each side and plastered with cement mortar.

When Existing Partitions Are Acceptable.

Fire-resisting partitions, now in place, constructed in such manner and of such fire-resisting material, as have heretofore been approved by the local authorities exercising supervision over the construction and alteration of buildings, will be accepted when complying with the following requirements:

(a) Each side of existing partition covered with ½-inch approved plaster board protected by not less than 26 U. S. standard metal, both nailed to the woodwork.

(b) Each side of the existing partition covered with 2 thicknesses of ¼-inch approved asbestos board with staggered seams, provided that where in the opinion of the Commissioner of Labor protection is necessary against mechanical injury, such protection shall be provided.

(c) And in buildings not over 6 stories in height existing wooden partitions, double thickness, ⅞-inch board covered on both sides with 20 U. S. standard gauge metal, or with 26 U. S. standard gauge metal with lapped seams.

THE TAX DEPARTMENT AND THE CITIZEN

How Suspicion and Dissatisfaction Are Being Dispelled—Validity of Tax Liens Upheld—The Land Value Maps—Building Factors

A CASE of great importance to the City of New York has just been decided by the Appellate Division of the First Department. In several cases the validity of arrears of taxes on real estate have been attacked upon the ground that the description of the property was inadequate. In some of these cases the decision has been adverse to the city. In spite of these adverse decisions, Judge Guy, in a very carefully reasoned opinion, upheld the validity of a tax lien in the case of the Tax Lien Company against Bird. This decision of Judge Guy was rendered in 1913, and the Appelate Division has now affirmed it.

It seems that the courts have been misled by the theory that the assessment and taxation of real estate in the City of New York is the same as in a country town. Judge Guy carefully explains the difference. In the country town real estate is listed in the alphabetical order of the names of the owners, and the tax may be collected by a proceeding against the owner personally. In the City of New York the proceeding has for a great many years been in rem; that is to say, the lien of the tax has been valid whether the owner's name was correctly stated or not.

In the country, town land must be described by metes and bounds, whereas in the City of New York the land is properly described by reference to a tax map. The description by numbers referring to a tax map is far more accurate and is entirely adequate. Judge Guy held that this New York description by lot numbers is all that is necessary, and the numbers really import into the assessment roll a complete description by metes and bounds as shown on the tax map and such description of the improvements as may appear on the annual record.

These tax cases are often very technical, and the city is fortunate in having certain judges who have had experience as assistants to the Corporation Counsel, or have themselves at one time held the office of Corporation Counsel. Judge Guy's experience as Assistant Corporation Counsel, for part of the time in charge of legislation at Albany, is of the utmost value to the city now that he is on the bench.

Cooperation with Citizens.

In a letter which the Board of Tax Commissioners, through President Lawson Purdy, sent to Mayor Mitchel this week, it is said that one of the leading principles of this administration is the analysis of every official act and the publication of every detail in such form that every citizen may determine for himself the wisdom of the act and whether or not its performance is efficient. To an extraordinary degree all the work of the Tax Department is subjected to intelligent criticism by a very large number of people. There are over one-half million separately assessed parcels of real estate in the City of New York. The assessed value of at least fifty thousand parcels is examined by the owners or their representatives and compared with the assessed value of neighboring parcels. In this examination the assessed value of at least one million parcels is subjected to careful scrutiny. Besides this every parcel is under examination by the owner when he receives his tax bill. On the average, therefore, there is examination, comparison and criticism of the assessed value of every parcel of real estate in the city at least three times by as many different persons.

"It is the purpose of the Tax Department," says President Purdy, "to use this vast army of critics in the most effective way for the common good. The old heresy that still persists in so many places, which regards the assessor as an enemy and which leads assessors to view public criticism with doubt and suspicion, is ended forever. This Tax Department is no longer in the position of the regiment in hollow square with bristling bayonets extended toward the taxpayers. It no longer carefully conceals everything from the taxpayer but the final total assessed value. Every assessment is analyzed into its component parts. The land value is shown separately and the manner of computing the land valuation of each parcel is displayed in such manner that it can readily be understood.

The Record and Guide Land Value Maps.

"For the purpose of analyzing land valuation the department will publish on the first of next October a series of maps showing the value per front foot for lots 100 feet deep, of lots on every side of every square through the five Boroughs of the City of New York. The value of corner lots is influenced by the value of the intersecting streets, and the manner in which the value of every corner is determined appears upon examination of the unit values on the intersecting streets. In the suburban parts of the city where streets are not laid out, the value per acre is displayed upon the map.

"In order that these maps may receive the greatest publicity at a time when they will be most useful, a contract has been made with the Record and Guide, the leading real estate publication of the city, by which the Record and Guide is bound to distribute without charge a copy of the maps to every one of their subscribers and to sell them for one dollar apiece to every one who desires to purchase. The unit values to be published October 1 will be the tentative values fixed by the Deputy Tax Commissioners. There will be opportunity for persons interested to study the maps and then make application to the commissioners for reductions when the values are regarded as excessive.

Invited to Give Information.

"In order that the tentative valuations may be made by the Tax Department with the fullest knowledge, every taxpayer has been invited to give information concerning his own property or the property of others by the use of blanks provided by the Tax Department or otherwise. All persons having a knowledge of values have been solicited to submit their opinions of values, especially by marking a page of the land value map with the units they regard as proper in every case where they believe the units for 1914 were either too low or too high.

Block Numbers.

"In the Boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn the location of property upon the land value maps is rendered easy by distinguishing the various blocks by numbers. The maps for Queens and Richmond will be greatly improved by the use of local means and by the numbers of the plots or districts or blocks, as the case may be, into which they are now divided. It has been difficult in these two boroughs to make locations because the block system could not be extended until such time as the topography of the streets may be settled by the Board of Estimate. This difficulty will be overcome in large measure by the use of the numbering system referred to."

PAUL STARRETT'S BUILDING.

New Structure, Opposite Public Library, to Typify Last Word in Modern Construction.

It is expected that work will soon be started on the twenty-story office building, 6, 8, 10 West 40th street, opposite the New York Public Library for Paul Starrett, president of the George A. Fuller Company, 111 Broadway, which has the general contract to erect the building. The structure will possess every improvement and will be fireproof to the finish. The lower stories are to be of limestone with bronze trimmings; the upper stories, of face brick with terra cotta trimmings.

The unique feature of the building is that it will be finished in design and carried around on all four sides. There will be five high-speed passenger elevators. The layout of the floors is so arranged as to be especially advantageous for high-class office use. Gold win Starrett & Van Vleck, 45 Union square, are the architects. The cost will exceed $500,000 and with the cost of site will represent an investment of more than $1,000,000.

PROGRESS IN SUBWAY CONSTRUCTION

Chief Engineer's Report to Public Service Commission—More than Half the System Under Contract, Representing $140,000,000 in Material and Labor.

THE construction of the greatest rapid transit system in the world—the Dual System in New York City—for operation by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, is progressing most satisfactorily, according to the report of Alfred Craven, Chief Engineer of the Public Service Commission for the First District for the month of June, 1914. The city, acting by the commission, now has $126,414,036.27 worth of new subway and elevated work going on in the several boroughs.

Of this total $67,208,248.84 is on lines for operation by the Interborough Company and $59,205,787.43 on lines for operation by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. Under the Dual System agreements the city is pledged to contribute about $164,000,000 toward the construction of city-owned lines, so now more than two-thirds of this total has already been placed under contract.

It must be borne in mind, however, that some of the contracts in this total are to be paid for by the Interborough Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, which pledged $58,000,000 and about $14,000,000 respectively, toward the construction of city-owned lines. The total city contribution, therefore, is considerably less than this total. In addition to the work on city contracts, the New York Municipal Railway Corporation has about $4,000,000 and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company about $10,000,000 worth of work under way; so that in round numbers there is all told about $140,400,000 in contracts now completed or under way. The estimated total construction cost of the entire Dual System is about $273,000,000, so it will be seen that more than half of the system is now under contract.

There are now employed by the contractors on the various sections of the work 12,517 men. The commission expects to see this vast army nearly doubled in the course of the next few months, when work is begun on several contracts that have recently been awarded.

Interborough Lines.

The Seventh Avenue Subway extends from a connection with the existing subway at the Battery to another connection with the present subway at Times square. It is under contract for the entire distance, and work is now going on in Greenwich street, West Broadway, Varick street, Seventh avenue extension and Seventh avenue. Work at the two connection points has not yet begun.

East River Tunnel.—This tunnel extends from Old Slip, Manhattan, to Clark street, Brooklyn, and will be connected on the Manhattan side with the Seventh avenue subway, and on the Brooklyn side with the existing subway and the Eastern Parkway branch of the same. The contract has been let to Booth & Flinn, Ltd., and the O'Rourke Engineering Construction Company for $6,469,916.25. Frederick C. Noble, division engineer of the commission, who was connected with the building of the present East River tunnel, will have supervision of the construction work on this tunnel, as well as on the New York Municipal tunnel.

Lexington Avenue Line.—This subway is under contract from 43d street and Lexington avenue, Manhattan, up Lexington avenue to and under the Harlem River and beyond on the western branch to 157th street and River avenue and on the eastern branch to 138th street and Park avenue. Actual construction work is under way from 53d street north, work on Section No. 7, extending from 43d to 53d street, not yet having been commenced. Work on the Bronx extensions of this line is well under way, that on the Jerome avenue branch extending from 157th street and River avenue, up River and Jerome avenues to Woodlawn road; and that on the Southern Boulevard and Westchester avenue line extending from 138th street and Park avenue, through 138th street and Southern Boulevard to Whitlock avenue. The elevated portion of this extension through Westchester avenue to Pelham Bay Park is not yet under contract.

White Plains Road Extension.—This line is an extension of the existing subway from its present terminus at Bronx Park through White Plains Road to 241st street. It is entirely under contract, and work is proceeding all along the line.

Steinway Tunnel.—The Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company has the contract to fit this tunnel for temporary operation. Work is now in full swing, and should be completed by the first of next year.

Astoria and Corona Lines in Queens.—The work on the Astoria line is reported this month as completed. Work on the Corona line and the Queensboro Bridge section is progressing, the Corona line now being about half completed. The Interborough will operate its trains over these lines, and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation will have trackage rights over both lines also, and it will be possible for that company to send its Broadway-Fourth avenue subway trains over the Queensboro Bridge and out to Astoria, Corona and Flushing.

Steinway Tunnel Extension.—Work is going on in this extension rapidly. This extension will connect the Steinway tunnel with the other Queens' lines at the Queensboro Bridge Plaza.

New York Municipal Railway Corporation's Lines.

Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, Subway.—This subway is practically completed from the Manhattan Bridge through Flatbush avenue extension, Fulton street, Ashland place and Fourth avenue to 43d street. Work on the extension, from 43d to 86th street, is about half done. The reconstruction work at 36th street, to provide for the Coney Island connection through 38th street, is now under way. The commission has awarded the contract for the installation of tracks in this subway, and it is now advertising for bids, to be received July 10, for the construction of station finish work. The New York Municipal Railway Corporation, in anticipation of placing this line in operation about the first of the coming year, has placed orders for 100 new steel cars.

New Utrecht Avenue Line.—This line which will connect the Fourth avenue subway with Coney Island is entirely under contract, and work continues to go on rapidly.

Sea Beach Line.—This line is to be built and paid for by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. It leaves the Fourth avenue subway at 65th street and runs through to Coney Island. It will be mainly a depressed railroad with four tracks. The contractors employ about 700 men on this work, and it is progressing rapidly.

Broadway, Manhattan, Subway.—This subway runs from Morris street and Trinity place, Church street, Vesey street, Broadway and Seventh avenue to 59th street, across 59th and 60th streets to the Queensboro Bridge and over the bridge to a connection with the new rapid transit lines in Queens. It is now under contract from the southerly terminus to Broadway and 38th street, and the commission is now advertising for bids, to be received July 24, for the section in 59th and 60th streets from Seventh to Second avenue. Actual construction work is now in progress as far north as Broadway and 26th street. The contract for the construction of the section between the southerly terminus of this line and the proposed tunnel from Whitehall street, Manhattan, to Montague street, Brooklyn, has also recently been awarded. Work is going forward rapidly.

Canal Street Subway.—This line will connect the Broadway subway with the Manhattan Bridge and the Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, subway. The contract has been awarded to the Underpinning and Foundation Company, but has not yet been executed.

East River Tunnel.—This tunnel extends from Whitehall street, Manhattan, to Montague street, Brooklyn, and will be connected on the Manhattan side with the Broadway subway, and on the Brooklyn side with the Fourth avenue subway. The contract has been let to Booth and Flinn, Ltd., and the O'Rourke Engineering Construction Company for $5,974,809.50. Frederick C. Noble, division engineer of the commission, will also supervise the construction work on this tunnel.

Broadway-Myrtle Avenue Connection.—The construction work on this line has been completed, and the track-laying is now about 80 per cent. done.

Lutheran Cemetery Line.—This line will be an extension of the Myrtle avenue elevated railroad to Lutheran cemetery. It will be built and owned by the company. It is now reported as about 95 per cent. completed.

Liberty Avenue Extension.—This is an extension of the Fulton street, or city line, elevated from its present terminus at the Brooklyn boundary line, through Liberty avenue, Queens Borough, to Lefferts avenue, Richmond Hill. Work is now under way.

THREE-STORY PIERS.

Their Cost Would Be Out of Proportion to the Requirements.

The question of the advisability of building city piers three-story high in order to give them greater capacity than double decked piers has been much discussed in the past, and has drawn out widely divergent views. The Commissioner of Docks and Ferries, Hon. R. A. C. Smith, was asked by the Record and Guide if three-story piers would so increase docking facilities as to solve in any degree the water front problem of congestion, and he said in reply:

"Without attempting, however, to speculate upon the effect on existing conditions as a result of erecting three-story piers, I might say that the primary objection would be the item of cost of construction as affected by the demands for adequate foundations.

"The bottom conditions are so variable and adverse, that the cost of foundations for a three-story structure extending out into the river on a pier with its wind exposure and leverage conditions under exposure to wind and impact of vessels, combined with uncertain character of bottom, ranging from soft mud through every possible formation to solid rock, would be out of all proportion to the essential docking requirements in the matter of cost."

Restriction and regulation are threatening to take the place of the liberty with which the fathers once endowed this country.

Designating the City Investing Building as a factory because it contains a tailor shop is one of the absurdities of the State Labor Law.

The passenger traffic of the Long Island Railroad steadily increases from year to year, being considerably larger this year than last, in spite of the high cost of tickets.

Governor Glynn has told us what the State means to do to make amends for the over-regulation of buildings, but Mayor Mitchel has not yet told us what the City has in mind to do to reduce the inspection pest.

More new real wealth will come from the phenomenal crops than from any freight rate decision. Our agricultural products this year will reach $11,000,000,000 in value. While there may be a closer scrutiny of commercial credit than usual, money is cheap for approved enterprises, and the U. S. Treasury will see that there is plenty for moving the crops.

Brooklyn builders are taking more interest in high-class apartment work than ever before. Plans for 126 such structures were filed during the month of June. Brooklyn's record for plans filed during the current year for all kinds of new buildings is 31 per cent. over the record for the corresponding period last year. Queens had a gain of 120 per cent. in June over the same month last year.

Excess Condemnation for Sixth Avenue Extension.

In every scheme which has been made for the reformation of the street plan of Manhattan, the extension of Sixth avenue has been associated with the extension of Seventh avenue. Both of these avenues were laid out to end in a blank wall and were deprived of their proper value in the street system of the city because they were not thoroughfares—because they had never obtained an outlet to the south which enabled traffic originating in the district to the south or seeking some goal in that district—a convenient route to travel. It has not usually been proposed, however, to open up a wholly separate outlet for Sixth avenue, which would be an extremely expensive thing to do. Practically all the plans which have been drawn to bring about this improvement merely opened up a connection between an extended Sixth and the lower extension of Seventh avenue. That is what the present movement proposes to accomplish; but two alternative methods are proposed to bring it about.

One of these plans provides for the extension of Sixth avenue to Carmine street, and the widening of Carmine street to its intersection with the new Seventh avenue. The other plan provides for cutting a straight avenue through all the blocks, which separate the lower end of Sixth avenue to Fourth street. The first of these plans would not cost very much money—not much over $1,000,000. The cost of the second would be very much larger, and would might well equal the cost of extending Seventh avenue. The city would, however, be compensated for the increase in expense by an increase in utility. This plan would open up a district, whose development is now injured because of its deficient means of street communication with the rest of the city. It is, consequently, the plan favored by the Central Mercantile Association, which is the local organization of West Side Merchants.

In placing an estimate on the relative merits of these two plans a great deal depends upon the point of view from which the plans are considered. If the interest of the whole city is taken into account, it looks as if the first and cheaper plan should be adopted. It is certainly desirable that lower Sixth avenue should be connected by a thoroughfare with the district to the south; but it is also desirable that the connection should be made at the minimum possible cost. The city's debt limit is almost reached. Sixth avenue is not very valuable for traffic purposes. It is a narrow avenue, encumbered with an elevated road, and vehicles avoid it in case there is another available route to their destination. The advantages of opening it up and connecting most efficiently with the district to the south of it are rather local than general, and if any considerable expense is to be involved that expense should be paid for by the property which is chiefly benefited by the improvement.

This proposed extension of Sixth avenue seems to present an admirable opportunity to put the principle of excess condemnation into practice. The benefits of the improvement are chiefly local. It ought to add considerably to the value of the real estate lying immediately along the line of the proposed new street. In this particular case of an unusually large amount of sheer waste would be avoided by the application of the new method. The plan of the new Sixth avenue, which is favored by the Central Mercantile Association, affects about two hundred parcels of real estate and would bring into existence many irregular pieces of property which would not be available for profitable improvement. If the city were to condemn about 100 feet on both sides of the line of the improvement and after the work is finished sell the property off to builders in plots, as large as a builder would need, it would reap a sufficiently large profit to pay for the expense of the work and save a wholly unnecessary loss to the city. Real estate in this neighborhood is cheap, and after the expense of the improvement, when added to the lots, the value of the land would still be low compared to other no worse available parts of Manhattan. It is very much to be hoped that the Board of Estimate will use this chance to try out the method of excess condemnation.

A Covent Garden for New York.

It is an extraordinary comment on the vicissitudes of real estate, even in a most prosperous and growing community, that it should now be seriously proposed to establish a market in 23d street. For thirty years lots abutting in 23d street were considered to be the choicest and best established retail property in Manhattan; and it would almost certainly have remained so in case manufacturing industry had not invaded the territory immediately to the south and driven out the retail stores on lower Broadway and Fifth avenue. The only two important shops still transacting business in this neighborhood have recently announced their intention of moving—viz: Brooks Bros. and Arnold & Constable. Almost all of its better stores have already deserted 23d street, and it looked as if the vacant space would have to be filled by wholesale and manufacturing establishments. But now it is proposed to establish, in the building formerly occupied by Stern Bros., a market, and it seems strange that property which has been vacated by the retail trade, should be considered available for a market.

And the circumstance is not less strange, because it is a very exceptionally high-class market which it is proposed to establish. The idea is to reproduce Covent Garden in New York and to sell a high grade of food-stuffs at a comparatively low price. The plan provides for about sixty booths on the first, second and third floors. Each of these booths will occupy considerable space, and will give to the dealers an opportunity of attractively displaying his wares. The first floor will be devoted to general provision dealers, the second chiefly to groceries, and the third to household furnishings. The fourth floor will be occupied by a large public restaurant, with a seating capacity of 2,500, while the roof will be covered with a canopy of glass and will be converted into a new kind of greenhouse and aquarium, where fish and fowl and birds and all kinds of horticultural products will be sold.

It will be seen that the proposed enterprise has been ingeniously and carefully planned and will start under conditions which should afford to it every chance of success. The only question is whether the location is sufficiently well adapted to the purpose. The attempt to select a thoroughly satisfactory location must have been difficult, because a central location was needed for the convenience of customers, while at the same time the more central the location the more it divided the market retailer from the source of his supplies. It would also have been exceedingly difficult to obtain a sufficiently large site in an expensive retail district. Such being the difficulties, 23d street looks like a possible compromise. Its chief disadvantage consists in the lack of an express station on the new subway in its vicinity. If possible a site near such a section on the Broadway and Seventh avenue lines should have been selected.

Unnecessary Laws.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Merchants' Association of New York is fully in sympathy with the purposes of a Labor Law and it desires to co-operate with the commission and its counsel in amending the existing law.

The provisions of the present law relating to the construction of new buildings, the maintenance and alterations of existing buildings, also as regards fire prevention and sanitation should, however, exempt the City of New York, or cities of the first class, which have already been delegated with functions for this purpose and should not be operative in this city through the Labor Department. The various city departments covering these matters have had jurisdiction for years, and to put provisions in the State law as regards this city covering what is already attended to by the authorities has led, and will in the future, lead, to hopeless confusion and duplication.

It will be useless to have our Building Department prepare, and our Board of Aldermen adopt, a new Building Code if this is to be superseded by a Labor Law Code. It will be useless to have our Sanitary Code and our Board of Health, in this city, if the Labor Law is to take precedence in our factory, mercantile and office buildings.

The people have been more and more strenuously demanding and the Legislature recognize 'home rule,' as expedient and necessary in large cities, and we cannot endorse or support any backward step to be taken in this direction.

We fully appreciate and agree that the working people need protection, in various ways, and that there are various sections in the Labor Law that are not taken care of by the City Departments, and these should be left under the present jurisdiction. Also, in many places in the State there are no adequate building codes, etc., and the Labor Department should have jurisdiction there.

We consider that the definition of a factory is unduly broad and that it includes any and all buildings, or any part of a building, in which one or more persons are engaged at labor.

We also insist that mercantile establishments and office buildings in the City of New York must be governed by the local authorities. If the Labor Department should have jurisdiction over these structures, why not give them our docks, our theatres and places of assemblage, our tenements and our homes, in all of which are employed one or more persons at labor.

We feel that the commission should consider the rating or classification of factories and factory buildings under the law, and make different requirements for occupancy, contents, height of buildings, or style of buildings, to say the least. Hazard conditions far more generally have their root in inflammable contents than in structural defects, and the surest way to prevent loss of life is to prevent the spread of fire where inflammable contents are present, by checking it in its incipiency.

We feel that the law has overlooked the simplest and most effective means for protection of life; that is, the general use of automatic sprinklers, which, if installed, would make unnecessary expensive structural changes called for in the law and to which objection has been so general.

A building should be rated by its condition of contents, occupancy and structure, and if these create a fire hazard, certain improvements might be required, but first of all, and before calling for structural changes, fire prevention should be considered and a premium put on that, for it is a great hardship if owners are to comply with orders, from the Fire Commissioner of the City to install sprinklers, and in addition be compelled under the Labor Law, to make structural changes the reason for which would be entirely eliminated by sprinklers. Rigid distinctions must be made between the occupant or the operator of a factory and the owner of the structure, for in many cases it is impossible for an owner of the structure to exercise any control over the tenant.

Janitors and the Compensation Law.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The enclosed correspondence, of which I have the original at this office, may prove interesting to the owners of tenements who are in doubt as to how their janitors are affected by the Workmen's Compensation Law. While the reply of the commission is rather "wobbly," it tends to show their idea of the situation. Yours very truly,

HENRY BRADY.
262 West 23rd street

The correspondence referred to comprises a letter of inquiry from Mr. Brady to the Workmen's Compensation Commission of No. 1 Madison avenue, as to whether a janitor of a cold-water tenement house comes under the jurisdiction of the Workmen's Compensation Law; also a janitor operating a steam-heating plant, but doing no repairs in the tenement.

The answer of the commission through Secretary Frank A. Spencer was that "While we do not feel that this commission can properly be asked to make rulings or interpretations, except in concrete cases coming before it for decision, nevertheless we would say in reply to your inquiry that a janitor of a cold-water tenement house would not come under the law. If he operates a steam plant, he would come under the law. Please understand that the above is not to be taken in any way to be binding upon this commission, but to be merely an informal expression of opinion. We take pleasure in sending you a copy of the law."

Let the Children Play in the Lots.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Real Estate Board wishes to bring to general attention a plan in which it is co-operating with the Safety First Society. It is desired to secure for the use of children, who otherwise are compelled to play on the dangerous city streets, such vacant land as owners are willing to lend for that purpose. This board's committee, composed of Messrs. Lawrence B. Elliman, Albert B. Ashforth and Frederick D. Kelley, is desirous of aiding the work as far as possible, and is asking members of the Real Estate Board, and others, to allow the use of their vacant land for this purpose.

This board at the outset raised this question: "What liability would owners incur for accidents happening on land so loaned"

The Safety First Society took this matter up with Park Commissioner Cabot Ward, who in turn has secured from Corporation Counsel Polk an opinion that the city assumes all responsibility.

The questions asked were substantially these: Would the owner of the lots be responsible for possible injury to a child while at play? Would play attendants be necessary? Would the city incur further obligations to protect the children? What particular protective steps should be taken?

Mr. Polk's opinion, on file in this office, is in brief that the owners of lots would not be liable for a child's injury while at play if there is no defect or construction in or upon the land in question; that the owner of the lot might have a paper writing making it plain that in so loaning his property he relinquishes all control thereof so long as it is devoted to playground or recreation uses; that there is no necessity for play attendants unless the large number of children at play, or the character of the play accessories, seem to warrant it; that the city will incur no additional obligations to protect the children if the grounds are free from defects and properly adapted for use as playgrounds.

While, however, the Real Estate Baord gives this summary of the Corporation Counsel's opinion for the benefit of those who naturaly will be interested on this point, it also advises as follows: Those who are willing to loan vacant land for playground purposes should secure themselves by obtaining from the Park sommissioner or other proper city authority a statement in writing to the effect that the city releases them from all responsibility and from liability for damage claims in case of accident while land so loaned remains under the jurisdiction of the Park Department.

It is hardly necessary to emphasize the importance of this plan for playgrounds, and co-operation of those able to help is earnestly asked.

Those who desire to help are asked to notify this board at once, stating the exact location of the land, so that the necessary details may be arranged at the earliest possible moment.

RICHARD O. CHITTICK,
Executive Secretary.

How to Root Out Anarchists.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The recent bomb explosion on Lexington avenue forces to the front the pertinent question: To what degree are real estate values jeopardized by the presence of anarchists? A clause in insurance policies provides that the companies shall not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection, etc., or by explosions of any kind.

It is well known that there are certain classes of occupied premises upon which it is difficult to secure mortgages, because of the character of the inmates. Insurance companies, fearing the bomb-throwers, will not write policies on houses occupied by them when exposed. If all policies should be so written as to preclude the right of an owner to house any one known to have anarchistic tendencies, the spread of that kind of population might be preventedfl

Who Is to Blame?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of July 4 is a letter from Thomas U. Slocum, president Wholesale Drygoods Centre Association, in which he states, that the association has been successful in checking the uptown movement. This may be so—to a certain extent. His statement that, "Real estate brokers interested in uptown property are trying again to artificially organize an uptown movement, is in all fairness, to say the least, inaccurate and inappropriate. By "uptown movement" I interpret he means the midtown section (say 23d to 59th street). Expressed in other words, he means the "honeycomb of transit facilities."

This is the section where downtown New York is moving to. Not from choice—and not on account of artificial stimulus by interested brokers. Simply on account of the business centre shifting nearer a radial zone.

The Pennsylvania and New York Central stations, the Steinway tunnel, the Queensboro Bridge, the Subway connections across 42d and 59th streets, the building of the large piers at the foot of 46th to 56th street, are all bona fide-permanently anchored propositions.

I am only mentioning some of the important compelling causes that have forced large business interests to seek this location. The moving is done in self-protection,—to be near all these facilities which have clustered around there: the department stores, hotels and places of amusement. They want to be where the city lives and throbs.

Another genuine reason for the uptown movement, combined with the above, is the need of modern buildings. These are lacking in the lower part of the city and are now being erected by people progressive enough to supply what is in demand. That is, new buildings with areas large enough to meet the requirements of modern business. It was acknowledged in a public statement by the head of the large drygoods firm recently in difficulties, that the downtown firms were suffering on account of the business moving away from that section and that the old firms remaining were losing ground.

It is a hardship for many downtown property owners, and business firms that things have so shaped themselves, but it illustrates the old truth, time and tide wait for no man. You can't blame the brokers.

NATHAN L. OTTINGER.
900 Seventh avenue, July 6.

Procrastination is the besetting sin of lawyers, which tends to explain but not to excuse the delay in handing down the rate decision case. There ought to be more quick-thinking practical men on the board.

REALTY MEET.

Greatest of Its Kind—1,500 Delegates and Visitors at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh.—Real estate men from all quarters of the United States and Canada opened the seventh annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges in the assembly room of the Hotel Schenley Wednesday morning. Every train arriving in Greater Pittsburgh that day brought its quota of the 1,500 delegates present. It is by far the most important as well as the largest convention of its kind ever held anywhere in America.

Charles L. Simpson, of Kansas City, president of the organization, voiced the sentiment of most of the members of the association, when in his opening address he recommended that real estate experts be employed by the government in appraising the lands owned by the railroads, expressed opposition to fraudulent advertising and advocated a uniform conveyance law in every State in the Union. These issues, with an exclusive listing system, are matters in which Pittsburgh real estate men are vitally interested. They believe it is best for one dealer to handle listed properties exclusively.

Real Estate Business Becoming Specialized.

President Simpson further said:

"A recommendation of the growing importance of the handling of real estate as a profession has been made by the various colleges, which have established regular courses for the study of the most scientific methods of city building.

"We are already beginning to specialize as to the particular branch of real estate for which we consider ourselves best fitted. The specialist in business property, in 99-year leases, in suburban platting, in farm lands, in high-class residence districts, in cottage homes, in switch properties, in factory sites and in rentals, each has a distinct business of his own, although under the head of real estate.

"It is remarkable how soon a man's specialty is recognized by the general public, and the time is already here when a man who gives his attention to developing residence districts is not expected to know all about factory sites, even in his own city."

Many interesting displays are being made in the corridors of the hotels and especially at the Hotel Schenley.

Three Pittsburgh men welcomed the delegates to the city. The City Solicitor, Charles A. O'Brien, represented Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong; David P. Black, vice-president of the National Association, and H. P. Haas, president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, spoke.

Schedule of Real Estate Convention.

Wednesday.

2.30 p. m.—Contest for Chicago Real Estate Board silver trophy cup in assembly room, Schenley Hotel. "Five-minute talks."

8 p. m.—Fort Pitt Hotel, "A Night in Bohemia." A get-to-gether good time with unexpected and unusual surprises for all delegates and ladies.

Thursday.

9 to 9.30 a. m.—Question Box Leader, Thomas Shallcross, Jr., Philadelphia, vice-president National Association.

9.30 to 10 a. m.—"The Backbone of a Real Estate Board," R. Bruce Douglas, Milwaukee.

10.30 to 11.30 a. m.—"Advertising and Salesmanship." Hugh Chalmers, president Chalmers Auto Co., Detroit.

11.30 to 12 noon—"The Relation of a Real Estate Board to a Community," Roland B. Woodward, secretary Chamber of Commerce, Rochester.

12 to 12.30 p. m.—"Sign Board and Newspaper Advertising," Albert H. Wetten, Chicago.

12.30 to 1 p. m.—Reports of committees on national legislation, State legislation and commission rates.

1.30 p. m.—Luncheon meeting of stockholders of International Realty Associates. Luncheon conference of all secretaries.

8.30 to 10.30 p. m.—Lawn concert at Schenley Hotel by Pittsburgh Festival Orchestra. Direction Carl Bernthaler.

For the election Saturday there is more than usual activity. A committee on nominations, with V. H. Surghnor, of Chicago, as chairman, has been named by President Simpson to bring in nominations, but some of the delegates are anticipating the customary routine, in one instance at least. Philadelphia's delegation of 100 is vigorously booming Thomas Shallcross, Jr., vice-president of the association, and president of the Philadelphia real estate board for national president.

The delegates from the Lake city of the Keystone State were dressed in white flannel suits, tan shoes and straw hats and made an impression when they marched into the convention room.

Sixth Avenue Extension.

The hearing appointed to be held by the City Plan Committee of the Board of Estimate on Thursday, July 9, was postponed indefinitely.

New York County Register's Report.

In the first semi-annual report of Register John J. Hopper there is one item that should be of special and gratifying interest to the taxpayers of New York. The receipts of the Mortgage Tax Bureau for the six months, January 1 to June 30, amounted to $1,705,195.94, the highest revenue in its history for a similar period. By arrangement with banks and trust companies, Mr. Hopper received interest on daily balances which netted the sum of $8,728.59. The salaries of the bureau officials for six months aggregated $5,649.96, or $3,078.63 less than the interest allowed. It will thus be seen that not only is the Mortgage Tax Department of the Register's Office self-sustaining, operating without cost to the city and county, but adds something also toward the reduction of taxation.

The Legislature of 1910 imposed on the Mortgage Tax Bureau the duty of collecting the half of one per cent. from corporation bonds issued prior to July 1, 1906, in amelioration of personal taxation, and the receipts from this source are included in the total above stated. Monthly receipts vary—February with $960,803.15, and April with $432,773, being the largest, and May with $56,567.26 the smallest. During the half year $649,092.90 was transferred to the City Chamberlain, including the interest received from the various depositories, leaving $1,125,031.18 to be apportioned with other counties of the State.

It should be explained that this apportionment involves an immense amount of detail. For instance, if the New York Central Railroad issues trust mortgage bonds covering its property from New York to Buffalo, each county through which its tracks are laid is entitled to a percentage of the tax levied on such bonds in proportion to the assessed property values in the different counties. The Register of New York must ascertain the exact sum due each State division before any payment is made and before he can report to the State Board of Tax Commissioners. The same rule applies to corporations other than railroads.

In the General Administration, during the half year, there were recorded and examined 77,620 instruments, producing $55,405.93 in fees.

Plate-Glass Insurance.

At odd times plate-glass insurance companies have encountered a form of competition from without insurance circles that, while it lasted, was annoying if not effective. Individuals have attempted to undertake as such by some form of agreement to indemnify the party of the second part against loss or damage to plate glass, and when the matter has been brought to the attention of the authorities they have been compelled to discontinue such practices. Along these lines an opinion recently given by Attorney-General Carmody at the request of the Insurance Department is of interest.

The decision holds that any company incorporated under the business corporations Laws of New York to purchase, sell and exchange window and plate glass and to repair and replace the same, and which enters into agreements for such purposes, engages in the insurance business and therefore comes under the supervision of the Insurance Department and the insurance laws of this state.

One form of contract has been adopted by such corporation which closely resembles the ordinary plate glass insurance contract, the principal difference being that no money indemnity is promised, but the Attorney-General holds that it does not make any difference as it is not necessary that the indemnity should be in the form of cash settlement, the replacement of the broken glass being sufficient indemnity or protection.

The plate-glass insurance companies are naturally pleased with the decision as it in all likelihood will put an estoppel upon the organizing of any such corporations for such purposes and leaves the field free to companies properly operating under the insurance statutes of the State.

INDIVIDUAL HOMES.

The Quest for Them Has Extended Into the Country.

The changes in neighborhoods and the expansion of the residential area of the City of New York, form part of the interesting real estate phenomena of this generation. No longer are there any private dwelling neighborhoods for the middle class on Manhattan Island. Apartment houses are the habitat of this part of the population in the Bronx as well as Manhattan. The dwellings of the upper West Side, and the upper East Side adjacent to Fifth avenue, are occupied by the comfortably wealthy and the rich of the city's population. Costly apartment houses have been interspersed with these buildings in more recent years and there is even a tendency for good dwellings to make way for more fine apartment houses. Even the rich yearn for modern apartments in preference to dwellings in many cases.

Apartments are for two classes, the rich and those comfortably off. The poor occupy the tenement houses. No longer are private dwellings in medium neighborhoods, such as were visible in Manhattan fifteen years ago and previously. A private residence in the borough is now a luxury.

The fashionable part of Manhattan is not limited to Fifth avenue and its environs any more; it has spread so widely as to capture neighborhoods previously occupied by families of moderate incomes and the homes of the latter have made way for the costly apartments and private homes; but, very few of the latter are being built. It is to be noticed that many apartments are beyond the financial pale of the moderately well-to-do.

Dwellings of the old types in the neighborhood of Fourth, Lexington and Sixth avenues are either making way for business buildings or their attractiveness for quiet residence is gone. Even the old Ninth Ward is being eliminated as a quiet home part of the city.

More and more are persons of moderate means renting apartments in the Bronx and in Brooklyn. The latter borough is more and more in demand for apartments and two-family houses. Few new private dwellings are being built in Brooklyn.

Queens is rapidly building up with one and two-family houses; but, the borough yet awaits a complete street system, and, the latter is one of the costly processes of municipal development in Queens. The Long Island Railroad gridirons the borough and the elimination of grades of streets crossing the railroad means an enormous outlay. It also means years of work and municipal legislation.

In the meantime the middle class who desire individual homes and cannot obtain them in Manhattan are looking even beyond Brooklyn and Queens into Nassau County, without the boundaries of the city. Here is the permanent detached home district of the metropolis; which has been tied up to it by railroad improvements and trolley road construction.

There is no other suburban territory of New York that has lain fallow as Nassau county has until very recent years. Every other area is practically built upon. As a result the growing middle class of Manhattan are finding in the level stretches of Nassau county homes and home sites at prices commensurate with their means.

There is probably no city in the world with such an immense surrounding suburban territory as New York; and, Nassau county real estate is coming into stronger demand by the logic of location.

Washington Heights District.

At the meeting of the Local Board the following resolution was adopted:

Laying out the change in the grade of Laurel Hill Terrace from West 181st street to Amsterdam avenue at about 188th street. The plan proposed raises the grade of Laurel Hill Terrace approximately six feet above the established grade and reduces the grades of the intersecting streets between Amsterdam avenue and Laurel Hill Terrace from 8 per cent. to about 5 per cent. The change is recommended by the Consulting Engineer.

Westchester.

Paving with sheet asphalt on a concrete foundation (permanent pavement), the roadway of Kerega avenue, from St. Raymond avenue to Castlehill avenue. Change of grades for Unionport road between Morris Park avenue and Rhinelander avenue.

EFFECT OF TROLLEY LINE.

System Connecting Manhattan and Jamaica Brings Communities Into Closer Touch.

One of the factors which have had a beneficial effect on real estate values in Queens county and the central and western parts of Nassau county since the first of the year is the new trolley road now in operation between the Manhattan end of Queensboro bridge and the Long Island Railroad station in Jamaica. The fare is five cents and it is only since this road has been in use that Jamaica has been accessible by trolley from uptown Manhattan. Previously anyone bound to or from Jamaica had to travel on the Long Island Railroad at thirty cents for a single fare and fifty cents for a round trip. The distance is ten miles and the running time by the trolley is forty-five minutes.

Central and southern Nassau county feel the beneficial effect of new transit contact. The trolley road between Floral Park and Hempstead and Ja-

Hempstead is only ten miles east of Jamaica and just beyond the city line. Being the oldest community in Nassau county, its character is determined and its advantages are known. It has long been connected by trolley with points along the south shore of Nassau county and with the Brooklyn elevated railroad.

The company operating the new trolley road between Manhattan and Jamaica is the Manhattan and Queens Traction Corporation. It has been open to traffic since last February. Based on the number of passengers carried on the new trolley road in the month of May the operating company will have estimated annual earnings of $270,000.

Salem Facts.

Fourteen million dollars was the total fire loss at Salem, and ten million was the total insurance. The only building of importance within the fire limit not destroyed was the Salem electric light works. The main building was practically uninjured, due primarily to superior construction and wireglass windows. The flames burned up sprinklered with unsprinklered buildings without distinction. The local dwelling house mutual insurance companies are badly hit, the Holyoke mutual with $250,000 and the Salem with over $100,000. They have a surplus of $560,000 and $49,000, respectively, which makes it obvious in the latter case that steps must be immediately taken for it to remain in business.

The spread of the fire among dwellings is charged against shingled roofs.

Current Coal Prices.

For the year ending March 31, 1915, the following schedule of coal prices has been adopted by local dealers. There is a classification of buyers made, which comprises families, apartment houses and factories. The price varies more or less in each instance, being a little higher in case of a private family than for an apartment house or for a factory on account of the greater quantity sold to the latter.

For July the apartment house prices are as follows: White Ash, broken, $6.20 per ton; White Ash, Egg and Stove, $6.45; White Ash, nut, $6.70; White Ash, pea, $4.85; Buckwheat, $4.10, and Red Ash, stove and nut, $7.20. Commencing June 1 to and including September 1, there is an advance of 10 cents per ton over the April and May prices for Broken, Egg, Stove and Nut coal. There is an additional advance of 10 cents per ton made on December 1, to cover a part of the extra cost of winter delivery. For deliveries north of Tremont avenue in the Bronx, the Manhattan companies charge 25 cents per ton extra for the larger haul. These prices cover storing in the bins.

What Is a Tenement?

There was never a time when the necessity for the work of the Tenement House Committee was so forcibly illustrated as during the legislative session of 1912. Had not this committee been on guard, the whole fabric of forty years' successful effort at housing reform would have been completely destroyed.

Out of a clear sky, in the middle of February, the Court of Appeals handed down a decision which at one blow swept away practically the entire structure of the tenement house law, and rendered ineffective the work of the Tenement House Department.

That court took the unexpected position that an "apartment house" was not a tenement house, "if each family had its separate kitchen, its own toilet conveniences, and a separate set bath tub," and was therefore not subject to the requirements of the tenement house law, but practically free from all regulation as to light, air, ventilation, cleanliness, occupancy and the rest. This was the attitude of the highest court in the State in the Grimmer case.

How far reaching and revolutionary this decision was, becomes apparent upon a moment's reflection:

Every new-law tenement has its separate kitchen; its separate toilet conveniences are made compulsory by law; and in over 80 per cent. of them each family also has its "separate set bathtub." Thus at least 80 per cent. of the city's new-law tenements, in which over a million and a half people live, would be at once withdrawn from the protection which the law affords; and similarly by slight changes, thousands of older houses could have been made to escape all legal regulation.

The Tenement House Committee at once sprang into the breach. Immediately upon being informed of the decision, Mr. de Forest, Mr. Veiller and Tenement House Commissioner Murphy were in active conference; and a plan of action was developed, which resulted in remedial legislation being obtained.

$6,500,000 Mortgage.

Further particulars of the recent sale of the block front on the west side of Broadway, between 35th and 36th streets, a plot 211x207x81, were made known by the passing of title on Thursday by Charles E. Johnson to William H. Barnum and William Everdell, Jr., under the name of the 1337 Broadway Corporation. The transfer was made subject to two mortgages aggregating $6,500,000 at 5 per cent. One, for $1,500,000, is a building and permanent loan to the Thompson-Starrett Company, which has the contract to erect the twelve-story building, and the other, for $5,000,000, represents a purchase money mortgage, which falls due in ten years, to Mr. Johnson, the seller. Clinton & Russell, architects, will design the plans for the proposed improvement, to be started on May 1, 1915, and which will involve an investment of about $8,000,000. William A. White & Sons and F. & G. Pflomm negotiated the transaction.

The Fire Prevention Tangle.

(From a statement by Mayor Mitchel.)

In the Fire Department there are great questions of organization, but the principal work that is before Commissioner Adamson and his associates is the work of fire prevention. I am convinced that we are making satisfactory progress in this field. The work is new and their are many tangles to be straightened out, particularly in matters of duplication of inspection.

I said during the campaign that I proposed to untangle, if I could, the complications of inspection work which no doubt often seem unnecessarily annoying to property owners. The State Factory Commission, other state authorities and various city departments are working together in this matter. Commissioner Adamson has already simplified inspections by arranging with the borough presidents to have the Bureaus of Buildings in the several boroughs examine plans for Fire Department requirements. Before this change plans were examined separately by the Bureau of Buildings and by the Fire Department. This is the kind of simplification that means economy and greater convenience to the public.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

When all is said and done the cry of hard times seems to be overdone if the figures of the recent Tax Department report are to be taken as a criterion. The immense value and stability of New York City real estate can be realized when it is considered that 545,094 parcels of taxable realty are assessed, for 1914, at $8,049,859,912, exclusive of exempt property. This indicates an increase of $43,212,041 over 1913, despite the fact that in several sections of the city substantial reductions in assessed valuations were made. The losses in those districts of the city which suffered by the steady northward advance of business was offset by the increase in the benefited sections.

Another important uptown removal reported this week affected a large millinery firm, which, after an occupancy of over a quarter of a century leaves the old millinery center around Broadway and Bleecker street. The firm took new quarters in the midtown section in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal. Further north business which has been encroaching on hitherto exclusive residential blocks has penetrated into the street which contains the Vanderbilt and Untermyer mansions.

This whole section shows an increase in assessed values of about $20,000,000, indicating that while the owners may have been affected by the increased traffic and noise due to the creation of the commercial establishments, they have not been injured financially by the trade invasion.

Strenuous efforts are being made by the Wholesale Drygoods Center Association to preserve and unite the old drygoods district in the vicinity of Worth street. While several firms have moved away, a number of leases in the district have recently been negotiated.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 17, as against 32 last week and 21 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 6, as compared with 11 last week and 10 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 11, as compared with 21 last week and 11 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 124, as against 189 last week, 11 having stated considerations totaling $271,325. Mortgages recorded this week number 98, involving $8,444,946, as against 111 last week aggregating $2,703,140.

From the Bronx 4 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 25 last week and 8 a year ago.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient"

—or, at least, it should be to the wise, foresighted builder, architect or realty owner.

Our "Word" is this:—

¶ Don't neglect to install GAS PIPES when you are building. Don't wait until the structure is completed, and you are looking for tenants.

¶ No building is really modern nowadays unless it has an ample supply of gas for every purpose—manufacturing, cooking, lighting, heating, etc.

¶ You never know when a prospective tenant will insist on being assured of adequate gas facilities for his needs before he will move in.

¶ If you have to tear out walls and rip up floors to install gas pipes, you will find it a costly and wasteful proceeding.

ELECTRIC SUPPLY FOR LARGE BUILDINGS

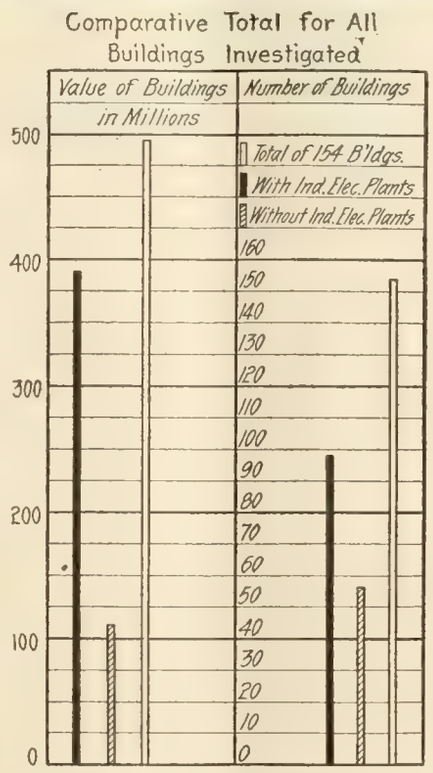
By CHARLES MEIGS RIPLEY, Electrical Engineer, New York City.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.



PROMPTED by curiosity, I personally inspected the premises of 154 large buildings in New York City, in order to determine which of these bought electricity and which had private electric plants in the building or near by. The list comprised privately owned buildings, valued at nearly half a billion dollars, and averaging more than $3,000,000 each, the smallest one being rated at $475,000. Obviously this list excludes municipal, governmental, and other buildings immune from taxation.

The values of the "Power Plant Buildings" being set down in the left hand column, and those of the "No Power Plant" buildings being placed in the right hand column. Attention is called to the fact that the Biltmore Hotel buys its electricity and heat from the New York Central Service station, nearby. This service station supplies all the buildings over the railroad tracks, with heat and electricity including the Grand Central Station, Grand Central Palace, and other structures in the group. This whole district covering more than a dozen city blocks has been converted into a model "Spotless Town," since coal and ashes are handled from one building only—and this all done below the level of the street.

An Interesting Conclusion.

It will be noted that those types of buildings which have the greatest number of hours of active service also show the greatest popularity of private electric plants. Conversely those buildings which have an intermittent service show the greatest popularity of the outside electric current.

Duluth Convention.

All indications point to the Convention at Duluth on July 14 to 17 as being the greatest gathering of skyscraper interests ever held. The program has been exceptionally well selected and embraces many prominent speakers of national reputation, among whom are Franklin N. Wentworth, secretary of the National Fire Protection Association, Boston; E. W. Doty, of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio; Simon Straus, of S. W. Straus & Company, bankers; F. Robertson Jones, of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau, New York; Don O. Lawder, prominent journalist; John N. Hall, Emery Estate, Cincinnati; Allen D. Albert, editor Minneapolis Tribune, and others.

Several of the leading operators of New York have indicated that they will attend including George T. Mortimer, vice-president of the United States Realty Company; John C. Knight, manager of the Metropolitan Life Building, and W. H. Class of the Geo. R. Reed Company. The executive committee extends a cordial invitation to any one interested in the building or operating of central property.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Fire in Center of Water.

KEEPING a fire blazing when surrounded by water is a problem that has been successfully solved according to information that has reached the boiler trade from scientific sources.

Science has for years been trying to find a way to conserve the great quantity of heat that ordinarily goes to waste up the chimneys. To do this some means had to be obtained to get away from direct draught of the chimney. With the fire in the midst of the water every bit of heat must be used in water heating. This is accomplished by arriving at a suitable mixture of gas or oil and air. To start the flame the tank is first emptied and the vapor fuel forced in through a pipe that ends in a nozzle pointed downward. The vapor is lighted, making a roaring torch flame shooting downward in the middle of the tank. Then the tank is partly filled with water until the surface of the water is well above the nozzle, entirely covering the flame, which is left in an air pocket. The vapor fuel, of course, must be forced in at some pressure to prevent the water from putting the fire out. The water is soon boiling violently, making steam for running engines, etc. The steam, mixed with the gas from the burning fuel, is led into a separate tank, which serves as a storage bin for the steam. Scientists say that the device is simple and practicable and that before long commercial boilers utilizing this principle will be on the market.

Proof of Lighting Service.

IT is easy enough to point to a meter and say that the lighting bill is in strict accordance with the reading of the instrument, but it is not so easy to prove that the tenant's complaint that the quality of light he got was below normal is without grounds. To put into the hands of building managers operating isolated plants a means of making sure that he is giving to his tenants the requisite amount of illumination, Foote, Pierson & Company, of 162 Duane street, have introduced the device illustrated herewith. It is about ten inches long and weighs three pounds and is known as the Sharpe-Millar photometer. The device measures light anywhere, indoors or on the street, and serves as a check on errors under all circumstances.

The Poidometer.

COST accounting has reached the point where every little leak has a meaning all its own in the amount of profit taken out of a job. In times like these competition makes extra burdens risky and for that reason the Poidometer, a device for weighing materials in transit, has more than an ordinary appeal for those handling large quantities of material.

The device is made by the Schaffer Engineering and Equipment Company of Tiffin, Ohio. It weighs and regulates the flow of materials in transit in a continuous stream in a conveyer. It can be attached to a hopper, bin or elevator spout and delivers the material in any predetermined quantity at a regular flow. Furthermore, it records the amount of material handled, regardless of changes in specific gravity, amount of moisture or size of materials. It has a special value on reinforced concrete jobs where materials have to be apportioned with precision. In mixing concrete, or any other batch where many mixtures are compounded, three machines will deliver the predetermined quantity for a proper and continuous mixture unfailingly.

Home Fireplace Heats Garage.

SUMMER is the time when the subject of winter heating systems should be considered so that whatever improvements are made will be ready for the first September chill. For that reason a system of heating wherein the open grate fire or furnace in the basement of the house may be made to heat the private garage in the rear is worthy of attention, especially since it has been successfully introduced by James D. Prior, of the Empire Works, Birmingham, England.

The system involves a patent heater bearing the name of its inventor, James D. Prior, which is fixed at the back of the fireplace or furnace. This absorbs the heat that ordinarily is wasted in transit up the chimney. This heat is transmitted to a hot water system which is carried by insulated pipes to the garage, conservatory or servants' quarters if they are in buildings outside of the main house. It is particularly applicable to buildings situated in the country.

Paint Peeling From Brickwork.

SEVERAL reasons are given by painting authorities for paint peeling from brick work. When paint is applied too soon after repointing, the lime in the mortar destroys the oil in the paint by saponification. The process of peeling may be recounted as follows:

Peeling invariably begins at the joints. Here the mortar, if fresh, or improperly mixed, had a chance to blister or saponify the oil in the paint. First there is a slight abrasion, then an open wound in the paint film. The first rain permits moisture to creep into the brick pores behind the protecting coat and in winter freezing forces off other parts of the paint over the brick itself. In summer the action of the sun on the wet surface draws the alkalies in the lime or cement mortar joint and soon loosens the paint from the brick surface. If bricks are greasy when laid up, paint will not adhere well to them. If the paint is applied over a coat of soot, so thick as to form an absorbent blotter for the paint oils before they reach the brick texture, peeling also is likely to result. It is not wise to use paint weak in oil properties on brick work, for the absorptive powers of the brick require more oil than wood or metal does.

New Hydraulic Syphon Urinal.

NOVEL features are embodied in a new type of urinal being introduced by the Monumental Pottery Company, of Trenton. Instead of the usual line of stalls ranging along the wall the full height of the wainscoting, there is a sort of vitrified white clay trough as shown in the cut. It has a sanitary integral back, concealed brackets and clean floor, a feature that will appeal at once to sanitation experts. The arrangement is such that perfect drain is afforded.

Hardening Cement Floors.

IRON dust mixed with Portland cement when dry, prior to being made into concrete, has been found to have the property of adding wonderfully to the wearing ability of concrete floors. It is a 95 per cent. ingredient of a new material that is soon to be put on the market. It may be added to the dry cement in the proportion of 15 to 25 pounds to each 100 pounds. One part of the mixture is used with two parts of sand.

New Building Pile.

AN Austrian engineering company is making a building pile of wood, with a plain or reinforced concrete cap to protect the portion above ground-water level, where decay is likely to develop. The ordinary wooden pile is driven in the usual way until the upper end projects about three feet above the ground, when a steel shell or pipe is fitted to the top, and a steel wedge, in the form of a ring or a star, is driven into the wood to make the pile fit the casing closely. The pile is then forced down still further, the shell being filled with concrete when the desired depth is reached. For lengthening out piles, a short connecting pipe is used, and two wedges—one inverted—are made to expand the end of the lower section and that of the one placed upon it, the lengthening pile being then driven in the usual way. After two years under a heavy stone building, the concrete-capped piles have shown no sign of deterioration.

Rotary Oil Feed for Boilers.

HERE is a distinct novelty in boiler firing, consisting of a system of oil feed, but the jets rotate under the boiler, giving a hotter heat and at the same time causing even distribution. Through the courtesy of the Pacific Builder and Engineer, an illustration of the principle of this device is published. It is known as the Fess system, of which W. C. McTarnahan, of 67 Marion street, Seattle, is vice-president. He explains its operation as follows:

"We burn crude oil. The burners are set in under the boiler as shown in the illustration. In the case of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's building in Portland, Oregon, the boilers were installed for heating purposes and consisted of two return tubular boilers, 135 horsepower each, and an auxiliary upright boiler for hot water, the first two being of the high pressure type. In operating these boilers neither compressed air nor steam is used for feed pressure, but instead, the distribution of the air and oil is accomplished by the centrifugal motion of the rotary burner in the firebox.

"This results in the atomization of the oil in particles so small as to be practically an oil vapor so that perfect combustion is obtained when it is fired. In the installation referred to there is a 1½-horsepower electric motor stationed at the entrance to the firebox of each boiler. The motor operates the rotary burner, situated within the firebox, the motion being imparted by means of a shaft and double gear.

"The burner operates on the principle of a centrifugal fan, atomizing the oil as it is discharged from the veins in the perimeter of the revolving head, and at the same time discharges into the firebox the volume of air required for combustion.

"Through a worm reduction gear a rotary pump is operated by which the requisite amount of oil is drawn from the oil tank. Each boiler and its oil-burning equipment constitutes an individual unit, capable of being started at a minute's notice with a cold boiler and cold crude oil. These burners do away with smoke in fireboxes and flues."

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Comparative Table of Plans Filed in Five Boroughs Since January 1st — Brooklyn Shows Increase in Dwellings.

ACCORDING to the revised figures of the Building Superintendents of the five boroughs, the first six months of 1914 closed with $71,201,890 to be expended, as compared with $78,119,637 for the corresponding six months of 1913. The number of new plans exceeded those filed in 1913 by 135. In Manhattan the decrease specified cost over last year was $9,776,195, numbering 117 buildings, the falling off being chiefly in dwellings costing between $20,000 and $50,000 and over; also hotels, stores and lofts, costing more than $30,000 and public buildings, places of amusement.

In The Bronx the decrease was 146 buildings, costing $5,368,614, showing that fewer brick apartments costing more than $15,000 are to be erected. Brooklyn, which leads the five boroughs, shows a substantial gain over the same period of last year, 364 buildings being projected to cost $5,971,434, the increase being in one and two family brick dwellings, tenements, costing between $20,000 and $50,000, and stores with two-family apartments. In Queens there is an increase of $2,175,541 in the amount to be expended, but a falling off of 48 buildings. Richmond shows an increase of 82 more buildings than last year, with $80,087 more to be expended.

The following tables show the number and estimated cost of new buildings and alterations for which plans were filed according to the revised figures of the Building Bureaus, after allowing for the plans withdrawn and revised.

There is every promise of a better building record for the coming six months of this year. The Benenson Realty Company, Benjamin Benenson, president, contemplates the erection of several apartments with stores in the vicinity of Brook avenue and 169th street, Bronx, from plans by the Tremont Architectural Company.

McDermott & Hanigan, Inc., builders, 103 Park avenue, have plans for three apartments on Summit avenue, north of 162d street. The Valhalla Corporation, 3153 3d avenue, will soon start work on rebuilding the west side of Valentine avenue, north of 183d street, The Bronx, with five-story apartments. The 175th street Holding Company, David Zipkin, president, two six-story apartments at the northwest corner of Audubon avenue and 175th street; the F. M. & S. Corporation, two six-story apartments at the northeast corner of Audubon avenue and 170th street; The Horatio Realty Company a twelve-story apartment at the southeast corner of Park avenue and 54th street; The 48th Street Company, Henry Claman, president, a six-story apartment at 355-359 West 51st street, and William Emerson, of 281 Fifth avenue, a six-story apartment at the southeast corner of Eleventh avenue and 53d street; The S. O. Construction Company, Barney Saltz, president, will erect two five-story apartments at the northeast corner of Crotona Parkway and 176th street; The Phelan Brothers Construction Company, two five-story apartments on the north side of 182d street, between Valentine and Ryer avenues; Hubener & Escher, of Melrose avenue and 156th street, two five-story apartments at the southeast corner of German Place and 157th street; the Angel Construction Company, 1228 Hoe avenue, a five-story apartment on the west side of Intervale avenue, south of 165th street, and the Mason Construction Company, Hyman Glic, president, two five-story apartments at the southwest corner of Tinton avenue and 150th street.

William Street Subway Contract.

The Public Service Commission on July 9 adopted the form of contract for the construction of Section No. 2 of Route No. 48, being a part of the William street branch of the Seventh avenue subway in Manhattan, and transmitted it to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for its criticisms or suggestions. Section No. 2 begins at a point in Beekman street about 62 feet west of the westerly building line of William street, and curves thence under private property into William street, and extends southerly under William street and Hanover square to Pearl street, where it will connect with Section No. 3 of the same line, which comprises the East River tunnel. As soon as the contact is returned by the Interborough Company it will be put in permanent form by the commission and bids will be advertised for.

Colgate & Co. Plan New Factory.

Colgate & Co., manufacturers of soap and perfumery, contemplate the erection of an extension to their plant at Jersey City, N. J. The proposed building will be used as a soap factory and warehouse and will be built in Greene street, between York and Grand streets. Reinforced concrete will be the material used in construction. The building will be eight stories in height and will cover a plot 100 by 200 feet. The project will include the laying of about 600 feet of single track for railroad sidings. Tentative sketches are now being made by the engineers of the company and it is expected that operations will be started as soon as plans can be completed.

New Brooklyn Bank Building.

Renwick, Aspinwall & Tucker, architects, 320 Fifth avenue, New York City, have completed plans for a new banking building, to be erected at the southwest corner of Smith and Livingston streets, Brooklyn. The structure will be for the Provident Loan Society of New York and will be built of granite, brick and terra cotta. It will be one story in height, covering a plot 44 by 60 feet. The estimated cost is $85,000. The general contract has been awarded to C. T. Wills (Inc.), 286 Fifth avenue.

Building Gain.

The June report to Bradstreet's Journal covering 122 cities, published today, shows a tendency toward improvement in that earlier unfavorable monthly percentages of decrease were cut down. The total expenditures for these cities for June were $71,573,386, as against $73,209,830 in May and $74,025,741 in June, 1913. There is shown a decrease of 3.3 per cent. from May and of 2.2 per cent. from June last year, with 66 out of 122 cities showing gains and 56 reporting loses. The six months' building aggregates show a decrease of 8.7 per cent. from the like period a year ago.

New Hotel for Asbury Park.

Preliminary plans have been started by E. C. Benner, architect, Appleby Building, Asbury Park, N. J., for a hotel which the Ocean Hotel Co., M. J. Prentice, 22 Ocean avenue, Asbury Park, contemplates building on Asbury avenue. The operation will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000. The building will be of hollow tile and stucco on steel frame, six stories in height, 120 by 200 feet, with a three-story annex 50 by 50 feet for servants' quarters and garage. There will be 225 bedrooms, 70 with baths attached. It is not likely that work will be started during the present season.

Greenwich Y. M. C. A. Awarded.

Jacob A. Zimmermann, 18 East 41st street, New York City, has recently been awarded the general contract for the erection of the Greenwich, Conn., Y. M. C. A. Building. This structure, which will cost more than $200,000 is the gift of the Nathaniel Witherell Estate. The plans and specifications were prepared by M. L. & H. G. Emery, architects, Bible House, New York City.

This 20-story office building, embodying the best in modern practice, has rented over 80 per cent. of its marketable space since January. Edison Service supplies all light and power. This has permitted the renting of valuable floor area which a private plant would otherwise occupy.

Handicapping Building Operations.

Under the Tenement House law no one is allowed to build a tenement containing a room which has less than 70 square feet of floor space and no room may be less than 7 feet wide. Therefore, while it is unlawful to construct a room 6 feet 10 inches by 11 feet, it is lawful to construct a room 7 by 10 feet, which is smaller.

This may seem like a harmless feature of the law, but it is a very serious matter in Brooklyn, where the normal width of lots is only 20 feet. There are thousands of these lots for which three-family houses would be a most logical improvement, but they are practically unusable and unsalable because of the expense and difficulty of complying with this law.

The present law forces the construction of large tenements. It creates congested conditions, and yet from the standpoint of good government and good morals, the fewer families under one roof the better.

This destruction of property values cannot be continued much longer with impunity. The city will soon find that notwithstanding its new subways, its borrowing capacity will disappear and many public improvements will be delayed for years.—Judson G. Wall.

Want An Express Station at 59th Street.

Resolutions passed by the Citizens' East Side Improvement Association, of New York, at the meeting held June 22:

Resolved, That recognizing the justice of this important locality's claim for the best of transit facilities, the Citizens' East Side Improvement Association, heartily concurs in the demand for an express station at 59th street and Lexington avenue, on the Interborough route; wherefore, it calls upon the Public Service Commission to give consideration to the absolute need of an express station at that point.

Resolved, That, this association endorses, unreservedly, Bridge Commissioner Kracke's plan to take for a bridge plaza, the block between 59th and 60th streets, Second and Third avenues, and it urges upon the Board of Estimate to put an end to the long pending uncertainty in this matter, and to the consequent injustice to all property thereby affected.

Proposed Memorial to Alfred Noble.

A committee appointed at a recent meeting of the Board of Direction of the American Society of Civil Engineers, consisting of Messrs. T. Kennard Thomson, chairman; Charles Warren Hunt and J. H. Edwards has reported that, in the opinion of the committee, a memorial to Alfred Noble is desirable, and should be undertaken by this society, and should be on no small scale. The committee suggests that the civil engineers of the world be asked to subscribe to the funds for this purpose, and that the memorial take the form of an appropriate bronze statue to be erected in some suitable place.

First Subway in South America.

The first section of a new subway, said to be the first in South America, has just been completed at Buenos Aires, and opened to public service. This subway is double-tracked and equipped with cars of the most modern construction. The stations are distinguished by varying color schemes, as are those now in use in the Washington street subway in Boston.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

HOW PRICE CUTTING AFFECTED THE COMMODITY MARKET AND VALUE OF CONSTRUCTION DURING FIRST HALF OF YEAR.

Prospective Operations Total $94,450,000. — Plan Filings.

PUBLICATION this week of the results in the half year's building construction field and of statistics showing the volume of important operations scheduled to come out between now and January first, give the first intimation to building material interests in the metropolitan district of the trend of the market, both on current demand and future inquiry. Incidentally it explains why quotations on futures are stiffer while present lists are shaded.

The mere fact that in Greater New York alone prospective building operations, for which plans have been filed and finances arranged, in excess of $100,000 in value each, run to $94,450,000 on July 11, as compared with $61,300,000 on January 1; $61,000,000 on July 1, 1913; $56,000,000 on January 1, 1913; $54,000,000 on July 1, 1912, and $64,000,000 on January 1, 1912, gave a stimulus to material inquiry that was unexpected at this time.

If there are any who doubt the improvement in building that has been reported from time to time in these columns, verification may be found in the statistics for the half year just closed, showing what New York has been doing in construction work. In that time there were 6,098 new building plans filed, as against 5,963 for the same period last year, a gain of 135. The value, while $6,907,747 less than in the corresponding period last year, may be accounted for by great cuts in material prices and by the absence of many large operations.

Value of operations, generally speaking, are of less importance in comparing statistics of this sort than volume, because the latter illustrates general employment, while the former might indicate sporadic building activity. For instance, there might be a $13,000,000 building operation filed and in progress, but it would not mean as much for general building activity and demand for materials as 130 buildings each valued at $100,000.

Statements from the larger East Jersey communities regarding building operations for the first half just closed show practically the same ratio between volume and value as New York. Incomplete figures show a slight improvement in number, but with lower values. May developed in Newark, Jersey City, East Orange, Bayonne, Elizabeth, Paterson and Hoboken $2,113,000 in building construction. That was the total cost of the 264 buildings reported as having had plans filed in that time. During June the filings showed 309 buildings contemplated with a value of $194,908,000. In the first half of the year plan filings for East Jersey showed a total of 2,117, with a value of $16,936,000, as against 1,877 in the corresponding period last year, with a value of $21,003,000.

These statistics clearly show the effects of price cutting and proves that building construction costs have been lower during the half just closed than they were during the corresponding period last year. The commodities that have been cut the lowest are common brick, now off about $1.50 a thousand over normal wholesale quotations, Portland cement, brands of which are being shaded ten cents on the barrel, spruce, pine, hemlock have dropped a dollar to three dollars over lists ruling a year or two ago; and structural steel from ten to fifteen cents below normal quotations; glass, hardware, hardwood, roofing material and supplies, all are far below prices ruling in 1913. It is the answer to laid-off mill and yard hands, extended credit and ruinous competition. Mills have stocks that they are willing to sacrifice and the foregoing statistics show that those who have had money to build with during the last six months have had a golden opportunity.

But the pendulum has swung over about as far as it can go and the rebound gives promise of being long, steady and persistent. During the summer quotations will probably remain low, but on fall construction there undoubtedly will be a firmer tone at least.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the week ending Friday, 3 p. m., compared with those reported last week, follow:

| | Week Ending July 3 | | July 10 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | No. | Value | No. | Value |
| Manhattan | 7 | $184,450 | 5 | $610,000 |
| Bronx | 14 | 409,000 | 14 | 323,000 |
| Brooklyn | 124 | 624,000 | 126 | 1,045,750 |
| Queens | 152 | 545,545 | 102 | 438,605 |
| Richmond | 26 | 33,495 | 30 | 29,752 |
| Total | 323 | $1,796,490 | 277 | $2,447,107 |

IRON AND STEEL.

Freer Railroad Buying Encourages Building Orders.

IF the railroads continue to come into the market for steel as they have been doing with slowly increasing freedom during the recent past, there is reason to believe that building orders will begin to come out with less reservation than has been the wont of specifiers since the first of the year. Some steel mills are reported as having shown some improvement in current business taken and there are instances where increased capacity has been employed. Equipment orders are not yet as encouraging as mill men wish, but this kind of business always follows that for plates and rails. Then follows bridge material, in which classification building orders are placed.

Fabricators in the local district are still grappling hard for new business, but there is a larger inquiry and more figuring is going on. Here and there are found instances where operations are being deferred, but for the most part the tendency is to place business at present prices for deferred delivery where possible. The steel interests are less inclined to take this sort of business, however, than they were a month ago. Current or thirty-day deliveries from stock are moving out at current quotations and some late summer deliveries have been arranged on the basis of 1.26 to 1.31c, but when it comes to third-quarter business greater reluctance is being shown.

June fabricating orders are expected to show a moderate total as compared with other months this year, despite low prices and concessions, but the reasons when sifted, may be found in the fact that fabricators, like many other distributors of building materials, have not been able to take as much paper in lieu of cash for work done as some building operators would have liked them to take. It has been extremely difficult to get this sort of paper discounted to meet payrolls and overhead charges and contractors have held that with quotations as low as they have been ruling they could not be expected to carry securities in their safe and organizations on their bank accounts pending the filling of the building with tenants. Hence much business has been turned down.

LUMBER.

Spruce Improving—Demand for Lath Moderate—General Conditions Firm.

SPRUCE had a better June than May. The prospects earlier in the year were so unpromising that many of the Eastern mills began to look about for easy outlets, for even if the price was not higher, it was felt that the buyers in the territory usually supplied by the Eastern spruce mills would be unable to absorb the full product of these mills.

Mills on the Canadian side particularly have been canvassing the foreign field thoroughly, with the result that much Canadian spruce has found a market in Great Britain, and much more will go to the West Indies. This line of action has resulted in reducing the volume of stock to be dumped upon this market, and as a result there is a distinctly better tone, though the market is not quotably higher.

Good random cargoes from the East are quoted at a range of $22 to $24, and the smaller dimension stuff, particularly the 2x4 random, brings $21 to $23. West Virginia spruce is still dull and druggy, though the gains in actual selling prices quoted one month ago have been maintained. Sales are not being made yet at the full West Virginia list, but the market is clearly back to within $1 to $1.50 of the full list on all items, and in view of the fact that concessions from the list two months ago ranged from $2 to $3 the situation today is considered quite hopeful.

SUPPLIES.

Hardware Trade Slightly Better—Confidence Still Weak.

HARDWARE and similar building supplies have entered the second half of the year with a little more firmness as to prices, but confidence is still shaky. The result is that buying is of the hand-to-mouth order, as far as building requirements are concerned. Discounts are still liberal for cash business, but the general rule is for long-term credits, which is not an especially good sign, as far as prospective stability is concerned, according to well informed interests in the trade.

Radiator concerns continue actively in the pig-iron market and equipment interests, like architectural ironworks, fire-escapes manufacturers, etc., are keen competitors for business and are shading quotations extremely low. They are cautious buyers of raw materials, too.

Window glass continues to show some improvement, although trade is spotty. There is a big gain for a week or two and then comes a discouraging slump. It is quoted here at 90 and 20 per cent. discount on single thick and 90 and 25 per cent. discount on double thick from jobbers' list.

COMMON BRICK.

Holiday and Rain Checks Unloading Movement in City—Bear Influences.

COMMON brick still remains under bear influences as far as movement is concerned here, although there is said to be an improvement in inquiry that will result in firmer tone in the not distant future if it continues.

USES OF LUMBER.

U. S. Consumes Forty-Five Billion Feet of Lumber a Year.

ABOUT forty-five billion feet of lumber of all kinds is the annual production in the United States, according to statistics compiled by the Forest Service, which show for the first time precisely how the lumber products in the country are utilized. Of this nearly 25 billion feet, board measure, are further manufactured, the other portion remaining for rough construction lumber and for similar purposes. This is exclusive of material which reaches its final use in the form of fuel, railroad ties, posts, poles, pulpwood, cooperage, wood distillates, and the barks and extracts demanded by the tanning industry.

Nearly or quite 100 different woods are used in this country under their own names, while an unknown number find their way to shops and factories without being identified or separately listed, except under general names. Yellow pine comes first with more than 8 billion feet, followed by white pine with 3 billion, and Douglas fir with a little more than 2 billion.

Fifty-five principal industries use wood as raw material. More than one-half of the total consumption consists of planing mill flooring, siding, ceiling and finishing. The next industry, in point of quantity of wood used, is the manufacture of boxes and crates. Nearly four times as much wood is demanded by makers of boxes and crates as by the builders of steam and electric cars, which come next, and five-fold the amount that goes into furniture, which in turn leads vehicle manufacture. Vehicles demand surprisingly large supplies of wood and much of it must be of a high class in order to meet requirements for frames, gears and bodies.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

REAL ESTATE BODIES ACTIVE FOR PUBLIC

The Advisory Council Extending Its Organization—United Owners' Associations Open Permanent Office—Moving Against Death Avenue

OWNERS of real estate are finally to have headquarters and a central bureau of information of their own. The need of a meeting place where all matters affecting realty may be discussed, where city affairs and realty problems may be considered, has been sorely felt for years. The United Real Estate Owners' Associations have just established such a place and have opened permanent offices at 170 Broadway. Every facility will be offered to taxpayers; pamphlets and literature from the municipal and State departments will always be available for distribution and the latest realty records, periodicals and atlases will be kept on file. Taxpayers are invited to visit the headquarters, to transact their business there and to use the conveniences of the office for their own purposes.

Henry Bloch, president of the associations, in outlining the program, stated yesterday:

"The time will come, and before long, when our headquarters will be the recognized exchange for property owners. We will have experts to advise, without charge, as to the requirements of city and State departments. We will have every known realty record. We will furnish appraisements. We will have private conference rooms. We will have an executive secretary and a staff of competent assistants. In a word, we will have a meeting place for every real estate owner in New York. In this way our association will accomplish constructive work efficiently and effectively.

"The United Real Estate Owners' Associations have increased tremendously in membership during the past year. There are now eleven large associations, having a combined membership of thousands of owners of real estate, affiliated with the central body. The value of the realty represented aggregates hundreds of millions of dollars."

Council Extending Its Organization.

The effectiveness of real estate associations has frequently been undermined by the belief that such bodies adopt no course of action upon public questions unless such action is extremely favorable to the real estate fraternity or reflects selfish desires of a few leaders, who may be the vital factors in the maintenance of such organizations.

Without doubt, unfounded suspicions of this character have often off-set the good work which the various real estate bodies have accomplished, and simultaneously invidious criticisms have not augured well for the real estate profession as a whole. As a matter of fact, many property owners and real estate brokers have, at considerable expense, devoted their efforts to the betterment and welfare of the city and have unselfishly contributed their time toward the civic development of Greater New York.

In order, therefore, to be in perfect consonance with this admirable public-spirited tendency, on the part of many real estate owners and agents and brokers, the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests will endeavor to make its final decisions upon public questions of such a broad and liberal character, that, although primarily conserving the interests of the real estate owners, they will simultaneously be for the best interests of the city itself.

THE REAL ESTATE BODIES of the City of New York are steadily following up their successes of last fall and winter and are putting their strength more and more to better account. They have come to the front as the most effective and powerful civic force of the day in the defense of public rights. The Real Estate Board, the Advisory Council of the Allied Real Estate Interests, the United Owners' Associations, the taxpayers' associations of the West Side of the city, the City Club and Citizens' Union, are all prominent in the news of the day and are rendering real service to the real people of New York in important channels.

The proper and reasonable conservation of the interests of property owners should be analagous to the best interests of the city, inasmuch as the real estate constitutes the chief source of city revenue. Co-operation between landlord and tenant, between the public and the property owner, and between the city and real estate organizations, is thus the keynote of the work of the advisory council.

A Publicity Committee.

In order to be fully advised upon every public question that may arise and in order to make its decisions as far removed from self-interest as possible the council has appointed a publicity committee, consisting of the real estate editors of the New York newspapers. This committee will advise the council with reference to public sentiment and general feeling among the citizens of New York as to the various propositions that will be considered.

It will seek to make known through the press and other means of publicity, the wishes and true interests of real estate owners, and secure for them proper consideration in the regulations of their own affairs. It is hoped that by being thus advised upon serious questions by representatives of the various newspapers, that the conclusions of the council will reflect both the views of the city and the public, as well as of the real estate owners.

The West Side Terminal Improvements.

The question of the proposed alterations in the freight line operated by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company along the west side of the city was revived during the past week by a communication presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on behalf of the City Club, the Citizens' Union, the Independent Club of the West Side, the West End Association, the Twenty-third Street Improvement Association, the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, the West Side Taxpayers' Association, the Greenwich Village Improvement Association, the Chelsea Association, Woman's Municipal League, League to End Death Avenue, The Merchants' Association of New York.

The deliberate plans and far sighted views of the signers of the memorial entitle it to become the basis for a campaign which shall at last settle finally and successfully the one great unsettled undertaking on which the future of Manhattan depends.

Investigate Titles.

The allied associations have not forgotten the rock on which the well-meant plans of the sub-committee of the Board of Estimate were wrecked last year, i. e., the failure of the city authorities to inform themselves in advance of the legal status of the title to the eight miles of water front involved in this transaction. This communication insists that "the title of the city to lands along the waterfront should be investigated," and if it contained no other recommendation, it will have served an important purpose, if it impresses upon the city authorities that this is the necessary initial step in the whole transaction, and that no short-cut scheme, undertaken without a full comprehension and fair appreciation of the city's legal rights to the water front, will receive any support from these important organizations. The West End Association has profited greatly by the thorough understanding of the legal situation in Riverside Park, by its counsel, Mr. Charles L. Craig, and, if the rights of the city and of the citizens along the remainder of the eight miles of waterfront were only as well understood and represented, as has been continually insisted on by Mr. J. Bleecker Miller—there would be great hope that an agreement would be reached in which the rights of the city and of the citizens would not be sacrificed.

A Good Cause.

The recent decision of the Appellate Division in the case of Hearst against New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, in no wise prejudices the rights of the citizens, as heretofore assumed to exist in Riverside Park, for in that case it was stipulated that the railroad was entitled to occupy the main right-of-way, which its tracks then occupied. There was no such stipulation in the former case of Willson versus New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, which was tried by Mr. J. Bleecker Miller, and in which an injunction was awarded, although it was never enforced by Mr. Hearst's lawyers. There is therefore every reason for West Side citizens to keep up their courage in this fight and insist with vigor on the preservation of the most beautiful part of the greatest city of this continent from becoming an unsightly noisome freight yard.

NOT A VICTORY FOR ARBITRARY IMPOSITIONS

Decision in the Kaye Case Will Help to End the Reign of Terror —The Fire Commissioner's Orders Must Be Fair and Reasonable

THE Court of Appeals affirmed on Tuesday the conviction of Charles Kaye of misdemeanor, for failure to comply with an order of the Fire Commissioner requiring the installation of automatic sprinklers in the loft building, 30-34 West 26th street. The opinion of Judge Cuddeback, containing the decision, is not available for publication in this issue, but will be printed in full next week.

If, as it is expected, the Court of Appeals has definitely determined all of the important questions raised in the Kaye case, the decision will go far to end the reign of terror that has prevailed in local real estate circles ever since the Factory Commission began to tinker with the Labor Law.

Assistant Corporation Counsel MacNulty, who successfully conducted the prosecution of Mr. Kaye throughout its entire course, stated yesterday:

"The affirmation of Kaye's conviction by the Court of Appeals is not a victory for arbitrary and high-handed impositions upon the owners of factory buildings, but is rather a triumph for sane and reasonable fire prevention measures. It should be borne in mind that, while the courts have held that the Fire Commissioner has the power to exercise discretion and discrimination in requiring the installation of automatic sprinklers, they have also ruled that his orders must be fair and reasonable. The right of a property owner to contest the validity of a fire order, upon the ground that it is unnecessary or unreasonable, countinues unimpaired. In the Kaye case, a conviction would have been impossible had he been able to show that the order he disregarded was arbitrary and unreasonable. But the evidence was conclusive that his building was hazardous and that sprinklers were actually necessary for the protection of its hundreds of occupants; consequently, the courts held that the requirement of such safeguards was reasonable, and that his refusal to comply therewith was a crime.

The Significance of the Kaye Decision.

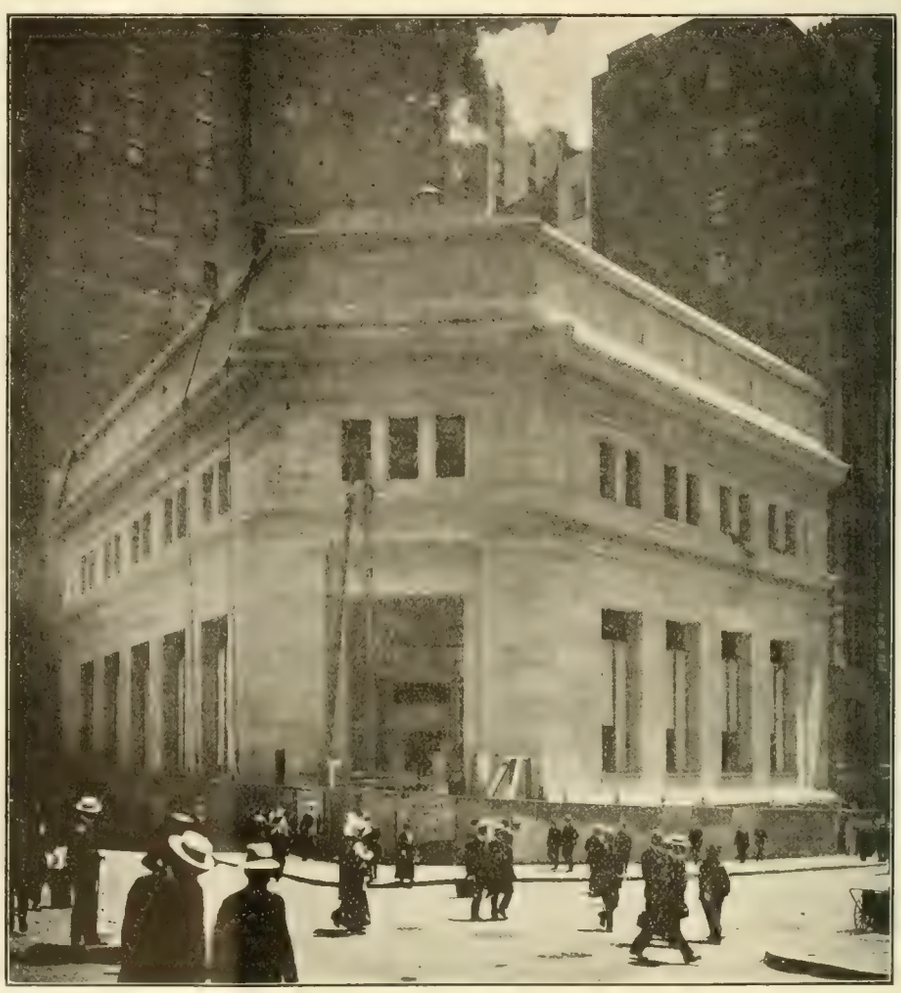
In the opinion of consulting engineers in fire-prevention matters the decision was due to the conditions in the building and was not a fair test of the law. The Court of Appeals' decision was expected to be what it is by fire-prevention engineers because the fire conditions in the building made such a strong case in favor of the Fire Department. If a building similar to the Asch Building has conditions actually worse than those which existed in the Asch Building at the time of the fire, there can be little hope entertained that the courts will interefere with fire-prevention precautions considered necessary by the Fire Department.

"It was, undoubtedly, a mistake from the standpoint of the interests of realty owners to make a test case of the Kaye order," said Peter Joseph McKeon yesterday.

"Now that the case has been decided adversely, there remains to owners the consolation that the decision is not as sweeping as some people think, but applies only to this particular building. In other words, orders against other individual buildings can be tried on their merits. The decision means that the courts will sustain the Fire Department when a building is really dangerous, but the burden of proof is on the Fire Department to show that a building is not reasonably protected against fire perils.



"This was the attitude of the judges in the court of Special Sessions, who practically swept aside legal technicalities and decided the case on the simple question: Is the building dangerous and does it need automatic sprinklers as a protection to life? These are questions to be answered in the first instance by a competent expert whose opinion should be a guide to owners and their lawyers in deciding whether or not to contest orders in court. If the expert agrees with the Fire Department that compliance with the order is reasonably necessary for the safety of life, there is small chance of the courts deciding against the Fire Department, because the facts of the case as well as the law are in favor of the Fire Department.

"One result of the unfavorable decision of the Kaye case may be that owners will comply too readily with discretionary orders which should be carefully scrutinized in order to be sure that they are according to fundamental principles of safety, are justified by conditions in the building and follow well-established precedents."

Fire Commissioner Adamson announced yesterday the installation of sprinklers in factory and loft buildings would be required without further delay. This is a result of the Court of Appeals' decision in the Kaye case, which was exclusively published in The World of yesterday morning.

"The decision in the Kaye case," Commissioner Adamson said, "sustaining the right of the fire commissioner to order sprinklers installed in buildings where they are not required by the Labor Law, is the most important decision to this department since the Fire Prevention Bureau was created.

A RIVAL TO THE PARTHENON

Wall and Nassau Streets. Trowbridge & Livingston, Architects.

THE NEW BANKING-HOUSE OF J. P. MORGAN & CO.

For beauty of material, accuracy of workmanship and size of the component parts, the men who are building the banking house for J. P. Morgan & Co. have sought to rival the Parthenon, which was the most beautiful building ever erected. The best skill which Athens could command at the height of her glory was given to the construction of the temple. The Morgan banking house does not resemble a temple, but like the Parthenon its walls have been composed of solid blocks of marble, and not merely veneered with marble. The blocks are all three feet high and three feet thick, and according to location are seven to twenty-two feet in length.

As in the Parthenon, the courses are so accurately cut that the joints are almost invisible. The quarries at Knoxville, Tenn., were torn to pieces in order to produce blocks which are not only colossal in size but also flawless in texture. Some of the blocks weigh thirty-eight tons. They were shipped from the quarries in the rough and cut here in the yards of the Knickerbocker Marble Company for the general contractors, Marc Eidlitz & Son.

SUBURBAN APARTMENT LIFE ATTRACTIVE

Unique Buildings at Bronxville Offer All the Comforts of Country Dwellings—Artistic in Design, Structures Form Picturesque Group.

UNIQUE in many ways is the apartment house colony at Bronxville, which on account of its proximity to New York City, combines the advantages of city life with the benefits of the country. Its location is in one of the first sections of open country outside the city limits, being just north of, Mount Vernon. A station on the Harlem Division of the New York Central places it within thirty minutes ride from the Grand Central Station.

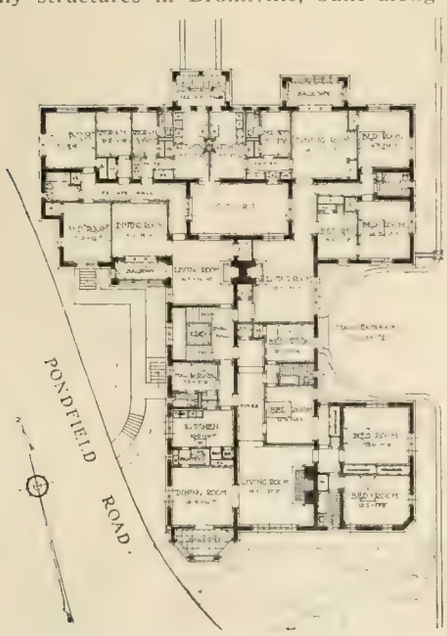
Bronxville's growth has been natural, but the project of erecting high class apartment houses, about six years ago was more or less in the nature of an experiment. Such a type of building in the suburbs was distinctly an innovation. The village contains all the modern improvements, and although a residential community, there are a number of stores grouped around the station to supply local needs. The Hotel Gramatan, a modern building containing nearly 300 rooms is another interesting feature of Bronxville.

There are at present eight multi-family structures in Bronxville, built along the lines of a college campus with spacious lawns and gardens. They contain about 100 apartments the rents averaging about twelve dollars a room. They are occupied by a most desirable class of tenants, including besides a number of prominent professional and business men, authors and artists.

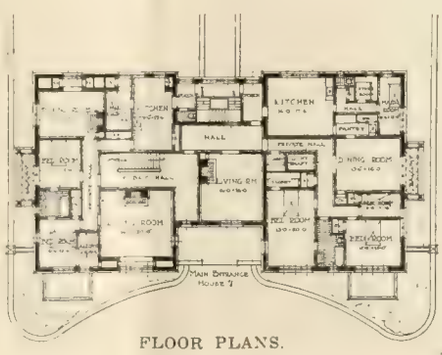
The Gramatan Court was completed last October and contains twenty-one apartments; half of which were rented, according to the agent, before the foundation was finished and the remainder before the roof was completed. Alger Court was built about six years ago, and is the pioneer apartment house in the section. It was designed by Bates & How, architects. Alger Court East and Alger Court West are now in course of construction and will be completed about October 1. The structures contain 30 suites, 20 of which are reported to be leased. The three buildings with the grounds occupy about ten acres. The interests controlling them are said to be contemplating the erection of additional buildings to meet the steady demand.

In discussing this phase of Bronxville development, Charles I. Marvin of Fish & Marvin, said, this week: "Bronxville, one of the oldest of the suburban developments of New York City, has been the center of an interesting apartment house movement. Located as it is, with reference to accessibility from the business center of New York, it offers a country home without the usual cares often attendant upon such a residence.

"In addition, the forms of recreation are numerous and varied. For golf enthusiasts, the Lawrence Park Country Club offers its links and there are others on the grounds of the Scarsdale and Dunwoodie Country Clubs. The Bronxville Athletic Association maintains a number of tennis courts, which attract at the annual tournaments, some of the best known players in the country. The splendid roads make riding and motoring desirable, and boating or bathing available, by a four mile drive to the Sound."



With these various forms of out-door recreation in the midst of country surroundings, it is not remarkable that a high class residential community was created. That it took the form of apartment house construction is one of the many unusual situations which have been typical of New York development.



The village, itself, contains all the conveniences which make an all-year residence possible. Besides three churches, and a public school, there are two private educational institutions, the Massee Country School for boys and the Brantwood School for girls. Besides the apartment house suites for those who prefer such residence, there are of course, the surburban dwellings for all degrees of income except possibly the daily wage owner. There are to be found a number of attractive homes which are maintained in most cases as all-year residences.

The buildings are constructed along the unique lines laid out by some of the early developers and this plan has generally been followed by those who came later. Property values in the section have advanced coincident with its growth, but the speculative element is missing and buyers continue to be home-seekers. Bronxville will be remembered, however, as the pioneer apartment house section of the suburbs.

WHY LEXINGTON AVENUE IS WAITING

A Consideration of the Influences and Motives Now in Control of the Real Estate Market in That Section in View of the Coming Transit Facilities

SURPRISE is expressed in some quarters that so little activity has yet developed along Lexington avenue where a subway line of rapid transit is under construction. There are at least two reasons for this, apart from the general business depression and the tightness with which the leading interests are holding on to funds which builders would like to use.

And first, there is the established belief that property actually abutting upon a railroad is not in the position to derive the most benefit from the operation of that railroad. A new line of rapid transit throws its finest favors to a distance, over the heads of the nearest owners, and therefore it is considered better to be situated a little distance from, than directly opposite a railroad station. On that principle, the first activity in anticipation of the coming transit benefits might be expected on some of the parallel avenues and intersecting streets. The whole upper East Side will be benefited in this case. Just how much of the new activity on Park avenue is to be attributed to the influence of the Lexington avenue subway is uncertain, but some of it surely is, because Park avenue, being only a block away, will share all the transit facilities and none of the things considered disagreeable.

A second reason for the continued inactivity on Lexington avenue is to be found in the policy of operators and builders to time their transactions accurately and not anticipate too far the period of greatest demand. The ideal time for starting an operation on Lexington avenue itself will be about a year in advance of the running of trains, provided values do not ascend too rapidly before then. If in order to anticipate this ascension, purchases of sites for improvement should be made by leading interests in any considerable number at an earlier date, a general "break" on the part of builders would very likely be precipitated, in spite of the restraining influence of the leading institutions. The institutional lenders do not control all the building money in the city, as there are always large individual lenders.

Turning back to subway history, it will be recalled that Broadway, on Washington Heights, remained inactive for the most part until the subway trains actually came through, but there was a building tide running up the avenues to the eastward, though for this the elevated road and general prosperity were responsible. The great speculative movement which caused a new city to be built in the East Bronx was not started until one could almost hear the rumble of the subway trains coming.

While precedent is being followed in restraining building movements that will be particularly dependent upon the Lexington avenue subway, yet there should be considerable more activity on the East Side than there is, on general principles. The smaller builders say they cannot get sufficient loans, and the big builders are waiting for general prosperity. It is not because values are too high, for it would not be difficult to buy a row of old brownstone dwellings in good locations as a site for moderate priced apartments, and this would seem to be the time for those who are waiting to put their money into safe securities, and also for those who would reap a handsome profit from mere land speculation.

LEXINGTON AVENUE, SOUTH OF 66TH STREET.

The Greatest Need.

"What Lexington avenue most needs at this time," said a prominent broker yesterday, "is just one first-class mercantile leader. Let one such store, at which the families from Park, Madison and Fifth avenues, could trade, open on this avenue, and the firms that would follow would insure its future character and rapid transformation. One valid reason why there has been little doing in Lexington avenue realty is because operators do not know just what to do.

"Primarily this is to be a retail trading place. But if the stores are to be merely small provision and notion shops, then an alteration of the basement and parlor floors of dwellings will suffice for a time. The store accommodations are mostly of that nature now. Basement store rentals average, as yet, sixty dollars a month, which is not very attractive to a builder. I am inclined to think that the development of Lexington avenue proper will take its cue from and wait for eventualities in lateral streets and parallel avenues to the west, where there are many opportunities for investors at the present time."

Current Work.

One of the first notable operations on the avenue is the erection of a twelve-story apartment house at the southwest corner of 72d street by the A. E. L. Construction Company, from plans by Schwartz & Gross, at an estimated cost for the building of $250,000. A 12-story brick hotel, 24x160 ft., costing $90,000, for the Allerton 38th Street Company (James S. Cushman, president), Paul S. Hunter architect, is to stand on the southeast corner of 38th street. The Akron Building Company (Leo S. Bing, president), is erecting two two-story buildings for stores offices and lofts, one with a frontage of 100 feet and one with a frontage of 50 feet at Nos. 563 and 573 between 50th and 51st streets. At No. 343, by Francis Connor, a five-story building for stores and offices on a 20 foot frontage to cost $20,000. A 4-story opera house for Oscar Hammerstein completes the list of new operations in anywise noteworthy.

As for conveyances, on the avenue, the year 1914 has so far produced remarkably few.

Additional Trolley Service to Queens.

Additional trolley service across the Queensboro Bridge by the operation of the 59th street crosstown cars will shortly be inaugurated by the Third Avenue Railway Co. This company now operates the 42d street crosstown line across the Queensboro Bridge and intended to commence this new service several months ago, but has been delayed in getting the necessary permits from the officials of the Borough of Manhattan to enable the company to make the required change in its tracks. This new line will enable the residents of Queens Borough to travel from the Bridge Plaza, Long Island City, across 59th street, and up Broadway for a 5 cent fare and will be a very important factor for furnishing additional labor supply from Manhattan to the many new factories in Long Island City.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE CONVENTIONS

Strong Resolutions Adopted at Pittsburgh—New York Board's Devotion to Duty Commended—Building Owners and Managers in Session.

PITTSBUURGH.—The National Association of Real Estate Exchanges will meet next year at Los Angeles. Thomas Shallcross, Jr., of Philadelphia, was elected president at Saturday's closing session in this city, and John E. Kane of Pittsburgh, secretary. Vice-Presidents—George Koester, Chicago; Col. T. M. Wier, Tampa, Fla.; A. H. Hanson, Saskatoon; R. L. Foust, Knoxville, Tenn.; W. P. Soowell, Indianapolis, Ind.; W. W. Mines, Los Angeles, Cal.; Samuel Collyer, Seattle, Wash.; Val J. Rothschild, St. Paul, Minn., and John J. Dowling, St. Louis, Mo. Byron Hastings of Omaha, Neb., got the treasureship.

Resolutions.

Resolutions were drawn up and adopted concerning the findings of the convention. The document declared that a comparison of the data brought before the delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada proved the inherent stability of real estate values under the business conditions of the last year. It gave the following reasons for the enhanced demand for realty:

(1) The diminishing return from securities issued by public service and other corporations.

(2) The fundamental soundness of mercantile conditions; and

(3) The certainty of the largest harvest in the history of the country.

That the real estate exchanges in all parts of the country merit special praise for furnishing the best expert appraisers upon call by public officials. Work of the same quality is available for the difficult but important revaluation of the railroad lines of the United States.

Compliments New York Board.

That we commend the devotion to duty shown by the New York and other boards that have demonstrated the need and value of our professional care for the great realty interests of the country. May the scope of our service to clients and patrons be proved by an increased participation in civic affairs.

Further, we resolve that the sale of real estate and real estate securities at grossly inflated values and through false statements of fact must be prevented by thorough investigation, prosecution and publicity in co-operation with local and state organizations.

That every offer of brokerage service under conditions which are manifestly impossible and fraudulent must be given attention by like means and the public protected against impostors who seek to profit from listing rather than from selling.

That no advertisement of any real estate, real estate brokerage service or course of instruction in real estate brokerage should be admitted to any official publication of this association without the endorsement of a local organization or a special committee of this association, as may be prescribed by our board of managers.

That this association should make a special study of ways and means for regulating the business of real estate brokerage, with a view to establishing uniform professional standards and enabling the public to clearly discern the difference between the peddling and the professional elements in the business of real estate brokerage.

Code of Ethics.

One of the chief events of Friday was the presentation of a code of ethics for the profession by Henry W. Armstrong of Pittsburgh. This code, has for its central theme the application of the Golden Rule.

William E. Harmon, one of the biggest land brokers in New York city, talked for more than an hour and a half on "Sub-division Development," and in the course of it he made a strong appeal for more intelligent and consistent advertising in the business. Mr. Shallcross took his hearers by storm in a breezy and forcible treatise on "Dollars and Sense." B. G. Koebbe of St. Louis, Mo., spoke on "The Real Estate Salesman."

Taxation.

Reports of committees took up much of the morning's session. In the report of the committee on taxation, read by Chairman Charles F. Laughlin of Cleveland, O., a change of the plan that left taxation in the hands of comparatively a few was talked of, and in this connection it was pointed out that the most potent hindrance to any reform in taxation methods lay in the opposition of the agricultural interests.

Mr. Laughlin reported that conditions were ripe for a uniform tax of 5 mills on mortgages. Another speaker on taxation was W. W. Polock of Cleveland. He said an assessment was not equitable unless it had the proper valuation as its foundation, and reported that the taxation on property valuations amounted each year in this country to $1,000,000,000.

Mr. Polock of the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co., Harry S. Kissell of Springfield, Mass., and Max Ragley of Seattle, Wash., named the new exchanges listed in the eastern and western divisions of the national association. Lee J. Nindle of Fort Wayne, Ind., read the report of the committee on city planning; Alfred G. Clark of Cleveland spoke on the value of convention exhibits, and Fred G. Smith of Minneapolis, Minn., told of the advantage in reading real estate trade papers.

The session opened with a question box conducted by Vice-President Moorhead Wright of Little Rock, Ark.

DULUTH CONVENTION.

Owners and Managers of Big Buildings Have a Profitable Meeting.

Duluth, Minn.—The first big noise of the convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers came on Monday night with the advent of the Atlanta delegation, bringing ten crates of Georgia peaches, the first of the season for Duluth. In the convention hall the next morning the peaches were served to the members of the association and all that the Atlanta men asked, those who liked their peaches was to vote for the convention to come to Atlanta next year.

J. Elsworth Randall of Chicago, president of the association, gave a dinner in Chicago on Monday night to sixty Eastern and Southern delegates. Immediately afterward the party left for Duluth.

Among the early arrivals at Duluth were Secretary Charles A. Patterson of Chicago, Louis B. Dailey of New York, John T. Sloan, Jr., of New Haven, Charles E. Doty of Cleveland, J. J. Forbrich of Edmonton, Alberta; and Charles Horton, manager of the L. C. Smith Building at Seattle, the tallest skyscraper

UNIQUE MARKET FOR SHOPPING CENTER

PLANS are being prepared by Starrett & Van Vleck, architects, 4th avenue and 17th streets, for the extensive alteration to the building covering about 35,000 square feet, formerly occupied by Stern Brothers, in West 23rd street. Albert B. Ashforth, 10 East 35th street, is the head of a syndicate which has taken over the property. A model market for the sale of foodstuffs and household appliances will be established, the first three floors being sub-divided into booths, about sixty to a floor. The estimated cost is about $500,000. Fruits, vegetables, flowers and other perishable goods will be on the first floor, dry groceries, bread, pastries, wines and liquors, on the second floor and household utensils, supplies and furniture on the third floor. Above these floors will be a mezzine to be used as offices for the lessees of the booths. A restaurant will be on the fourth floor, with a seating capacity of 2,500. The fifth floor and roof have been accorded a novel treatment by the architects. The roof will be a canopy of glass and all the space will be used as a greenhouse and aquarium. Fish, fowl and birds will be sold on this floor, as well as flowers and horticultural products. Ramps as well as elevators will be provided, thus eliminating crowding.

The main cause of the over-inspection of buildings in this city is the over-supply of inspectors.

Commissioner Lynch is almost persuaded that there is a duplication of building inspection work between the local and State authorities. His superior, Governor Glynn, is certain of it.

As lack of confidence is the main reason for business inertia, the efforts of the general press to show that prosperity is really returning to many parts of the country are commendable. All the administration papers are piping the glad acclaim.

Chicago will set aside a day for a festival in October in which to celebrate her real estate growth. It will be called Real Estate Day. The real estate board and the public press are back of it and it is going to be a success. New York ought to do something to make real estate more popular than it has been instead of imposing unnecessary regulations upon owners and tenants.

Affairs are gradually shaping themselves along the new rapid transit routes for a general revival of real estate activity when investors and builders have fully determined in their own minds what it is best to do and when to do it. A distinguishing feature of this new general movement will be the exceptionally large number of areas or sections of the city that will be scenes of the transactions and operations. Seventh avenue and the old West Side, Lexington avenue and the upper East Side, Jerome avenue and the West Bronx, White Plains avenue, Westchester avenue and the East Bronx; the Fourth avenue section of Brooklyn, together with all the western half of Queens—these and other widely separated parts of the city will all have a reason for special activity. Each will have its own kind of development and its own operators and supply system, almost as if it were an independent political unit.

Regulation and Reason.

The social reformers who are responsible for the great mass of legislation regulating the conditions of industrial employment in New York City should clearly realize two facts in connection with their well meant attempts to improve labor conditions, the fact that their legislation has been too hastily and inconsiderately framed, and that its administration has broken down. If they want to achieve the object which they propose to achieve—that is, the object of safeguarding the health and lives of the individuals engaged in industrial occupations in this city—they must make a fresh start and reconsider their whole plan of legislation and its administration.

They have gone ahead without any attempt to make the new means of regulation which they have brought into existence harmonize with previously existing agreements. The law, both in its specific provisions and in the administrative orders which have been issued under its general provisions, has been unnecessarily oppressive in its operation and has been moulded without sufficient inquiry into the specific conditions which obtain in this city.

Property owners in particular, even more than manufacturing tenants, have been harrassed by conflicting and burdensome regulations and inspections which have already seriously injured business in New York, and which have imposed wholly unnecessary expenses upon its conduct. The business men and the property owners in the industrial district are united in their protest and resentment at the results of the administration of the law; and the justice of their resentment has been practically admitted by the State authorities. The latter have agreed that the State factory investigating commission shall report a substantial modification of the existing laws and their methods of administration.

Such being the general situation, it is certainly desirable that the State Department of Labor should suspend its activity and not continue to issue new orders and insist upon obedience to these orders on the part of property owners and tenants. A proceeding of this kind can only intensify an already inflamed condition of public resentment and make the ultimate enforcement of the law more difficult. Inasmuch as the division of law is necessary and means are now being taken to substitute a new law, and in all probability a somewhat different administrative machinery, all public-spirited citizens should co-operate for the purpose of working out a new or better legal and administrative means of dealing with the situation and should in the meantime make the operation of existing laws, wherever possible, as little burdensome as possible.

In framing and executing legislation of this kind one general consideration of major importance should be kept in mind. The eventual success of such legislation depends upon the ability of those who are entrusted with its administration to secure the co-operation of the private interests affected by its provisions. Time was when statutes regulating industrial processes and conditions and passed under the police power of the State were conceived and administered as a kind of dual legislation. A group of precise rules were drawn up, to which manufacturers were compelled to conform under severe penalties and which were enforced by means of periodic inspections. Laws of this kind encouraged their own violation. They were necessarily administered either too rigidly or too loosely, and in either event they were frequently evaded. A manufacturer could always work out some new method of accomplishing his purpose without obeying the purpose of the law. Being treated by the law as a man who was conspiring against the public interest, he naturally became more or less that kind of man, which he was assumed to be. He obeyed the law reluctantly, because its operation was oppressive and unnecessarily expensive, and even if he conformed to its letter, he often violated its purpose.

Students of social legislation are agreed that this method of regulating industrial operations and conditions will certainly fail in the long run. Manufacturers should be trusted as if they were friends rather than enemies of its desirable objects of public policy. Their co-operation is necessary. It should be sought both by those who frame and those who administer these laws; and if sought in the proper manner it can be obtained. The manufacturers themselves know better than any one else how an order should be framed in order to produce a desired result; and they will co-operate in the framing of such a rule, provided public authorities show some understanding of their necessities and agree not to make the order any more rigorous and expensive than is necessary to accomplish its purpose.

Of course there will always be employers who are indifferent to the safety and health of their employees and who will do their best to evade the most reasonable requirements which are imposed upon them in the interest of the operatives, but such employers are in the minority. They are always looked upon with suspicion by their public-spirited competitors, who are trying to make their factories conform to modern standards of health and safety and who are prevented from going as far as they would like because they cannot afford to spend very much more money on such purposes than do their less scrupulous competitors. Such manufacturers will gladly co-operate with the public authorities in drawing up a really effective group of regulations because they will not then be placed under a disadvantage in competing with their negligent or malevolent associates. In many States and particularly in Wisconsin, manufacturers' associations have been formed particularly for the purpose of lending assistance to the industrial commission, and the law constituting the commission was framed for the purpose of securing such assistance. In the city of Buffalo, in this State, leading manufacturers have formed an organization called the "Associated Industries," whose object is declared to be that of aiding the industrial board in its attempt to execute the law. Its constitution states that "co-operation with this board constitutes one of the main objects of this association." The same document further states that "it is intended to keep members informed as to proposed laws, rules and decisions, to furnish all possible assistance to those whose duty it is to make and enforce the laws and rules and to work with them to the utmost."

This is the kind of co-operation upon which in the long run all successful social legislation will depend. In the case of New York City the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests is ready to co-operate with the administration of any law that does not work oppressively and it is co-operating with the State Commission in its work of re-codifying the labor law; but its desire to co-operate is hampered by the condition of the existing law and the attitude of the State authorities. Any code of rules which are to be effective must be, as Prof. John R. Commons says, "not only reasonable in law, but reasonable in the minds of employers." The existing rules and their administration are far from reasonable in the minds of the employers and property owners of this city, and nothing should be done to make them more burdensome until the process of revision, which is now under way, is completed.

—At the suggestion of the Public Service Commission, the New York Railways Company has agreed to extend its double-track electric surface railroad line in 34th street from Tenth avenue to Eleventh avenue, Manhattan, and to build a cross-over at Eleventh avenue so that some cars may be turned back at that point and others sent through to Twelfth avenue over the single-track existing line. At present the double-track system ends at Tenth avenue.

Civil Liability for Failure to Comply with Fire-Prevention Requirements.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In addition to the penal liabilities for failure to comply with fire-prevention requirements there arises a civil and collateral liability of much greater moment to the person who fails to comply or the person charged with the responsibility of complying. Except in what may be called the "fire-escape" cases, there is no considerable body of decisions as to this liability in fire-prevention matters, mainly because the question of fire prevention in this State is of comparatively recent growth. But, applying the general legal principles involved in negligence and nuisance cases, it would seem clear that similar liability would be sustained in fire-prevention cases.

Fire-prevention requirements are of two kinds:

(1) Those specifically required by statute, ordinance or regulations having the force of law;

(2) Those required in the exercise of discretion by administrative officers.

In the first class of requirements, liability is immediately incurred by noncompliance; in the second class, liability is incurred in the main only upon noncompliance after the discretion of the officer has been exercised in each specific case and the person affected notified. To illustrate: The Labor Law requires fireproof receptacles for clippings and rubbish in all factories. Liability arises by the mere fact of not having them. Ordinances give the Fire Commissioner the right to require the installation of fire-extinguishing equipment in certain classes of buildings. Liability in such cases arises only after the Fire Commissioner has ordered the particular equipment and notified the person.

The failure to comply with the fire-prevention requirements is in some cases a misdemeanor, and the law expressly declares that premises which are dangerous in case of fire by reason of failure to comply are nuisances. The maintenance of a nuisance is of course ground for damages in a proper case. The violation of law or ordinance is evidence of negligence and establishes a prima facie case. It would seem that in case of a fire resulting from a failure to comply with fire-preventive requirements the person responsible would be liable for damages the same as in any other nuisance or negligence case, and the fact that the non-compliance was a distinct violation of law would count against him.

The liability for damages might be to other persons who had suffered property loss by reason of the fire, such as the tenant in the same building, or an adjoining property owner. It might be for injuries or death occasioned by the fire. It might be to fire insurance companies who had paid to others losses caused by the fire, or to life or liability companies who had paid death or personal injury claims. It might be for loss of rent to the landlord. Quite likely the failure by a person to comply would vitiate all his fire insurance. And all this liability might also be incurred by an owner of the building who had knowingly permitted the conditions to exist.

In other words, a person who fails to comply with fire-prevention requirements is guilty of a negligent or tortious act which has to be excused in some way before he can escape the responsibility for damages to the same extent as in the case of any other negligent or tortious act.

Take a suppositious case to illustrate the various results which flow from failure to comply with fire-prevention requirements. A corporation is storing and handling inflammable motion picture films without a permit from the Fire Commissioner, as required by law. In the storing and handling of this film it has not observed the precautions required by law. A fire occurs by reason of the ignition of this film. There is provision in the insurance policies that the film shall be stored according to law. The insurance is invalid. The fire has killed and injured people. There is a liability for this. An insurance company has paid claims of tenants in the same building because of this fire. The insurance company has a right to recovery against the film company.

In fact, for all damages of any sort which may be said to be the proximate result of the fire, the film company would be liable.

The same liability might arise where a manufacturer had failed to provide fireproof receptacles required by law, and it was shown that the fire originated by reason of spontaneous combustion of oily waste and rags thrown in a corner. Or, again, owner of a building in which the installation of automatic sprinklers was mandatory under the Labor Law might encounter similar liability where a disastrous fire occurred which would have been confined and limited had a sprinkler system been installed.

Of course, each case must depend largely on its own facts, and there might be circumstances which would take away the negligent character of a failure to comply. On the other hand, the violation of a statute or an ordinance makes the imputation of negligence from the particular facts a hard thing to overcome. The fact that a condition exists in violation of law or ordinance would on principle entitle the question of negligence to go before a jury as a question of fact, in pretty nearly every case.

Because the matter of fire prevention is, in the main, of recent growth, this discussion is naturally suggestive rather than authoritative. The extent to which the courts have gone, as well as their tendency in the matter, is indicated in the case of Phenix Insurance Co. vs. N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R. Co., 122 App. Div., 113 (affirmed 196 N Y., 554). In this case the insurance company recovered from the railroad company because an engine of the latter had run across the Fire Department's hose in the City of Buffalo and because such running across the hose a fire then under control had spread to adjoining property and caused a loss to the insurance company.

The suggested liability in this discussion seems to be worth careful consideration by abler counsel. It should be considered in the matter of leases, insurances, mortgages and indemnity agreements. It is important that owners of buildings should have definite right to oust summarily tenants who do not comply with fire-prevention requirements and that mortgages should have clear provision as to the right of the mortgagees to compel the performance of fire-prevention requirements when the failure to comply imperils the security.

The development of a body of fire-prevention law (to be distinguished from laws) will take some time. The prevention of the enormous fire waste in this country will be materially aided by the growth of law along the line suggested in this discussion. Through credit influences also much will be accomplished, for credit and capital will not be given in the long run to those who by their carelessness subject themselves to the danger of the extensive liabilities here suggested.

ALBERT DEROODE,
Asst. Corporation Counsel.

Town Plan for "New Dublin."

Great things are hoped for from the competition for a plan for New Dublin initiated by the action of the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, in offering a prize of £500, to be awarded to the author or authors of the design for the re-planning of Dublin which is placed first in the order of merit by the adjudicators. Information, conditions and particulars for guidance in the preparation of competitive designs may be obtained by addressing Eric Kaye Parry, Esq., Town Planning Competition, The Civic Exhibition, Dublin.

A civic exhibition at Dublin to show Irish life as it is, opened this week, and will continue until the end of August. Many societies are co-operating, including the Royal Institute of Architects of Ireland, the Architectural Association of Ireland, the Institution of Civil Engineers of Ireland, the Dublin Chamber of Commerce and the Housing and Town Planning Association of Ireland.

MONTGOMERY SCHUYLER.

Montgomery Schuyler, an influential journalist and author, widely known for nis published studies in architecture, died from pneumonia July 16, after a short illness at his home, at 250 Winyah avenue, New Rochelle. He was in his seventy-first year.

Mr. Schuyler was a corresponding member of the American Institute of Architects and a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He leaves two sons, Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., distinguished Orientalist and former Minister to Ecuador, and Robert Livington Schuyler. He was born in Ithaca, August 19, 1843, and was the son of the Rev. Anthony Schuyler. He entered Hobart College in 1858 but was not graduated. He married Miss Katherine Beeckman Livingston in 1876. She died only recently.

THE LATE MONTGOMERY SCHUYLER.

Mr. Schuyler was a frequent contributor to the Architectural Record Magazine during a long period of years, and occasionally to the Record and Guide.

For twenty-five years he was a member of the editorial staff of the New York Times, and for a few years was also the managing editor of Harpers Weekly. The Times says: "As an editorial writer he belonged to the school of Raymond, Marble and Hurlbert, imparting to the discussion of subjects of importance in the news of the day literary graces of an uncommon sort and the charm of a cultivated and genial mind. His published works, include "Westward the Course of Empire," and "Studies in American Architecture."

In 1912 Mr. Schuyler went to The Sun as a special writer on books, as he was noted for his command of the English language and an extraordinary acquaintance with the masterpieces of English literature. The Sun says of Mr. Schuyler that since the death of Russell Sturgis Mr. Schuyler was acknowledged to be the leading critic of architecture in the United States, his contributions to his favorite study being numerous and constant and confined in late years to the pages of the Architectural Record.

Mr. Schuyler was connected with nearly all the well known families of Colonial New York. His wife was Catherine Beekman Livingston, who was also of Colonial ancestry. He had a close acquaintance with many men of note, and he was a member of choice circles in intellectual New York club life, for he had many social graces. At an anniversary dinner of the Record and Guide staff Mr. Schuyler was present, and in a felicitous address extended his congratulations. The funeral will be held this morning.

Apartment House Operations.

MURRAY HILL COVENANT.

Latest Decision Lets in Apartment Houses as "Dwellings."

NO question as to the binding character of the Murray Hill restrictions was raised in the test case between the trustees of South Church and the Madison Avenue Building Company just decided by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The sole question to be determined was whether the restriction established by the covenant permits the erection upon the premises of modern apartment houses, and the decision is in the affirmative.

The restriction, known as the Murray Hill Restriction, is contained in an agreement made and recorded in 1847, wherein the parties covenanted that neither they nor their heirs or assigns would erect or cause to be erected "Any building or erection other than brick or stone dwelling houses of at least two stories in height and with the ordinary yard appurtenances, and except churches and stables of brick or stone for private dwellings."

Justice McLaughlin, who writes the opinion handed down in the case, says if the term "dwelling house" is to be construed as meaning private residences, then the erection and maintenance of apartment houses would violate the covenant.

"It is urged," he says, "that the use of the words, 'private dwellings,' in limiting the character of the stables which might be erected, indicates that the parties intended that only private residences should be constructed upon the tract. But I do not think the reference can be construed as limiting or restricting the character of the dwellings previously mentioned.

"It may well be claimed that the reference to private dwellings in connection with the stables, while the houses themselves were described only as 'dwelling houses,' shows that the parties knew and intended to make a distinction between dwelling-houses and private dwellings.

"There certainly is as much merit in one argument as the other, and I do not think the description of the stables which might be erected was intended to or should be considered at all in determining the character of the dwelling houses which might be erected." Other excerpts from the opinion follow:

No Longer an Open Question.

"That the erection of an apartment house does not violate a covenant forbidding the erection of any thing but dwelling houses, is no longer an open question in this court at least.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that in recent years in the City of New York there has been a great increase in the number of apartment houses and in their use for housing not only the middle, but the wealthy class. Many palatial apartment houses have been erected, and an ever-increasing number of persons financially able to live in private residences prefer to live in apartment houses.

"In this condition of affairs it is idle to say that the parties who made the Murray Hill restrictive agreement in 1847 intended that the district should be restricted to private residences. They undoubtedly did intend it to continue as a residential district, but they limited the character of the buildings only to dwelling houses. Apartment houses, a form of building unknown until long after the agreement was made, are now the dwelling houses of a constantly increasing proportion of the residences of the city of New York. Whether the parties, if they had foreseen this development, would have provided against it, is purely a matter of speculation."

Justice Ingraham and Justice Dowling concurred with Justice McLaughlin, but Justice Hotchkiss dissents. The case will be appealed. Jabish Holmes for the church trustees, and John M. Stoddard for the defendant building company.

Were Principals in Action.

No apartment house has ever been erected within the Murray Hill district, but if this decision is confirmed by the highest court, a transformation of the district will be inevitable.

Transferring Bronx Records.

Under Chapter 837 of the Laws of 1913 the records in the Register's office in New York County for the period 1891-1913 inclusive, relating to property in Bronx County, are to be transferred to the office of the Register of Bronx County. Register Hopper will begin sending these records to the office of the Register of Bronx County, Bergen Building, corner of Tremont and Arthur avenues, Bronx, at the close of business at noon on Saturday, July 18th, when the libers of conveyances and mortgages and the block indices of Sections 9 and 10 and the annexed district, will be transferred to the Bronx office.

Mortgages recorded in the libers of Sections 9 and 10 and the annexed district will be satisfied of record in the office of the New York County Register until noon, Saturday, July 18, and thereafter in the office of the Register of the Bronx. Notice will be given later when the libers and indices of Sections 11, 12 and 13 will be transferred from the office of the Register of New York County to the office of the Register of Bronx County, and until such notice, mortgages recorded in the libers of Sections 11, 12 and 13 will continue to be satisfied of record in the office of the Register of New York County.

Club at Douglaston.

As as evidence of real estate growth and general increase in population of nearby North Shore communities on Long Island, a civic and pastime club has been recently formed at Douglaston, L. I. The exodus of home seekers to this section has been heavy during the last few years. Not more than seven years ago Douglaston Park was comparatively a wilderness while today it boasts of many fine houses and well made streets.

The club will use for its headquarters and clubhouse the large north wing of the building at the entrance to the park. This building is owned by J. W. Doolittle, the founder of Douglaston Park, and is being altered by the architects into club rooms with lockers and other conveniences for members. Tennis courts will be the leading summer attraction. In the cold weather these same courts will, by a peculiar system of sloping banks, be flooded for ice skating. The membership of the club is made up of residents of Douglaston Park and already the limit of membership has been reached and a waiting list started.

The organization will be known as the Douglaston Park Tennis Club. The officers are E. S. Taylor, president; Donald Simpson, secretary, and Harold Jenkins, treasurer. In addition to its pastime features it is purposed to have the club take up various civic and political questions and all other topics that naturally arise in a rapidly increasing community of home loving people.

Brooklyn League Would Limit Labor Department's Powers.

The Brooklyn League's committee on Water Supply and Fire Protection, has adopted resolutions in opposition to the extension of the powers of the State Labor Department:

Whereas, The New York State Factory Investigating Commission contemplates an extension of the fire-prevention provisions of the Labor Law to mercantile establishments (which are defined as "any place where goods, wares, or merchandise are offered for sale"), whereby the enforcement of those provisions would be devolved upon the State Department of Labor.

Resolved, That this organization recommends that the aforesaid extension of the powers of the Department of Labor be opposed, and advocate that the enforcement of laws relating to fire prevention in this city be vested solely in the Fire Department.

Resolved, That the Committee on Water Supply and Fire Protection of the Brooklyn League approves the proposed new fire limits suggested by Borough President Pounds as laid out in a map exhibited to this committee on June 25, 1914.

Transit Service Complained Of.

On a protest signed by a great number of people living along the line of the Brighton Beach elevated railroad in Brooklyn, and transmitted to the Public Service Commission for the First District by William G. Halpin, Secretary of the Bedford Heights Board of Trade, the Commission has called for a public hearing, to be held July 24, 1914, in regard to the service rendered by the New York Consolidated Railroad Company on the Brighton Beach line. The complainants state that the service is inadequate and irregular and that some trains do not make certain stops. Inquiry will be made into all of these phases.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Washington Heights District.

The following resolutions have been adopted:

Note: On January 16th, 1912, a resolution was adopted by the Local Board for the construction of a sewer in 215th street from Park Terrace East to the summit west. On December 19, 1913, a petition was filed requesting that this work be discontinued. This petition was signed by the owner now requesting this receiving basin.

Laying out a new (service) street on the easterly side of Riverside Drive from about West 168th street to about West 178th street; laying out a public park between the new (service) street on the easterly side of Riverside Drive; change of grade of Riverside Drive from West 173d to West 178th street; change of grade of West 177th street; from Riverside Drive to a point 370 feet southerly.

"Oldtown."

Local public improvements in the older parts of New York at the present time consist almost altogether when there are any at all, of small sidewalk repairs. Only once in awhile is a block repaved or a sewer rebuilt. The proceedings of the last board meetings in Bowery, Corlears Hook, Murray Hill, Riverside, Harlem, Yorkville and Greenwich districts disclose nothing but sidewalk repairs. Kips Bay is building four receiving basins, and in the Hudson district there is one paving job—in West 60th street near West End avenue.

When the new business before the local board of the important Riverside drive district consists of merely twelve items of repairs to sidewalks, with each item relating to only one piece of property, it is not surprising that no quorum is reported. Similarly, seven items of small sidewalk repairs made up all there was for the local Board of Yorkville to consider at the last meeting. Six cases of uneven sidewalks constituted all there was for the local board of the wealthy Murray Hill section to think about. A dozen similar items engaged the attention of the Harlem local board. Not a thing else. Activity in local improvements is mostly confined to the newer sections of the outer boroughs though once in a while a really big job comes up in one of the old districts.

No Funds for Big Sewer.

The big $1,200,000 Corona sewer now in course of construction will remain unused. No funds will be forthcoming to build connecting sewers. It also means that the same situation will prevail in connection with the Maspeth sewer, which is being built at a cost of $300,000, and the Flushing sewer, which is to cost $200,000.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

When compared with the similar period last year, this week's market shows a considerable improvement. While the deals were not numerous, they involved in several instances high-class holdings and indicated that, in spite of the season of the year, buyers were taking advantage of the opportunity to obtain desirable properties. Apartment houses and sites for such improvement continue to be in demand, the leading transaction concerning a row of West 86th street dwellings to be razed for 12-story multi-family building construction.

The strength of the Fifth avenue section was further evidenced by the lease for a long term of an eleven-story mercantile structure to Bonwit, Teller & Co.

"We have leased this building to meet increased business demands," said Frederick A. Taylor, of Bonwit, Teller & Co., "and because we feel that Fifth avenue will maintain its own for at least twenty years to come."

Important among the developments of the week also is the decision just handed down permitting the erection of apartment houses of the better grade within the Murray Hill restricted zone. While the case will be appealed, still the decision is most important, for again it demonstrates that changes in conditions and neighborhoods are carefully weighed by the courts. The Murray Hill restriction is probably the most talked of covenant of its kind in Manhattan and in many cases where property was affected along the same lines this covenant has been quoted in court. Should the final decision allow this type of multi-family construction, there is but little doubt but that several other properties will be placed upon the market for like improvement. In fact one prominent corner in the section, not the one affected by the decision, though within the proscribed area, is being offered for sale, one of the terms being that the buyer will be protected in the event of his erecting an apartment house.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 21, as against 17 last week and 9 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 5, as compared with 6 last week and 5 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 16, as compared with 11 last week and 4 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 162, as against 124 last week, 23 having stated considerations totaling $726,425. Mortgages recorded this week number 23, involving $2,351,559 as against 98 last week, aggregating $8,444,946.

From the Bronx 10 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 4 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $438,125, compared with $803,157 last week, making a total since January 1 of $23,491,659. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $651,711, and the total from January 1, 1913, to July 19, 1913, was $35,216,265.

$1,600,000 Trade on Drive.

Bing & Bing, the builders and operators, sold to Philip Livingston, through Calder, Nassoit & Lanning, the new twelve-story apartment house at the south corner of Riverside drive and 88th street, which has been held at $850,000. The house, on plot 108x100, was completed about three years ago from plans by Schwartz & Gross, architects. Mr. Livingston gave in exchange the seven-story elevator apartment house on plot 104x168 at the north corner of Riverside drive and 112th street, which he acquired about five years ago; also his five-story residence at 1071 Fifth avenue on plot 30x127.8, with a 25-foot "L" to 88th street. The trade involves about $1,600,00. The 112th street apartment house was later resold for about $525,000, the buyer giving in part payment the seven-story loft building at 146 West 28th street.

Queens Apartment Sold.

Now that the dual subway extensions into Queens are being rushed to completion so that they may be opened for service along with other parts of the system in October of next year, many investors are turning their attention to sections of Queens along the transit routes where it is expected considerable profits will be made.

Most interesting of the recent transactions was the sale by the Queensboro Corporation of the Jackson Heights apartment house at the corner of Jackson avenue and 25th street to W. J. Munson and J. W. Feeter. The property was held at $50,000. This house was erected by the Queensboro Corporation on the Barclay-Dugro tract.

The Jackson Heights apartment is a five-story building with two stores and 19 four-room apartments. It was built after an attractive plan. Rentals of from $20 to $30 a month were placed on the suites and before the building was completed last May it was more than half rented and since has been fully tenanted. Adjoining the house sold are three five-story apartments divided into five-room suites, two on each floor, which rent for from $26 to $29 a month. These, too, are entirely filled.

U. S. Government in Deal.

Charles F. Noyes Company has sold 45-51 Suffolk street, a plot 75x100, for the El Nido Holding Company, represented by Gettner, Simon & Ashe, to Alfred M. Rau. The Noyes Company has leased for Mr. Rau, from the plans, to the United States Government, a building to be erected on the site for post office purposes, to be known as Station "B." The lease to the Government is at $15,000 per annum plus maintenance. The ground was held by the sellers at $110,000. The combined transaction represents a total of about $300,000. Liebman & Tanzer, attorneys, represented Mr. Rau.

$1,500,000 West Side Operation.

A new firm organized by Mulliken & Moeller has purchased from the Realty Company of America, Franklin Pettit, president, seven houses at 310-322 West 86th street, with a frontage of 144 feet. The sellers have been accumulating the plot for over a year, the last house, at 316, having been obtained early in the week from Stuard Hirschman through Osgood Pell and Clark T. Chambers and A. V. Amy & Co. The new owners will erect two twelve-story apartment houses, each on plot 72.2x102.2, at an estimated cost of about $450,000. The transaction involves about $1,500,000.

Harlem Deal Pending.

Negotiations are reported to be in progress for the sale of the six four-story dwellings at 125-135 West 111th street, by the Surety Realty Company, Samuel H. Stone, president. The property has a frontage of 105 feet and the prospective purchaser is said to be a builder.

Park Avenue Corner for Builder.

Edgar A. Levy has bought the three five-story flats at 1054 and 1056 Park avenue and 72 East 87th street, a plot 50.8x107.9, from Amy Rosenberg, through Leon S. Altmayer.

Saum's Preservative

Makes CONCRETE Floors as Indestructible as Granite

Saum's Preservative prevents or stops disintegration. Concrete so treated resists acids, alkali, and is water, sun and wind-proof. Horses' feet, wagon wheels, hand trucks do not scrape or wear concrete floors after Saum's Preservative has been applied.

Easy to use, economical, efficient and lasting. Write for book of evidence. Our engineers will call upon request.

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

The City of New York became the owner of another piece of real estate this week, as a result of foreclosure proceedings to satisfy a lien with taxes and interest. Henry Bruere, as City Chamberlain, purchased the five-story apartment house at the northwest corner of St. Nicholas avenue and 156th street, at the stand of the M. Morgenthau Jr. Co. This is the second parcel sold to the city as a result of suits under which the City Chamberlain is trying to recover amounts loaned from trust funds. Nearly all of the properties offered in the Manhattan and Bronx Exchange Salesrooms went to the plaintiffs, who bought in twenty-three of the twenty-five properties.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

INSTALLATION OF ELEVATORS IN LOFTS

By CHARLES E. KNOX, Consulting Engineer

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

VIEWED from the standpoint of elevator service, the term Loft Building presents the broadest classification of buildings. It comprises structures of such varied use that it will be possible to consider the question of elevator service only in a very general way. It is obvious that the population, or total number of persons working in a loft building is determined entirely by the kind of business to which the building is devoted, and this population, which vitally affects the elevator service, varies widely with the kind of business. For example, the loft building occupied entirely for the manufacture of clothing would have a very large population, while, on the other hand, a building used for the exhibition of such commodities as furniture, would have a very small population. In the first case, the density of population might be such that there would be only fifty to sixty square feet of rentable floor area available per person; while in the case of the furniture show room, there might be as much as two or three hundred square feet per person. Both buildings would be termed Loft Buildings, yet to obtain satisfactory service in the first case, several times the number of elevators would be required that might be sufficient in the second case.

Use an Important Factor.

It is therefore important to determine as nearly as possible the kind of business for which the building may be used, before the particular arrangement, size and speed of the elevators are settled. In many cases, the location of the building and the occupancy of the surrounding buildings would enable the experienced engineer to make at least, an educated guess as to the proper service. Of course, the conditions might change, the character of the locality might vary from time to time and the occupancy of the building would change accordingly. Where wide variations of this kind are apt to occur, the allowance in the number of elevators and their speed should be more liberal than in a case where the conditions were more likely to be fixed, or else the building should be framed and arranged in such a way that additional elevator hatchways could be built, if conditions required.

Another element which enters into the matter of elevator service is that of the working hours of the people occupying the building. Naturally, the severest requirements of the elevators in a loft building used for the manufacture of clothes, or similar purposes, is that of carrying the employes to and from their work during the night and morning rush hours and during the noon recess. For this reason, in a loft building occupied for manufacturing purposes, the passenger service (using the term "passenger" in the sense of a visitor, rather than an employe) is of relatively small importance and the service elevators (that is, those carrying the employes) should be the first consideration. At this point I may say that, with few exceptions, all of the elevators in a loft building should be adapted for carrying passengers and should comply with the requirements of the Building Code, so that they may be used for passengers as well as freight. In many loft buildings, elevators are installed for freight purposes only, with the result that when the owners try to use them to carry employes, they are either stopped by the Building Department or are obliged to make changes in the equipment to make them conform with the rules governing passenger elevators.

CHARLES E. KNOX.

The difference between a freight and passenger elevator, so far as the cost is concerned, is not great and it is generally advisable to have the elevators comply with the laws relating to passenger elevators. Merely placing a sign "Freight elevator. Persons riding on this car do so at their own risk," does not relieve the owner of legal liability, nor should it relieve his conscience in case of accident. The large percentage of the accidents occur in freight elevators, due to the lack of proper safety devices, rigid inspection and inferior equipment. No freight elevator should be permitted to carry any passengers, other than the operator, unless it complies with the very reasonable requirements of the Building Department; yet the practice is entirely too common to use freight elevators for passenger service as well.

The number of elevators therefore, depends upon the character of the tenancy of the building, but in any event, particular attention should be paid to the service for carrying employes, and all of the elevators, except in unusual cases, should be arranged to carry passengers, as well as freight.

Elevator Speed.

The next question of importance is the speed of the elevator. This is determined to a large extent by the height of the building, but it should be borne in mind that the speed of the elevators is gradually increasing with the more exacting demands of the modern building and the higher the speed, the greater the number of passengers that can be carried by the building with the same number of elevators, which helps to relieve the situation during the rush hours.

For a ten-story building or under, the speed of the passenger elevators should be not less than two hundred and fifty feet a minute, and the service elevators, not less than two hundred feet. From ten stories to sixteen stories, the passenger elevators should not be less than three hundred feet to three hundred and fifty feet, and the service elevators not less than two hundred to three hundred feet. For buildings of sixteen stories or over, the passenger elevators should be not less than three hundred and fifty to four hundred feet, and the service elevators, two hundred and fifty to three hundred and fifty feet. I realize in giving these speeds, that they are higher than the speeds ordinarily used in the past, but I think it is "good business" from the renting standpoint to use the speeds given hereinabove as minimum speeds in the cases of medium and high-grade loft buildings. In some cases the speeds of the service (or the combined passenger and freight elevators) should be as high as the passenger elevators.

Type of Elevators.

With reference to the type of elevator, there are few cases where the electric elevator is not superior to all other types, with regard to the initial cost and economy of operation. There are several types of electric elevators from which to chose in the case of loft buildings, including drum machines, worm geared and helical geared traction machines; and in the case of the higher buildings with highest speed requirements, the two to one gearless machine. The cost of the various types increases in the order in which the machines have been named. The drum machine for speeds more than two hundred and fifty feet is, however, less desirable than the traction type from the viewpoint of safety. It is, however, cheaper in its initial cost and on that account will probably continue to be used for the lower speeds for several years to come.

Size of Cars.

Care should be exercised in determining the size of hatchways, so that the cars—particularly those used for carrying employes—may be as large as possible; and they should proferably be wider than they are deep, with large openings so as to facilitate loading and unloading of the cars.

In determining the size of the car and the corresponding lifting capacity of the elevator machines, an allowance of at least eightv to eighty-five pounds per square foot of floor area should be allowed for the service elevators, although the Building Department requirement is only seventy-five pounds per square foot. The reason I recommend the higher figure is because of the crowding which takes place, particularly at the noon hour and at night, as in these cases it has been found that loadings of approximately this amount occur.

The cars should have an entrance at only one side where it is at all possible to avoid doing otherwise. In many cases, particularly for service elevators, openings are provided at the front and back, so that the cars may be loaded from a corridor on one side at the ground or basement floors and unloaded from the other side at the upper floors. Having two doors in the car frequently leads to accidents and is to be avoided wherever possible. Where it is not possible to avoid having two openings, means should be provided whereby the operator may close the rear door in the hatchway and in the car also, by compressed air or similar device, so that he need not leave the car switch. Furthermore, electric contacts or interlocking devices should be provided so that the car could not be started until the door and gate were positively closed.

Safety Device.

As a matter of fact, means should be provided on all hatchway openings to prevent the movement of the car until the door is closed. While this adds slightly to the cost of the equipment, it unquestionably is the most needed safety device in the elevator equipment, because hatchway accidents which could be prevented by devices of this kind, are the most frequent of all accidents. The service elevator should be equipped with the same type and grade of safety devices as used on passenger elevators. As a matter of fact, the service elevators are likely to be overloaded and require safety devices even more than the passenger elevators.

In the schedule is given a list of twenty-two typical New York loft buildings of various heights and sizes, showing the number and kind of elevators, the height of building, number of stories served and the total rentable area per elevator due to differences in show the wide variation in the rentable area per elevator due to differences in the business transacted in the various buildings and also to improper judgment used in determining the number of elevators. In some of the buildings the elevator service has proved satisfactory, but in others, the service has been found inadequate owing to errors in judgment exercised in determining the number of elevators or their speed.

Serve All Alike.

One of the worst things that could happen to any country is to enact laws which are calculated to protect one class of citizens to the detriment of another class. Both are injured and both become distrustful and dissatisfied.—Judge E. H. Gary.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Coal Chute Flush With Lawn.

OWNERS of suburban homes, especially those painted white, have long sought for a coal chute that will do away with the annoyance of smut appearing on the white surface of buildings after the coal man has dumped several tons of furnace coal through it into the cellar. It seems that the Galt Stove and Furnace Company, of Galt, Ontario, has something that should solve the problem.

The device consists of a chute placed flush with the lawn and protruding, underground, through the cellar wall into the basement coal pocket as shown in the illustration. It is especially adaptable in cases where the floor is on the same level with the sidewalk.

A Novel Urinal Flush.

EFFICIENCY seems to have reached the ultimate application when urinals in a hotel lavatory are flushed by water discharged by beer pumps in the cafe, but the fact is vouched for by the Plumbers' Trade Review, through the courtesy of which the accompanying illustration is printed. The air is drawn from the outside through the smaller pipes shown in the top and then discharged to the beer taps. In this manner fresh air only is pumped into the beer kegs. The operation of the beer pump is automatic and the periods between flushes in the urinals are only a few minutes apart. The waste water, instead of being permitted to go from the beer pumps into the sewer are directed to the toilet fixtures and perform a drain service before being sent to the soil pipes. The arrangement is entirely sanitary according to E. Ed. Hants, of York, Pa., who made the installation.

Scale Salts and Feed Water.

ACCORDING to statistics, most defects in steam boilers are due to scale and deposits, thus showing the importance of knowing the amount of scale-producing salts in feed water, says "Power." To detect individual impurities in water is a rather troublesome job and as scale is caused by two or three chief impurities, the following is a good way for an engineer, with the aid of inexpensive apparatus, to estimate the amount of these scale-producing substances. Some scale forms when hard water is heated and is due to deposits of calcium and magnesium carbonates and calcium and magnesium sulphates. The former arise from temporary and the latter from permanent hardness.

In the first case, the salts are in solution as bicarbonates, which, on boiling, lose the carbonic-acid gas and are converted into normal crystalline carbonates which are precipitated, the particles sticking to the side, forming scale. In the latter case, the salts are in solution as sulphates. These are not affected by boiling and the scale in this instance is formed simply by evaporation.

The total hardness is the amount due to both the temporary and permanent. Both temporary and permanent hardness may be tried for, and the result will give the amount of impurities causing scale. A standard is adopted as "degrees of hardness" and is expressed as grains per gallon or parts by weight in 100,000.

A Part-Way-Dump Coal Carrier.

THE Bertha Mining Company recently ordered an interesting special type of dump car for handling coal to their boilers, the car only dumping part way and remaining in position so that the material could be shoveled out easily and rapidly. When loading, the cars remain in normal upright position, but when unloading it is tipped over to the position shown in the cut and held by an adjustable calk which fits under the rockers.

The car was designed for running over floors and is provided with flangeless wheels and swivel front axle with handle so that it can be pulled in any direction. It was designed and the underframe is made by the Orenstein-Arthur Koppen Company's special wide flange channel and roller bearings.

Liberty vs. Restriction.

Just as the driving force of an engine is to be found in the steam chest and not in the brake, so the driving force in civilization will be found in liberty and not in restriction. The cycle will, in due time and after a colossal waste of energy and of accomplishment, complete itself, and liberty will once more displace regulation and restriction as the dominant idea in the minds of men. It is worth your while to take note, therefore, that while liberty is not now in the foreground of human thinking and human action, it cannot long be keep out of the place which of right and of necessity belongs to it.—President Nicholas Murray Butler.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Interesting Project of Moving a Stone Church in the Bronx to Another Site—Several Unique Mechanical Problems.

THE members of the consistory of the Mott Haven Reformed Church, Third avenue and 146th street, the Bronx, have not been unmindful of the need of making improvements, but have not as yet been able to effect them. The increasing noises of Third avenue, due to its enlarged use for surface and elevated traffic, have complicated the situation and made the continuance of church work on the present site practically impossible. Under the circumstances the consistory decided that to spend more money in the endeavor to improve the basement would be a waste and, moreover, the large stone edifice is too valuable to be destroyed. It has become a landmark, and its destruction would be heartily disapproved by many, so the proposition to abandon the church and build a new one in another locality has not been seriously considered. The need of a church in this strategic point is evident to all.

ELEVATION OF CHURCH EDIFICE.

For many years the consistory has been convinced that the problem can be solved by removing the church building to a new location on the vacant lot between the church and the parsonage, in 146th street, having a depth of 120 feet. There is abundant space in the rear for a new building for Sunday school and social purposes to supplement the new basement which can be made dry, light and with a much higher ceiling. The lot on Third avenue can then be improved with a business structure which will be a source of revenue, and will also help protect the church from the noises of the avenue.

The consistory has given this proposition unanimous approval, and has engaged Albert E. Davis, architect, to outline a plan for the removal of the church and for making the best possible use of the available space for the needs of the congregation. Movers of buildings have assured the committeee that the church can be moved to the new site without injury, and at a reasonable cost. The plan is subject to improvement in details, but in general seems to meet the needs remarkably well.

Church on New Site.

As will be seen, the church will be placed in 146th street, adjoining the parsonage. Back of the towers abundant space will be reserved for light and air, and for passageways to the entrances of the new building. The commined frontage of church and parsonage will be 85 feet, while 90 feet is reserved for the new business building. No portion of the church lot will be used respecting the title to which there is any question.

When the building is upon the new site the auditorium will be only slightly changed. The floor will be on the same level. Owing to the slope of the street, it will seem higher, and the entrances will lead into a new vestibule, practically on the level of the sidewalk, which will be underneath the present vestibule, to which access will be had by two flights of stairs. The present entrances will be converted into windows. The stairway into the gallery will be placed in the east tower. The winding stairway will be removed and the space added to the present tower vestibule will make it a convenient retiring room.

Two short flights of steps will lead from the vestibule to the level of the basement, the ceiling of which will be at least twelve and a half feet high. Thus will be provided, what has long been needed, a front entrance to this lower room. This will be divided by rolling-doors into three rooms, the first of which will be 20x36 feet. Furnished with tables and bookcases this will provide a reading room and a meeting place for committees and small social gatherings. Divided by curtains it will provide two pleasant class rooms for the senior department of the Sunday school, the Baraca and teacher-training classes. The second room is about the same size as the first, and will provide place for the intermediate department of the Sunday school. The floor of the third, or rear room, will be raised about 30 inches above the floor of the main room, and will thus provide a suitable platform for lectures and entertainments.

The Sunday School Room.

The new building is designed to provide room for Sunday, school, social and athletic purposes. There are three entrances, and in addition to numerous windows, it will be lighted in part through skylights in the roof. The floor will be on the level of the rear room under the church. The main room is for the junior department, and can be divided by curtains into class rooms and provided with other up-to-date equipment. This will be the playroom, where drills and gymnastic exercises may be held, and games, like handball and basketball, may be played. Here socials will be held, dinners served and a variety of social activities enjoyed. The commodious kitchen to the right of the entrance will especially appeal to the women. The architect has shown where sink, closets and ranges may be placed, but the final disposition of these facilities will be left to the women.

Over the two class rooms and the kitchen are rooms for the beginners and primary departments. Beneath are toilets and shower baths, and if desired space may be set apart for bowling alleys. Over the entrance hall and the secretary's room, on the level of the church floor, is a pastor's room, from which, by a new door to be cut through the church wall, pastor and choir will find entrance to the pulpit and choir loft. A flat roof will cover the new building, on which open air services can be held. In case dispensary work is undertaken, for which the kitchen and class rooms will furnish splendid opportunity, this will provide space for patients needing sunshine and air.

The Parsonage.

The first floor of the new parsonage, like the new church vestibule, will be on the level with the sidewalk. Here study and offices will be provided where pastor and church workers may receive callers without disturbing the family. Space is reserved for the men's club, to be fitted up as their needs require. The minister's apartments, and rooms for the church workers are provided on the floors above. Though not shown in the sketch, the architect has endeavored to make them commodious and suited to the special needs of the occupants. The heating plant for the entire structure will be in the basement of this building.

Realizing its pressing needs the Classis of New York has voted to loan the church, on mortgage, a sum not to be less than $30,000 to aid in carrying this project into effect. With the amount thus obtained it is proposed to erect the business building, from the income of which taxes and interest will be paid, and the surplus used in part to reduce the mortgage, and in part to aid in the work.

GROUND FLOOR PLAN.

Toward the cost of removing the church and making the proposed addition about $4,000 are in hand. This must be supplemented by such amounts as members and friends of the church will contribute. If the amount subscribed is sufficient to warrant it, the plan will be carried to completion the present season. If not, some parts will have to be left to the future. The church congregation was organized November 17, 1851, and the present edifice was constructed in 1853.

NEW HOUSES ON BROOKLYN'S HEIGHTS

9-13 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. Robt. T. Lyons, Architect.

THE MONTANA.

The Colonial and the Montana, the six-story elevator apartment houses which the firm of Bing & Bing are completing in the Heights section of Brooklyn are giving an early promise to their builders of complete success for the undertaking, according to George H. Gray of Howard C. Pyle & Co., renting agents for the houses. Mr. Gray says the section could profitably take a few more high-class multiple dwellings, and that there are similar opportunities in other good neighborhoods; but on the whole he is not advising more housing at the present time.

Many Manhattan builders are watching the Bing & Bing experiment, as it is called, in order to take advantage of the judgment of the big New York operators. The Montana and the Colonial have interesting floor plans. The Montana has suites of nine rooms and three baths, with two apartments on the floor. The principal rooms are exceptionally large, the living-rooms 14x 20 ft., and some of the chambers 14.8x 16.4.

The Colonial contains suites of three and four rooms and bath, with exceptionally large living-rooms and completely equipped kitchens. These small suites are interesting. They respond to a wish often expressed in the public prints in behalf of folk who would be delivered from the fashionable boarding-house but would not undertake the care of a large apartment. The surroundings of these houses, in Livingston and Schermerhorn streets, are refined.

Reminiscenses of the Tower Building.

Referring to the demolition of the Tower Building, George A. Just, of the George A. Just Company, states in the Engineering Record anent some highly colored accounts that have appeared in the past concerning the construction of the Tower Building, says that while this was the first attempt in New York City to build a so-called skeleton frame building, it turned out, however, to be of hybrid construction, with cast-iron columns in the gable walls, bolted together through the flanges, and without cross-bracing of any kind in the narrow or Broadway wing of the structure.

The columns were raised to a certain level, at which level they were topped with a rolled beam girder, which in turn carried the solid brick gable walls to the roof. As the building was about topped-out, doubts as to its stability arose. A prominent consulting engineer called to report on existing conditions did not hesitate to say that it was criminal to lay another brick in the building.

At this crisis Mr. Just was called in consultation. With the building almost under the roof, the task was hardly alluring. However, stability was secured in the narrow Broadway wing by introducing vertical angle-iron trusses in the plane of the trusses and transverse to the building. The scheme was not admirable, says Mr. Just, but as a makeshift, under extraordinary circumstances, it fully answered its purpose.

It may be added to what Mr. Just has said that steel-framed buildings had already been erected in Minneapolis and Chicago, which embodied more of the principles of modern skeleton construction than were contained in our Tower Building.

New Fifth Avenue Apartment.

Plans have been prepared by C. P. H. Gilbert, architect, 1123 Broadway, for a twelve-story apartment to be built on the property 1066-1067 Fifth avenue. It will be erected as an investment, by the 1067 Fifth Avenue Company, Bainbridge Clark, president. This project will cost in the neighborhood of $400,000 and will cover a plot 50 by 100 feet. The front facade of the building has been designed in the style of the 15th century period of French Gothic, built of Indiana limestone. In appearance it will be similar to a high class residence. The return walls of the building on the north and south sides will be finished to harmonize with the front façade. In plan the architect has provided for single and duplex apartments, with every modern convenience and decorations and finish of the highest class. Active operations will be started in the near future and the building will be ready for occupancy early in the summer of 1915.

Contract Awarded for Ford Factory.

Fountain & Choate, 110 East 23d street, have recently been awarded the general contract to build an addition to the Ford Motor Co.'s plant at Long Island City. The building will be used as a warehouse and assembly plant, and will cost about $750,000. It will be built of brick, terra cotta and reinforced concrete, eight stories and basement in height and will cover a plot 328x150x256x200 feet. The plans and specifications were prepared by the owner's architect John Grahm, 2030 Woodward avenue, Highland Park, Detroit. The T. L. Gordon Co., 53 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, has charge of the structural engineering. Work will be started immediately.

Austin, Nichols & Co. to Build.

Cheaper Electricity for New York.

There has been constructed a generating station at Hauto, Pa., for the purpose of utilizing refuse coal from the breakers and washers where commercial sizes of anthracite coal are prepared. The project of electric-energy supply from waste fuel has been carried out intelligently and on a scale large enough to reap the substantial advantages of the plan, says the Electrical World. The plant is located in the anthracite territory of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, to which the Lehigh Navigation Electric Company is allied, and is skillfully laid out for the production of energy at a low cost.

The fuel is conveyed to the furnaces in a simple manner, for a trestle carries a track of standard gauge equipment directly over the bunkers in the upper part of the boiler house, so that the fuel can be run in on cars and dumped directly into the bunkers, whence it is fed by gravity to the fire room. There is no need for any considerable coal storage, inasmuch as the mine is nearby and can be reached at any time. Every ton of coal burned in this plant represents a genuine saving, a reduction in the drain on the world's supply of coal, to say nothing of abolition of an economic waste in carrying fuel when such transportation is really unnecessary.

When one realizes that New York City is less than a hundred miles from this plant, the possibilities of disposing of the output are obvious. The Hauto plant represents a serious and well-planned effort to realize a dream of conservation which has troubled the sleep of engineers for at least twenty years past.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

HOW THE $100,000,000 TO BE SPENT IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT WILL BE DISTRIBUTED AMONG DEALERS.

First Men Arrested in Campaign to Stop Brick Stealing Held in $1,500 Bail.

CLOSER analysis of the building statistics available for the first half of the current year just closed covering the metropolitan district, gives cause for optimism. With $94,000,000 involved in prospective building operations in New York, in addition to practically $2,000,000 in East Jersey and $800,000 in Westchester almost $100,000,000 is due to move toward builders and material dealers' hands within the next six months. This is minimum because it takes into consideration only new buildings costing more than $100,000 each in New York and more than $8,000 each in the suburbs.

One hundred million dollars distributed among building material interests supplying the metropolitan district spells at least improvement in building business. Proportionately divided on an average of material consumption in fire resisting buildings this sum of money will move at least 80,000 tons of structural steel shapes 26,560,000 common brick; approximately 500,000 barrels of Portland cement; 45,000 kegs of wire nails; 100,000 tons of iron and steel wire rods for wall tying and reinforcement; about 55,000,000 cubic yards of sand; 12,000,000 cubic yards of crushed stone; about 7,000,000 board feet of lumber including hardwood flooring. This does not include equipment.

In the six months just closed the building expenditures for new buildings only, totalled $71,201,890 in New York, $1,946,475 in East Jersey and $650,000 in Westchester or a total of $73,798,365. In the last half of 1913 the total for the district totalled $78,000,000; in the first half of the same year $81,000,000 compared with $90,000,000 in the last half of 1912 and $96,000,000 in the first half of that year.

There is a contingency in the possibility that some of the buildings like the Pan-American or the American Express building may not go ahead in the next half year, but even with the $35,000,000 involved in these two operations removed, and even discounting the filings being made daily that are not included in the statistics prepared to include filings up to June 30, this would bring the total value of projected buildings to within $6,000,000 of the volume recorded up to June 30 which included every filing made in the six months previous. It therefore would appear that the outlook for building activity during the next six months is much brighter than it was at the first of the year.

Building plans filed in the five boroughs this week, compared with last week's filings are as follows:

ALLEGED BRICK GRAFTERS CAUGHT.

Dtectives Nab Ring that has Drained Market Prices.

CONSUMERS, dealers and manufacturers of common brick entering the metropolitan district have long suspected that a system of brick stealing has been in part, at least, responsible for low prices that have featured the market for a year. The arrest on Wednesday of two men alleged to belong to an interlocking directorate of brick grafters operating throughout the district is the first of a series that detectives in the employ of various brickmakers in the Building Material Exchange expect to make if the action of Recorder McGovern of Hoboken does not have salutary effect upon others involved in the nefarious practice.

The fact that the system of operating is exactly similar throughout East Jersey, New York and Westchester gives rise to the belief that not only will the grafters be discouraged from operating, but that all manufacturers will be moved to take more care in counting cargoes and filling out bills of lading, for there is no doubt in the minds of the detectives investigating this matter for almost a year that looseness of loading and discharging systems in this market has not only been the primary encouragement for illicit selling of "over-cargoes," but has been largely instrumental in keeping prices in the legitimate market low. Incidentally, the hand of the "Shoestring" contractor is discerned in the building market in a new role.

THE SHOESTRINGER'S ALLY.

Most barge captains are honest, at least until they get under the thumb of a "Shoestring contractor" having an ally in a waterfront bar room, an installment clothing house, a green grocer or some other purveyor of commodities who first get the captain involved in hopeless debt and then turn him over for "satisfaction" to the "Shoestring contractor," who holds the debtors' law over him and bids him do his will, which is to purloin a certain quantity of brick from each bargeload and sell to him. The teamster is also involved in the same way, and so the manufacturer, the dealer and the consumer are all held up and bled, whether the "Shoestringer" gets the contract on a building operation or not.

When the brick market got down as low as $5.25 a thousand for common Hudson and Raritan River brick at dock, wholesale, the real extent of this directorate of brick thievery came to be realized. William K. Hammond, the Greater New York Brick Company, Sayre & Fisher Company and others have employed detectives at different times to try to run down the gang. They have been able to get trace of some of the individuals, but the system as a whole has never been ferreted out to the extent of discovering how it is operated, at least, up to Wednesday, when John Annillo, teamster of 913 New road, North Bergen, N. J., was held in $1,000 bail, and John LeMoine, captain of the barge Athens, Mattawan, N. J., in $500, after their arrest on complaint of William Walser, of the North Hudson Supply Company. Recorder McGovern, of Hoboken, held the former on the charge of receiving stolen goods and the latter on one of grand larceny.

First intimation that the detectives were running down the scent of the ring leaders of the gang came early in the month when A. W. Tuthill, manager of the common brick department of the Sayre & Fisher Company, received word from Walser that he was being short counted. Authority was given him to go the limit in making an investigation. Detectives were put on the barges and the watch ended with the arrests.

ENORMOUS PROFITS IN SYSTEM.

But of primary importance was the discovery of how the system was worked and the enormity of the profits involved in the transaction. Incidentally it cast a strong light on the cause of the low prices prevailing for common brick here.

The practice was found to be most general among owners of outside boats. The system would be worked successfully whether the captain got a true manifest or not, for in the case cited, the Sayre & Fisher Company had given the captain a true manifest before he left the Sayreville docks. In each case the captain proved to have been prompted to try the system through "necessity," which has been classed as a sort of peonage wherein the installment house agent, the bartender or the green grocer was the secondary factor for the true master, the "Shoestring" supply man and the peon was the captain, the teamster, or both, as in this case.

Brick coming into this market on a 450,000 barge would be short counted. The captain would claim that the "L. O." belonged to him as commission. He would ask $5 a load of 1,500 for it. Usually he would be beaten down to $3.50. The lot would subsequently be sold for prices ranging from $9 to $12.75, depending upon the quantity taken at once, for it was expedient for the captain to make a quick sale so that he would not be compelled to clear for the yards again with some brick aboard still unloaded. The profits may be measured this way:

A. W. TUTHILL SOUNDS WARNING.

On a 450,000 barge, 9,000, or six loads, would be "scraped off." This would be sold for $9 or more. The saving, even at this price to the contractor over current quotations would be $38.28. But if the contractor did not send his own trucks for the brick, the "Shoestringer's" teamster would "peel" off a few hundred brick more from the load enroute, usually at the "Shoestringer's" supply yard. This would be resold for an extra profit.

A. W. Tuthill, former president of the Building Material Exchange, who has been aggressively interested in rooting out this evil in the brick business for several years, said today that the scope of this practice is not dreamed of, and that if vigorous prosecution of the men in the custody does not stop the practice, not only the captains and the teamsters, but those who ultimately receive the brick, will be apprehended. Speaking of the significance of the arrest as it affects the wholesale and manufacturing trade and the basic cause of the practice, Mr. Tuthill said:

NEED FOR ACCURATE COUNTING.

"The Sayre & Fisher Company has always taken a vigorous stand for honest count in the delivery of brick. Cargoes of building brick are tallied several times and checked up by an expert whose only duty it is to see that the correct number of brick are on board and that the captain is given a true bill of lading with the quantity specifically stated. In no case is a captain sent away with the quantity aboard left blank.

"I venture to say that no firm in the brick business goes to greater trouble or expense than we have to establish and maintain for our customers an actual delivery of ten hundred brick when a thousand has been ordered.

'In the Hoboken case it is only fair to state that the captain was not one of our own men, but had charge of an outside barge, a chartered boat. Our customer had advised us of his suspicions some days before the arrests were made, and the importance of the result of the subsequent investigation in the eyes of the Magistrate speaks for itself by his action in holding the captain for grand larceny and the teamster on the more serious charge of receiving stolen goods in an aggregate bail of $1,500."

The possible extent of this system of brick stealing may be measured by the fact that 1,200,000,000 common brick come into this market each year from the Hudson district alone. The figure would reach nearly 2,000,000,000 if all the New Jersey, Connecticut and Long Island brick were included. Approximately 68 barge loads, or 27,000,000 brick, are moved in this district each week, and if one one-thousandth part of this quantity is stolen and sold in a year the profits alone would reach to something like $12,000.

OILS AND LUBRICANTS.

Linseed Oil Advanced One Cent—Petroleum Products Steadier.

LINSEED oil has moved up one cent a gallon in this city following a rise of 1¼ to 1¾ cents a bushel in flaxseed at Duluth. This is the first of the basic building materials to make an upward move, but it is not sufficiently strong at the new level to warrant expectations of a further advance just at present. It is believed that paint, dressing and composition floor manufacturers who have been deferring purchasing of linseed oil will come into the market actively within the near future providing the sharp tone to the Duluth market is maintained.

IRON AND STEEL.

Railroad Orders Continue to Give Hope to Builders.

RAILROAD orders continue to come out more freely. This is a source of encouragement to builders because it indicates that railroad traffic managers foresee a turn for the better in general business. This improvement centers primarily in equipment orders, although here and there are reported fairly large orders for structural steel which helps to stablize the general material market.

WEST SIDE WATER FRONT IMPROVEMENTS

What the Board of Estimate Hopes to Achieve for the District South of 60th Street—Explained by a Former Borough President.

By HON. CYRUS C. MILLER

IS anything more forlorn looking than a deserted house in which human beings have dwelt? This melancholy picture is intensified when a whole section of the city is changed from a place of trade, alive with the energy of a busy people, to the lifeless quiet of a deserted village. If anyone will walk through that part of the city, west of Broadway, between Chambers street and 23d street, he will wonder at the number of vacant buildings and the general air of desertion.

The reports of the Tax Department show that within the area mentioned a shrinkage of real estate values amounting to many millions of dollars has taken place within the past five years. Why is all this? There are some who will say that it is because trade has moved away. But why has trade moved away? It may be said it is because rapid transit lines have taken the people to other sections and trade has followed. This might be so with the retail trade, but not with the wholesale. There must be some other reason.

Like New Blood into a Withered Limb.

The conclusion is easy that the main reason is the lack of adequate freight handling facilities for the district. If the tracks of the New York Central Railroad and other roads coming into the city were carried down the West Side, so that a merchant in the district could send his truck load of goods down to the foot of the street, and deliver at a freight-receiving platform without delay, it would have an effect like bringing new blood into a withered limb, to restore it to its former strength.

On account of the agitation against the operation of the New York Central Railroad on grade below 60th street, and the necessity of better freight handling facilities for the city, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment early in 1910 entered into negotiations with the railroad for the following ends:

(1) The discontinuance of the occupation of public streets by the railroad tracks at grade.

(2) Such municipal improvements as can be effected as part of, or incident to, the proposed changes of location or grade of the railroad tracks.

(3) Enlarged and improved railroad facilities for the shippers of the city.

These negotiations were divided into two parts, from Spuyten Duyvil to 60th street, and from 60th street south. Necessarily, in an article so short as this, many details of the plan agreed upon by the railroad company and the committee of the Board of Estimate must be omitted.

Advantages Desired.

For the district south from 60th street to 30th street the committee endeavored to achieve:

(1) The removal of surface operation by the New York Central south of 60th street.

(2) That the convenience of shippers and of consumers and the needs of the commerce of the port must be served.

(3) That free access to and from the waterfront for surface traffic must be preserved.

A NUMBER of civic societies, including the West Side taxpayers' associations, are pressing for a settlement of the problems connected with the Hudson River water-front improvements and for the completion of the plans. The article herewith by a former Borough President, who was a member of the Board of Estimate's committee on terminals, discusses a section of the proposed plans in an interesting and informing manner. The section referred to is the lower West Side. Limitations of space prevent consideration of the plans in their entirety.

(4) That elasticity of the waterfront must be preserved in such a way as to permit the use of the upland in connection with the waterfront for the spread inland of waterfront terminal facilities in order that the most intensive use thereof may be realized.

(5) That as much of the waterfront must be liberated from railroad occupation for the purpose of marine commerce as is consistent with the efficient and economical transportation of railroad freight.

(6) That the appearance of the city waterfront must be preserved, and the convenience, comfort, and safety of its citizens safeguarded.

A Four-Track Subway.

The result of the negotiation was an agreement whereby the committee of the Board of Estimate recommended that the railroad company be permitted to construct, at its own expense, a four-track subway through what is now private property from 59th street to 44th street, the railroad right of way to leave the 60th street yards at the corner of Twelfth avenue and 59th street immediately west of the westerly corner of the Interborough's present power-house, to curve thence eastwardly through private property to a point sufficiently distant from the waterfront to permit of the construction of 1,200 foot piers with appropriate bulkhead space, to pass southwardly through private property at a grade identical with that of Twelfth avenue as it exists to-day, to a point on the southerly line of 44th street, at which point the railroad right of way will curve back to Twelfth avenue. Between 59th and 44th streets it is proposed that the railroad company construct at its own expense a roof over its entire right of way 100 feet in width which will constitute the surface of a new Twelfth avenue or marginal way between 59th and 44th streets. It is further proposed that the railroad company, entirely at its own expense, both as to construction cost and grade damages, change the grade of each side street between 59th and 43d streets to conform to the new grade of the new marginal way as laid out over the roof structure covering the railroad tracks.

South of 30th street the agreement was as follows:

The company consents to construct, at its own expense, a two-track subway southward from 30th street under the bed of Tenth avenue to ——— street, thence under the surface of the present Gansevoort Market site to the head of Washington street to Canal street; thence under Canal street to Varick street, at which point the subway will enter the company's new and extended St. John's Park yard.

The company requests the right to construct two tracks under the easterly side of Hudson street, from Canal street southward to Beach street, such occupation by the company, however, to be terminable at the option of the city at any time upon the adoption of plans for a passenger subway in Hudson street.

The company further requests the privilege of exercising an option to substitute for the subway through Canal street a continuation of the subway southward under Washington street to Barclay street, such election to be made at or before the final signing of the contracts to carry this settlement into effect.

Option to Purchase.

The agreement also provided for an option by the city up to November, 1913, to purchase from the company, at a price to be agreed upon, its perpetual and exclusive franchise for its tracks in the streets and avenues south of 30th street. So that the city, upon the exercise of the option, might construct or cause to be constructed proper and suitable rail facilities south of 30th street either to a point opposite St. John's Park or to Barclay street, including at least two main tracks, with provision for proper connection with freight stations which the railroad company may acquire or own; and also such industries, warehouses, etc., doing an amount of business which would justify a siding or private track, which facilities shall be open to the use of the New York Central and all other roads upon equal terms.

This option reserves to the city the power to extinguish all of the rights of the New York Central Company to its tracks in the streets and avenues south of 30th street, and to establish, if the means can be secured in the interim, a joint terminal freight railroad into which the Central will come as a customer upon terms equal to those offered to all other railroads. Such a railway, it is this committee's conviction, can be established only in connection with tunnels or bridge to New Jersey to be constructed simultaneously.

Modern Freight Facilities Contemplated.

The improvement contemplates a modern railroad with sufficient tracks, terminals, warehouses, switches and other accommodations, from Spuyten Duyvil to Battery Park. It is not to be supposed that such a vast enterprise can be carried through without some valid objections being made to it. The most important one is the opposition of the citizens along Riverside Drive to the open freight yard from 135th street to 155th street. It is proposed to screen this from Riverside Drive by trees, so that its view will not be a nuisance; but something further should be done to remedy this defect in the plan, if possible. This, and other objections, possibly may be eliminated upon further consideration of the matter.

It seems that the plan will give a monopoly to the New York Central Road for the section south of 30th street if the city does not take up its option. A comprehensive plan probably will be needed to supplement the present one, so as to provide accommodation for the New Jersey roads coming to the city. The plan proposed will permit this, but it would be better to have it include the New Jersey roads, south of 30th street, if possible at the same time that the plan for the New York Central is adopted. Also, the title of the lands claimed by the road should be investigated, if there is any doubt about them; and the railroad should pay for what it needs.

The tremendous gains to the city from such an improvement are apparent at a glance. It would cost many millions of dollars, practically all of which is paid by the railroad, the city's share being met out of a sale and interchange of property with the railroad. In our endeavor to protect the dweller along Riverside Drive from the annoyance of a railroad, we must not forget the claim of the district south of 30th street, and of the whole city. Undoubtedly everything possible should be done to minimize the injury to Riverside Drive, but to prevent the development of the freight handling facilities of the whole lower West Side of the city is folly. The life and commercial supremacy of the city depend upon it. I hold no brief for the New York Central Railroad, except to say that I look upon it as upon all other railroads, as a public necessity. Whatever rights it has, should be protected by the city, while the city is enforcing its own rights. I take the point of view that a failure to give the railroads whatever facilities are necessary for handling the freight of the city, is an injury to the city.

We take great pride, theoretically, in thinking that our city is the greatest port of the western world. Yet, whenever a proposition is broached to build facilities for our shipping and railroads, how small we think!

We hardly realize the vast volume of freight which will come to us from the Panama Canal, the Barge Canal and the Cape Cod Canal. Yet, what are we doing to receive and handle this freight in Manhattan?

The new extension of the subway through Seventh avenue will bring people to the district between Chambers street and 23d street, and all that is needed for bringing the old life and values back to it are adequate freight handling facilities.

The city must adopt this improvement if it is to remain the great port of the United States.

INCREASE IN EXEMPT PROPERTIES

Interesting Data and Figures Obtained From the Tax Department—Exempt Realty for 1914 Has Assessed Valuation of $1,873,895,243.

FOR 1914 the assessed valuation of properties exempted from taxation will total $1,873,895,243, an increase of $77,274,790 as compared with $1,796,620,453 for last year. It is apportioned as follows: The United States Government, $66,331,900 as compared with $65,957,400 for 1913; State of New York, $3,298,025 with $3,955,075 for 1913; City of New York, $1,423,034,740 with $1,355,164,450 for 1913, and educational and charitable institutions, etc., exempted under the charter, $381,230,578, as compared with $371,543,528 for 1913.

For this year, the recent report of the Tax Department shows an increase of $43,212,041 over the previous year, exclusive of exempt property. This increase may be considered the more remarkable when it is learned that $77,274,790 worth of taxable realty was transferred into the exempt class and relieved from taxation. With nearly nineteen hundred millions of dollars of real estate untaxed, only one-fifth of this amount does not belong to the City, State and Nation. The total value of New York City real estate, according to the Tax Department, was for last year $8,049,859,912, which with the exempt property, $1,873,895,243, makes a grand total of $9,923,755,155. Of this amount about 81.1% is taxable, about 15% exempt government holdings and about 3.9% educational, charitable, etc., institutions.

Some Interesting Figures.

In every instance but that of the United States Government, the figures since 1910 show a steady increase in the number and value of properties free from taxation. In 1910 the City of New York owned real estate assessed at $964,309,185; in 1911, $1,142,564,535; in 1912, $1,666,856,790; in 1913, $1,355,164,450 and this year, $1,423,034,740, an increase of $67,870,290 since 1913, and of $458,725,555 since 1910.

The State of New York in 1910 owned real estate assessed at $1,756,900; in 1911, $3,248,775; in 1912, $3,248,575; in 1913, $3,955,075, and this year $3,298,025, a decrease of $657,050 when compared with last year, but an increase of $1,541,125 over 1910.

The Federal Government in 1910 held real estate valued at $70,582,300. In 1911 it rose to $74,002,700; in 1912, $75,941,300; in 1913 it dropped to $65,957,400, and last year it amounted to $66,331,900.

The value of properties owned by other owners, corporations and associations exempted by subdivisions 5, 7, 9, 10 and 11, Section 4, Tax Law, etc., which includes the holdings of churches, asylums, hospitals, settlement houses and other like institutions, amounted this year to $381,230,578. The figures since 1910 show $322,365,754 for that year; $356,392,869 for 1911; $361,059,144 for 1912, and $371,543,528 for 1913.

There are about fifty classifications of exempt properties. For 1914 the detailed report is not available at the present time because the complete report of the Tax Department is now in the hands of the printer and will probably be ready for public inspection by the end of August. The figures for 1913, however, were obtained and they indicate how the exempted properties are listed and classified and valued. ### Bay Ridge Notes.

"Bay Ridge is a home community," said Patrick J. Carley, the builder, who erected and sold about 100 dwellings in the section in the last three years, "on account of its location on high ground and its accessibility to the business centers of the city and the proximity to Coney Island.

'The prevailing type of building is the one and two-family dwelling on a lot 20 x 100. The demand for such residential buildings has been so steady that their presence in such great numbers throughout Bay Ridge is the great characteristic of that part of Brooklyn."

"Lower Bay Ridge," said John F. Burke, the broker, "has already been affected by the apartment house building movement noticeable in other sections of New York City. In the newer buildings erected the average room rent ranges from $7 to $8 for three to five room suites and they are in good demand."

—James Blackwell purchased Blackwell's Island in 1828 for $32.500. Its assessed value is now $11,000,000 and it belongs to the city.

INCONGRUOUS LAWS TO BE SUSPENDED

Pending Revision of Labor Laws—Real Estate Board Effects An Agreement to This End With the State Authorities.

OWNERS of factory buildings in New York City and throughout the State will appreciate the importance of the announcement just made by the Real Estate Board of New York that such orders of the State Labor Department as, after proper consideration, are now agreed to be unreasonable requirements and likely to be amended, will not be issued or enforced by the department.

Some weeks ago the Real Estate Board, through Mr. George W. Olvany, analyzed the proposed recodification of the Labor Law and presented specific recommendations for amendments to the State Factory Investigating Commission. Such recommendations only were made as the board believes to be proper and reasonable, and this work was done in a spirit of co-operation with the Labor Department and State Factory Investigating Commission.

This matter has been further taken up with the officials, with the co-operation of Mr. Abram I. Elkus, Chief Counsel of the State Factory Investigating Commission. As a result it is practically agreed that the Labor Department between now and the convening of the next Legislature, will not issue or enforce orders covering such portions of the Labor Law as it is agreed are likely to be amended.

The suggestion is therefore made that if members of the Real Estate Board will present to the Board orders which seem to be too drastic, and these orders cover points of the Labor Law for which amendments are likely to be allowed, the matter will be presented to the Labor Department and such proper and reasonable relief as the conditions allow undoubtedly will be granted.

The Real Estate Board considers this the most gratifying recognition of the sort of constructive work it has been trying to do in the interest of sound business in New York City and also, of course, in the interests of its members. In this suggestion to real estate owners and its members, the Real Estate Board is not dealing in vague generalities, but feels reasonably sure that orders which the experience of the past few months have demonstrated to be unnecessarily severe, will receive serious consideration when the time for amendments comes, and that in the interval owners will not have to be harassed by the enforcement of such orders.

The Lesson of the Kaye Case.

As predicted in our last issue, the text of the decision of the Court of Appeals in People v. Kaye, the automatic sprinkler case, demonstrates that the interests of real estate have been reasonably safeguarded rather than ruthlessly sacrificed.

The crux of the case was whether or not the discretionary power vested in the Fire Commissioner to require the equipment of factory buildings with "such fire hose, fire extinguishers, buckets, axes, fire-hooks, fire-doors and other means of preventing and extinguishing fires," as he might direct, was sufficiently broad to include the requirement of automatic sprinklers. (See Record and Guide, Feb. 21, 1914.) Upon this point the Court was divided; Judges Cuddeback, Werner, Chase and Miller holding that the authorization was inclusive of sprinklers, while Judges Hogan and Collin and Chief Judge Bartlett held that it was not.

The case was argued before six judges by Assistant Corporation Counsel Alexander C. MacNulty for the Fire Commissioner and Carlisle Norwood for the defendant. Three decided in Mr. Kaye's favor and three against. When the case was called the seventh judge on the bench was Judge Cardozo, who had a client directly interested and he therefore withdrew from the case. In the conferences and consultations over the case Judge Werner took Judge Cardozo's place and that together with the case on appeal and the briefs gave him his knowledge of the case. The vote, therefore, that decided the case was cast by a judge who did not hear the argument of counsel. The question of the reasonableness of an automatic sprinkler order is left open; that is, an order of the Fire Commissioner is not conclusive. He cannot order the installation of apparatus as he thinks best where it is clearly unnecessary.

"A Sprinkler for Every Boarding House?"

The opinion of the majority of the judges by no means conceded that the Fire Commissioner had the authority he claimed. To give the statute and ordinance the construction claimed for them would authorize the Fire Commissioner to require the installation of any means specified by him for extinguishing fires in the buildings specified in the section, including churches, stores, offices and boarding houses, and would confer upon the Fire Commissionerr unlimited power as to the character or the means for preventing or extinguishing fires.

"He might," says Justice Cuddeback sarcastically, "require an automatic sprinkler system in every church, boarding-house and building described in the section.

"A Steam Fire Engine for Every Church?"

"He might in his discretion say certain churches and buildings should maintain fire steamers for the purpose of extinguishing fires—if the language used were to be given the broad construction claimed for it.

"He might today require the installation of an automatic sprinkler system at large expense, and one year later condemn it and order an improved system installed."

In writing for the majority, Cuddeback, J., held: "The words of section 762, which speak of certain kinds of fire extinguishing apparatus, are not exhaustive, and the comprehensive words 'other means of preventing and extinguishing fires' which follow, should be held to include other means of the same general character and purpose as those particularly enumerated. (1b.) Now, automatic sprinklers, though they may cost a little more than the articles specifically mentioned in the section, are of the same general character, and are intended for the same purpose as those articles.

"This liberal construction has been placed on section 762 in every case where it has come before the courts. It was held by the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court in New York (Lantry v. Hoffman, 55 Misc. Rep. 261—1907) that the section authorized the Fire Commissioner to require the installation of perforated pipes on and along the ceiling, located above the curb level in a position accessible for the use of the Fire Department. This decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division (124 App. Div. 937). In Waldo v. Christman (72 Misc. Rep. 349—1911) it was held that section 762 empowered the Fire Commissioner to require the installation of a separate and distinct system of automatic sprinklers of practically the same character as that required in this case.

"The question is asked, who, if section 762 in the Charter already included automatic sprinklers, was it deemed necessary to mention them particularly in section 775 of chapter 899, Laws of 1911? A consideration of the act will show that the Legislature intended to confirm the construction which the court in the cases cited had theretofore put on section 762, and authorized the city to extend the requirements of the section to all buildings.

"A Tangle of Fire Laws.

"The act of 1911 added eleven sections (774-778c) to title 3, chapter 15, of the Charter. In these sections the Legislature brought together in one act many provisions of the Charter relating to the prevention of fire, couching them in general language, and, at times, extending their application. For example, section 762 of the Charter (L. 1897, ch. 378), required the owners and proprietors of some fifteen different kinds of buildings mentioned to 'provide such means of communicating alarms of fire, accident or danger, to the police and fire departments, respectively, as the Fire Commissioner or police board may direct.' Subdivision 3, section 775, added by the act of 1911, empowered the Fire Commissioner to require 'the installation, as prescribed by any law or ordinance, in any building, structure or inclosure of automatic or other fire-alarm system.'

"The only effect of this provision in sub-division 3 was to empower the city to require that all buildings, structures and inclosures, not merely those mentioned in section 762, be provided with fire-alarm systems. Space will not admit of further comparisons, but it will be found that other sub-divisions of section 775 empower the city to extend pre-existing requirements of the Charter, which were limited the same as those relating to fire-alarm systems, to all buildings, structures and inclosures. I believe it was the intention of the Legislature, in like manner, to authorize the extension of the provisions of section 762 relating to the installation of fire-extinguishing apparatus, as those provisions had been interpreted by the court, to all buildings, structures and inclosures."

Discretionary Powers.

But the feature of the decision that is most important to real estate owners and the proprietors of factories is that which relates to the discretionary powers of the Fire Commissioner. On the subject, Judge Cuddeback, for the court, stated:

"The defendant also argues that the order of the Fire Commissioner is invalid because the power exercised by him under the Charter is legislative in its nature, and legislative power cannot be delegated. The case falls within the line of decisions which hold that authority to determine what ought to be done to protect the public welfare in particular cases as necessity requires, may properly be reposed in public boards and officers. Boards of health and health officers are constituted on that theory, and on the same theory licenses to carry on different kinds of business are granted by designated boards and officers. There are many statutes whereby legislative power is thus delegated, and they have never been questioned. The presumption is that such boards and officers will discharge their duties honestly and in accordance with law."

Fire-orders Are Reviewable.

Concerning this vital question, the court held: "Where, however, no general rules are enacted, but a subordinate officer is empowered to investigate and determine the fact whether in any particular instance further fire protection is required, the reasonableness of the determination of such officer is open to review by the courts, and the person aggrieved is entitled to show that the order made was unreasonable, unnecessary and oppressive."

HOW THE LAW VIEWS THE FIXTURE PROBLEM

A Discussion of Recent Rulings and Their Application to the Respective Rights of Landlords and Tenants.

THE law of fixtures deals with property whose status as realty or personalty is indeterminate until proved by certain facts and by the application of certain rules of law. When the status is so determined, tangible property must be either realty or personalty. A fixture may be called an article of personal property affixed to real estate. While this may not be a standard definition, it will suit our purposes for the present, since there are as many definitions advanced by writers as there are opinions of judges as to what constitutes a fixture.

The general rule is that fixtures cease to be personal property and become part of the freehold when they are firmly attached to the real estate in such a way that they cannot be removed without causing material injury to the realty, where they are adapted to the uses and purposes of the real estate to which they are annexed, and where it was the intention of the parties that such annexation should be permanent. The law varies when the relationship arises between a grantor and a grantee or between these and third persons, likewise between a mortgagor and a mortgagee and third persons. But this discussion will concern only the relative positions of a landlord and a tenant.

The controversy arises between a lessor and a lessee who improves property by the installment of fixtures as to whether or not the said fixtures become the property of the landlord, or remain the belongings of the man who placed them there, and who retains the privilege of removing them before the expiration of the term.

What Is Your Intention?

The paramount test whether a given article be a part of the realty or remains personalty is the intention with which the annexation is made—that intention is the apparent or evident one which may be found in an express agreement, such as a stipulation in a lease, or it must be gathered from the circumstances of the particular case. Therein lies the bone of contention.

It is obvious that where an understanding is reached between the parties before the installment of the fixtures, there is little likelihood of litigation, whereas in the absence of such an agreement, difficulties are bound to arise when the tenant removes the fixtures as his own, and the courts have to establish their ownership.

To illustrate how intention may be inferred from the facts of the individual cases, take the case of Ward vs. Kirkpatrick, 85 N. Y., 413, in which it was held that where a builder contracted with a dealer for the installment of certain mirror frames, in the walls of a building in course of construction, the frames were part of the realty as permanently annexed. The frames were not brought in as articles of furniture but were necessary for the completion of the building. The facts showed that they were an essential part of the interior of the building, that they were of the material and construction to correspond with the fittings. While they might be removed, their removal would have left an unfinished wall.

It is from circumstances such as these, in the absence of an express agreement, that the intention to make them part of the realty is gathered. It was clearly the intention of both parties in this case that the mirror frames were to be permanently affixed and made part and parcel of the real estate. Thus, in McCabe vs. Hanover, 81 N. Y., 38, it was held that where mirrors were brought into a house after completion, as mere furniture, while they were affixed firmly to the wall, they yet remained personalty. Even so, the tenant in removing them, although he has the right to do so, must not damage the freehold.

It is generally recognized by the courts of this State that a chattel installed by a tenant for the purposes of trade remains strictly his own. If a candy-store man sets in counters and shelves which are necessary for the carrying on of his business, these never lose their nature as personalty and can be removed at the will of the tenant. There is no question that articles placed in a building for ornamental purposes, although they are firmly affixed, as in the case of McCabe vs. Hanover above, do not lose their personal nature.

Gas Fixtures.

In a quite recent case, Condit vs. Goodwin, 44 Misc., 312, Justice Gildersleeve decided that where gas fixtures were installed in a building under an agreement between the landlord and the tenant, they were to be considered as personalty and they could not be touched by the foreclosure of a mortgage against the real estate. This illustrates how the careful precaution taken by the tenant who knew his business saved him considerable property. In the absence of an agreement the general opinion would have been that the gas fixtures became part of the realty, since being imbedded in the wall, they are usually considered part of the freehold.

Theatre Chairs.

It was held in the case of the Metropolitan Concert Co. vs. Perry, 9 N. Y. S., 342, that chairs in a theatre, secured by screws into its floor, were personal property, the reason being that it was clearly known to both parties that the chairs were trade fixtures and were not intended to be permanently annexed, and besides they could be removed without injury to the leased premises. For the same reasons the court held in Havens vs. West Side Electric Co., 17 N. Y. Supp., 580, that machinery placed by an electric light company in a building erected by it in leased premises does not become part of the realty.

Household Goods.

In other cases it has been held that stoves, portable bathtubs, ranges, etc., are all domestic fixtures and may be removed. The courts have reached this conclusion for reasons based on public policy, which demands that justice be administered in those cases where it is clearly not the intention of the man who places fixtures in leased property for ornamental, domestic or trade purposes, to make such annexation of permanent duration.

Concerning Elevators.

But in Jacob vs. Kellogg, 56 Miscl., 661, it was held that an elevator permanently installed in a building became the property of the landlord and could not be removed.

It is evident that the removal of an elevator necessitated considerable injury to the freehold, involving the cutting through of floors and walls and general damage to the premises, which could not be returned to the landlord in as good condition as when they were originally leased. An improvement requiring so much labor in construction evinces an intention of making it a permanent one, and so the court decided from the facts in the case.

Other cases have determined for the same reason that steam-heating plants permanently annexed to real estate become part of the real estate, as are vaults placed in a building. (People vs. Wells, 181 N. Y., 245.) In McMillan vs. Seaman, 101 App. Div., 436, it was held that all plumbing equipments were part of the realty in that they were so annexed that removal without tearing down walls was impossible and the tenant lost his right of removal.

The Intention Governs.

The most recent cases show that the intention of the parties is still the important factor in the consideration of "fixture" litigation and that the intention is evidenced by the circumstances of the particular cases. However, in a case where, in the absence of an agreement, fixtures would become the property of the landlord except for an express agreement, if the tenant accepts a new lease which does not mention his claim to the fixtures, and enters upon a new term, then the right of removal is lost, notwithstanding his active possession has been continued. The idea is that the premises in the new lease are demised as they are, to the tenant for a further period. If the tenant has reached no understanding with the landlord regarding the fixtures, his claim is lost and the ownership is vested in the landlord, who in the new lease is undisputed owner of all he demises. So held in Loughran vs. Ross.

Summing up in a few words the entire subject: In the absence of an express agreement trade fixtures are usually removable at any time prior to the expiration of the lease. If they are so annexed that their removal is impossible without injury to the inheritance, they lose their character as trade fixtures and become the property of the landlord.

Write Your Intention in the Lease.

In the absence of an express agreement, the circumstances of the case will determine whether or not it was the intention of the parties that the annexation be permanent. At this point, it may be said that all buildings erected upon land by a tenant are prima facie fixtures and become the property of the landlord, unless there is an agreement made vesting title in the building in the tenant.

The most advisable thing to do in all cases is to have a stipulation in the lease regarding the respective rights of landlords and tenants over fixtures and improvements. Then the courts will not have to determine what the intent was. It will be down in black and white!

New Jersey Road Building.

The science and development of the art of road building has been given another test in suburban New Jersey. The automobilist is no longer content with the ordinary macadam road that soon becomes bumpy and uneven. He demands a better made road and one that keeps its surface.

As a result of these demands the city of Elizabeth is investing thousands of dollars in its outlying districts to make this section one of the finest examples of permanent road building in the country. Tests have been made of the various forms of road composition with the result that several different kinds have been laid. The tests have now narrowed down to two accepted forms, brick and bitulithic pavement.

NEWARK'S TERMINAL WILL COST $5,500,000

Street Car Systems Will Focus at Military Park—Every Section of the City Accessible From Heart of Municipality.

WHEN the project now in course of construction is finished, Newark's street railway problem will be solved. The city has been afforded an opportunity to promote its own growth and wider development without cost to itself. Since the founders of Newark laid out Broad and Market streets the bulk of traffic of the city has flowed to and through those thoroughfares with the resultant present overcrowded condition. Various methods of relieving the serious congestion have been suggested and tried but without any great degree of success.

The Public Service Corporation some time ago formulated a plan which was looked upon favorably by the city authorities. It provided for the construction of a new terminal station on Park place, between North Canal and East Park streets, with certain additional trackage facilities in nearby streets. This will make remedial rerouting of cars practicable and at the same time afford opportunity for nearly doubling the service.

$5,500,000 Project.

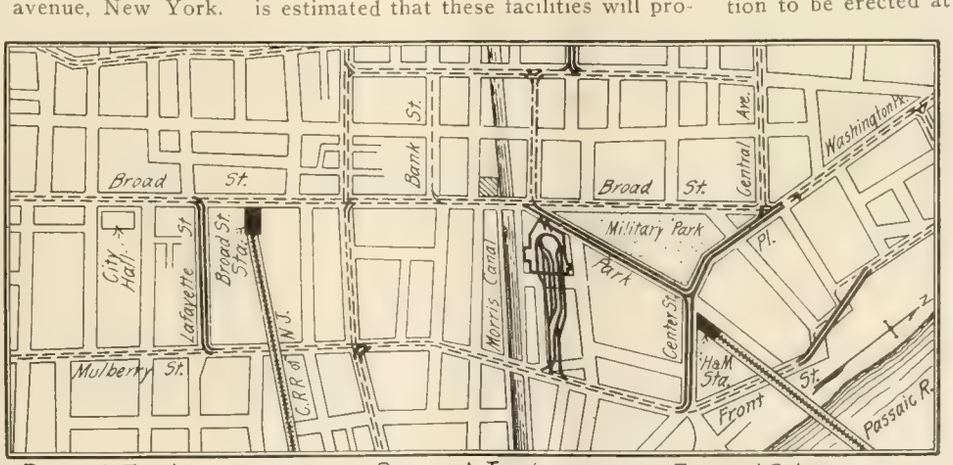
The terminal project will involve an expenditure of more than $1,000,000 for land and the further expenditure of about $4,500,000, by the railroad, for construction. The terminal proper is being erected on an irregular shaped plot having a frontage of 180 feet on Park place, between Proctor's Theatre, and the American Insurance Company's building, and extends easterly to Mulberry street, with outlets in North Canal and East Park streets. The plot is intersected by Pine street. The building will be a combination three-level street railway terminal and office building and will provide quarters for the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and its subsidiary railway, gas and electric companies, as well as for the accommodation of its patrons. The building will be eight stories in height and designed by George B. Post & Sons, engineers, 347 Fifth avenue, New York.

On the ground floor will be a concourse or station occupying about 25,000 square feet, an entrance lobby to upper floors and a large showroom for the use of the Public Service Gas Company and Public Service Electric Company. In one respect the new Newark terminal will be an improvement over most modern terminals. Here the main station is at the street level while in others it is generally below the street.



Passengers entering the concourse will deposit their cash fares or transfer tickets on the pay-as-you-enter principle and will then descend to a lower or ascend to a higher level, according to the lines they wish to take. In no case will the rise or descent exceed over fifteen or sixteen feet.

All conveniences for the traveling public will be provided in the concourse. It will have retiring rooms for women and a smoking room and lavatory for men, an information bureau, parcel checking room, news stand, confectionery and soda booth, bootblack's stand and station master's and starter's quarters. Entrances will be arranged independent of exits and separate stairways to the upper and lower levels are to be provided. Illuminated signs will point the way to all lines and incoming and outgoing traffic will be kept segregated. As a consequence crowding and confusion will be reduced to a minimum.

Geo. L. Post & Son, Consulting Engineers.
TERMINAL BUILDING, NEWARK, N. J.

The entire subsurface level will be devoted to handling the cars which enter the terminal through a subway from the west. Five tracks will be provided, two for unloading and three for loading. The cars will turn a loop after the passengers disembark and before taking on a new load. Each track will have its own platform and independent stairways. It is estimated that these facilities will provide for the movement of from 175 to 200 cars an hour. The subway to and from the building extends underneath Park place, the apex of Military Park, Broad street, Cedar and Halsey streets to a point on private property between Halsey and Washington street, where the cars will reach the surface.

SHOWING LOCATION OF NEW TERMINALS.

The second floor level will be reached from Mulberry street. This level will have two unloading platforms, about 200 feet in length. It is not the company's plan to operate all cars to and from the terminal. The interurban and many of the suburban cars will be diverted to the new station, thus relieving the present congestion.

The construction of the terminal is not contingent on the abandonment of the canal as a waterway, however, its location lends itself admirably to the utilization of the canal bed when the time comes to convert that unnecessary waterway into a really useful means of affording additional rapid transit facilities for Newark and the territory to the northwest. A connection could easily be made between the canal and the subsurface loops of the terminal so that trains could be run into the latter, thus providing ideal station facilities for a high-speed line that would rapidly develop a section of the country now practically dormant.

Operation Began.

Active operations on the construction of this immense project were begun June 24, 1914. Thomas M. McCarter, president of the Public Service Railway, personally starting the steam-shovel which was used in excavating the site for the building. The contract for the foundations has been awarded to Hollbrook, Cabot & Rollins, 1 Madison avenue, New York City, and it is expected that they will be ready for the superstructure about March 1, 1915. These foundations and piers are to be located on bed rock and will reach a depth of 54 feet below grade. Train floor of the sub-surface level will be 18 feet below grade. The general contract for the construction of the superstructure has recently been awarded to Hedden Construction Co., 1 Madison ave., N. Y. C., and 763 Broad st., Newark.

Another contemplated improvement, the preliminary plans for which are well under way, is the proposed power station to be erected at Point-no-Point, on the Passaic River for Public Service Electric Co. This plant when completed will be the largest of its kind in the State of New Jersey and one of the largest steam plants in the country. The plant will be known as the Essex Plant of the Public Service Electric Co., and is designed to supply power for all traction lines in the county. The plant as designed will have a capacity of 150,000 kilowatts or the equivalent of 200,000 horse power. It is not intended, however, to build the plant to its maximum capacity at once. About $2,000,000 is to be expended during the year for the first section of the work and the design is such that additional units may be added as the future business demands.

Throughout the long depression Flatbush values continued firm. Brokers report many inquirers disappointed to find prices have not receded to the bargain level.

This is the ideal time to build for one's own occupancy. Years are likely to pass before materials of construction will be as low again. And if speculative builders can see their way clear to a market for their product, this is also the time for them to build, if they have the means.

The recession in residential construction in Manhattan and the Bronx is, of course, strengthening the technical position of the real estate market by steadily reducing the percentage of vacancies. There is some compensation in this for builders who have not been able to sell.

Wealth brought into existence by bountiful harvests is sure to be translated sooner or later into general prosperity. Even if a country's other resources in commerce and manufacturing be temporarily reduced they will be revived by the buying power generated from the crops.

Becoming alarmed at the large accumulation of unpaid assessments for public improvements authorized, the Board of Estimate made it plain awhile ago to the delinquent sections that they must discharge their obligations before they can have further improvements authorized.

On Thursday next the Board of Estimate will give a hearing on the proposed elevation of the Marginal Railroad in Brooklyn, an improvement that will greatly advance the real estate interests of the whole borough and should not be hindered by the temperamental objections of a few owners.

The Problems of City Government.

In the opinion of the Record and Guide, it will be the emphatic verdict of those taxpayers and brokers whose business brings them in closest touch with the administration of the local government that Mayor Mitchel and his associates are making good. In one salient respect the apprehensions which were aroused during the campaign among property owners have proved to be unfounded. The City Economy League refused to endorse Mr. Mitchel because it feared he would place an excessive burden of taxation upon real estate for the sake of carrying out an expensive policy of social reform. The indications all are that the fear upon which their action was based will prove to be unfounded. Of course it is too early to pass a final judgment on this matter, for the present administration has not prepared its first Budget, but up to date the administration has exhibited every disposition to consider the ability of the taxpayers to meet the cost of social improvements. The Board of Estimate has been economical and prudent in its special appropriations. The Mayor has ordered all heads of departments to make no increase in their estimates for the coming year not warranted by unavoidable necessities, and he states that certain estimates which he has already received show decreases from the totals of last year. Neither is the administration at the present time committed to any actions, except in the matter of education, which involves the imposition of additional burdens upon the already over-burdened taxpayers of New York.

On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that the Mayor and his associates are taking in all seriousness their pledges to make the conduct of the city's business more economical and efficient. They are going about the fulfillment of these pledges according to the most promising methods. They are not announcing in the newspapers drastic savings which, when the Budget comes to be made up, do not have any effect upon the estimates for the next year or the appropriations. They are studying carefully and comprehensively the existing machinery of administration with a view to its improvement and to devising a policy dealing with the social improvement problems, which will have to be computed in the near future. New York City is a corporation, organized for the purpose of conducting one of the largest and most complicated business enterprise in the world. Its existing organization and its methods of doing business have been pieced together in a hap-hazard manner, and have been determined largely by political rather than business motives. They cannot be radically improved, nor can any real economies be introduced without any elaborate study of the problem of administration as a whole.

Such a study the Mayor and his associates are undertaking, and as a result of the study certain preliminary results of value have already been reached. The Board of Estimate, for instance, has reduced the number of its committees, simplified its organization, adopted regular methods of procedure and has thus made itself capable of transacting a larger amount of business with more celerity and less friction. The Mayor has rightly reached the conclusion that he cannot properly meet his own general responsibility for the supervision and co-ordination of the city's business without the creation of an appropriate piece of administrative machinery. He proposed consequently to convert the Commissioners of Accounts into a general investigating, recording and planning body, which would serve him much as a group of staff officers serves the general of an army. He tried to secure the necessary legislation for this purpose and failed, but he has already accomplished a great deal without legislation to convert officers like the Commissioner of Accounts and the City Chamberlain into his aids in meeting the more general responsibilities of his office.

One of the most important problems which confronts the administration is that of increasing the efficiency of the civil service, and this vital matter is receiving the most careful consideration. The object of the re-organization will not be to reduce salaries or to increase the hours of work, although some saving may be accomplished in these two directions. What Mr. Mitchel wants most of all to introduce into the service is an esprit de corps; and he is going about it in the right way. He proposes to standardize work and salaries to arrange for a regular system of promotion and to organize a system of employee's committees, through which grievances can be presented and perhaps within limits discipline enforced. He wants to make the city a model employer, and he hopes in this way to gain for the city the loyal co-operation of its departmental employees.

The general problems of the city government are receiving similarly scrupulous consideration. A comprehensive plan of port development is being prepared. That part which concerns the development of the South Brooklyn water-front has already been reported to the Board of Estimate and so will be carried out as soon as the city can obtain power from the Legislature to make the necessary contract for the operation of the Terminal Marginal Freight Railway with the trunk line railroads. During the coming winter a new plan for the improvement of Manhattan's water-front will be submitted; and this new plan, according to the Mayor's own statement, will deal not only with the difficulty arising out of the existing legal rights of the New York Central, but will include a plan of terminal facilities, whose rail terminals are situated on the New Jersey shore.

Finally, attention is being given to two matters of even greater importance for future welfare of New York City. An elaborate revision of the City's Charter is being prepared and will be submitted probably to the next Legislature. A standing committee of the Board of Estimate has been constituted for the purpose and it is to be assisted by other municipal officials and qualified citizens. When the revision is prepared it will be placed before the public for criticism and discussion. If it incurs much opposition the work of revision may be spread over a year or two. The Mayor recognizes that the present Charter is by no means an impossible instrument of government, and should not be changed until there is every assurance that it is being substantially improved. The opportunity and need of improvement is evident, but Mr. Mitchel intends to be very sure of his ground before committing his administration to any definite plan, in which he is most emphatically right.

But what is most important of all is the Mayor's recent announcement that plans are being prepared for a comprehensive system of industrial and technical education. New York exceeds all the cities of the union in the variety and volume of its manufacturing industry. Its prosperity depends upon its ability to furnish for its industries a supply of skilled workers. The methods whereby this result can be accomplished have already been worked out, notably in Munich, and the Mayor wants to have them adopted in this city. If he succeeds in doing so he will be accomplishing more for his native city than he can by the greatest successes in administrative reorganization. He will be doing better than contributing to the industrial efficiency of the city. He will be contributing still more effectually to the civic life. As the ablest and most successful advocate of vocational training says: "Man's strongest emotions are always those connected with the attainment of the practical ends of life; and if we foster such feelings in a pupil, we can win his confidence and make him take pride in his work; and when once this is accomplished, we can make of him not only an efficient hand worker but a good man and a useful citizen."

Would Tax Land Only.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

A letter in your issue of July 4 contains some statements, not intentionally misleading, but arising, seemingly, out of misapprehension of the laws that govern real estate. It decries the Herrick-Schaap bill as "iniquitous and absurd," and urges the "real estate interests" to continued aggressiveness against "demagogues attempting to ride into office," and quotes a letter from President Marcellus, of the Brooklyn Dime Savings Bank, which bewails the fact that this present generation is not satisfied with the methods of preceding generations.

Now, I own a home in Flatbush, which, before the 1907 panic, could have been sold for $2,000 more than I can get for it today. I don't know whether I belong to the "real estate interests," but I am sure that these interests would not object if the $2,000 decrease in my property would return to me. I can see that by taking the tax off my house and putting it on the land—and doing the same elsewhere—that general business conditions will so revive that my lost value will return again. And, as members of my immediate family have for years been depositors in the Dime Savings Bank, I cannot be charged with desiring that they lose their money when advocating what I believe both Mr. Finck and Mr. Marcellus would agree to if they understood the prerequisites always essential to make healthy real estate conditions.

Two prime factors give value to real estate. These are, presence of population, and production of wealth. If all the people of New York City would move away, an acre of Manhattan Island land would be of as little value as an acre of Sahara desert land; and if the people of New York City would cease to produce, exchange and distribute wealth, as they now do, there would be no wealth present to create the values upon which mortgages are based and from which rents are paid. These two propositions are incontrovertible. A sufficient demonstration of their correctness is the mere statement that as population and wealth increase in New York City, its land values go up. I am sure that Mr. Finck (the author of the letter above referred to) and Mr. Marcellus, and the "real estate interests," whoever they may be, desire that land values shall increase.

The problem then is, what shall we do to increase our population and our wealth production? First, abolish all personal and other taxes and place the entire tax burden on real estate; then, exempt all the improvements from taxation and collect our taxes from the land only according to its value. If I were to say that this would create a real estate boom in New York City, and increase the security of mortgages held by savings banks, insurance companies and trust companies, Mr. Finck might laugh—and Mr. Marcellus too—but that would be because they have not thought the question down to the bottom. If Mr. Finck had a horse earning for him $2 a day net, and I would say to him, "If you will spend twenty-five cents a day more for oats for that horse, he will earn three dollars a day," would Mr. Finck laugh? Until I could prove that the extra oats created muscular fiber and increased his horse's drawing capacity he would; but when he found a practical demonstration of my proposition by seeing his horse raised from a $2 to a $3 a day class he would bemoan his previous blindness in trying to conserve his interest in his horse by feeding it too little oats. So it is with land. We feed it too little population and too little wealth production.

We recognize the economic fact that a tax on buildings deters improvements and so, to encourage buildings, we exempt from taxation such structures as churches, hospitals, schools, etc. We get more of these particular kinds of buildings because of the exemption. If we exempted from taxation hotels, depots, clubhouses, warehouses, manufactories, private residences, tenement houses, apartments and all sorts of buildings and improvements, we could certainly get and have more of them. And, as all these structures require labor for their erection, the presence here of such labor would mean increase in population. If we encouraged our manufacturers, by relieving them of the tax on their buildings, we would have more manufacturies—which would mean more population—and from these factories would come the great quantity of produced wealth, out of which real estate gets the most of the vast rent paid for its use.

The value of land in Greater New York has increased wonderfully since consolidation, but its value could easily be doubled in the next decade by encouraging improvements and general business through their exemption from taxation. Taking taxes off business would enable it to pay more rent than it does now.

The West Side Improvements.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Commissioner Smith, of the Department of Docks and Ferries, before sailing for a two months' vacation in Switzerland, gave forth a reply to the communication which various real estate associations addressed to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment concerning the elimination of the New York Central's tracks as a nuisance, on the west side of the city. He states that this movement is one of "the things that have obstructed a common sense and efficient effort to dispose of this problem"; that it is criticising public work without informing itself as to all the material facts; that "very few of the agitators of this question appreciate the material and legal obstacles which require much time consuming preliminary work."

Permit me to say that in my opinion this criticism is rather unkind coming from city officials to the organizations which have interested themselves in improving the condition of public streets, parks and water-front on the West Side.

Was the fact that the railroad did not own more than one-third of its track, north of Riverside Park, brought out last year by the city officials or the Secretary of the League to end Death avenue? Was the fact that the railroad did not own even that much of its track, in Riverside Park, brought out last year by the city officials or by the counsel for the West Side Association?

It is because the associations appreciate the amount of these material and legal obstacles and also the failure of the city officials in the past to make the slightest preparation to meet the thoroughly schooled lawyers of the railroad in their contest for the eight miles of waterfront that these associations have signed this paper, urging the city authorities particularly that "the title of the city to lands along the waterfront be investigated."

What have the city officials done in this matter since printing the City Record of last July an opinion, fourteen columns in length, which purported to have been read at a public meeting, when not one word of it was read and not even the existence of such an opinion announced.

At the office of the Commissioner of Docks and Ferries the only information to be obtained, concerning the "document containing the plan for the common sense solution of the West Side problem" which, as he states, "is being continuously considered"—is that it refers to last year's report, signed by Messrs. Mitchel, McAneny and Prendergast.

How this plan can be still under consideration, after the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, above referred to, seems incomprehensible; the Corporation Counsel flatly contradicted the committee as two things of the title of the road bed north of 72d street. But even this opinion of the Corporation Counsel, in spite of its wealth of words, falls far short of a full and fair statement of the rights of the city and the citizens. Only one authority is deemed necessary to decide the rights of the city and the railroad over most of these eight miles of waterfront, and that is the case of Aldrich vs. N. Y. C. & H. R. R. Co., and this arose in Poughkeepsie and has no more to do with lands under water in the City of New York than it has to do with the mountains of the Moon.

In short, it is not these associations who are "troubling Israel," but the city officials who seem to fail to grasp the meaning of last year's experience and are again drifting into another attempt to solve this most difficult and important problem, in the same unprepared condition.

Jerome Avenue Activity.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Jerome avenue, being a thoroughfare running directly north from Central Bridge in the Borough of the Bronx, and Seventh avenue on the south in the Borough of Manhattan, no doubt will together be an important business thoroughfare of Greater New York. Oscar Daniels, who has the contract for the first section of the Jerome avenue branch of the Lexington avenue subway, says the undertaking will be completed in less than eighteen months.

The right to operate elevated trains over the Jerome avenue line from the West Side elevated road has been given to the Interborough, so that when the extension is built, trains starting at the Battery may run through to Jerome avenue to Woodlawn road, and it will be the only rapid transit line in the metropolis where the train service will accommodate the traveling public to either the east or west of Manhattan from the Bronx without change of cars.

Illustrating the confidence of the local owners along the Jerome avenue section, several have refused flattering offers for their holdings. The writer, a local real estate broker, had an offer of $35,000 refused for a corner of 52x100 feet, covered with an old two-story building. For another corner, 100x100 feet, an offer of $40,000 was refused. The owner of a third corner, 50 feet by irregular, with an old building thereon, refused an offer of $22,000. This shows you the confidence the owners have in their holdings along this thoroughfare.

Should a prospective builder or operator undertake to investigate conditions, he will note that there are few house vacancies or to-let signs to be seen. Buildings recently completed have been rented without any trouble to the builder, considering the double fare which the traveling public has to contend with for the present.

Your comments on the anomalous position of the State Labor Department confirms the belief of unprejudiced persons that, however well intentioned, the State authorities have gone too far and have seriously confused matters. They are rocking the boat.

Title Company's Statement.

The New York Title Insurance Company has just issued its statement at the close of business on June 30. The undivided profits of the company are slightly less than they were last December, but this is accounted for by the payment since then of dividends amounting to $25,000, and $10,000 set aside as a reserve for possible losses. Instead of a reserve of but $2,001 for taxes on December 31 last, there is now reserved for possible losses and taxes, $15,917.57; and instead of $295,000 of loans payable, the Company at present have no loan obligations. It is also interesting to note that the real estate item has remained practically the same, showing that the company has not had to take in any property under foreclosure.

—Prosperity is returning to Brooklyn and Queens boroughs in their building departments. Twenty-five million dollars' worth of work has been planned so far this year, compared with eighteen million last year. The conveyances recorded are not quite equal in number to last year's record, which is accounted for in part by the fact that a larger number of new houses than last year are intended for the occupancy of their owners and builders.

BUILDING MANAGERS

Re-Elect J. E. Randall President—Will Go to Atlanta Next Year

Duluth, Minn.—Atlanta was chosen as the next convention city and last year's officers were re-elected at the Spalding Hotel Saturday morning at the closing business session of the greatest convention ever held by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Throughout the convention, delegates from Atlanta, St. Louis and Omaha were vigorously campaigning among the other delegates, but the half carload of Georgia peaches sent up by Atlanta boosters—and lavish promises of Southern hospitality on the part of silver-tongued delegates—won.

On the first ballot Atlanta received 49 votes, St. Louis 26 and Omaha 15. The vote followed "impassioned" addresses by boosters for the three cities, in which Atlanta got first honors by a narrow margin. Atlanta's fight was conducted by Frederick House, secretary of the convention bureau of his city.

The re-election of the 1914 officers set a precedent for the association, and the recommendations of John C. Knight, chairman of the nominating committee, surprised a great many of the convention's "dopesters," who had expected a vigorous contest for new officers. After Mr. Knight's speech, however, members of the association were enthusiastic in applause and the old officers were retained by a hearty verbal vote.

Official Personnel

J. E. Randell, Chicago, president; Charles E. Doty, Cleveland, vice-president; C. A. Patterson, Chicago, secretary, and L. L. Banks, Pittsburgh, treasurer.

Tells of Association

Secretary C. A. Patterson made his annual report, in which he declared that the affairs of the association were in a highly satisfactory condition and that the organization is growing rapidly.

Seventy-five cities have local organizations of building owners and managers, Mr. Patterson said, and there are 272 members in the national association.

John C. Knight of New York, made the report for the publicity committee which does not favor an official publication for the association at this time. W. M. Ellis of Chicago, chairman of the membership committee, reported that 39 members have been added to the association in the last year. E. H. Doyle of Detroit, gave the report of the committee on plumbing, and H. G. Perring and T. E. Bainbridge of Chicago, told about the convention of the National Fire Prevention association at Chicago last spring and the work of the committee on advancement of local organization.

Income Tax Provision Scored.

Mr. Bainbridge also gave the report of the income tax committee, and declared that the "collection at the source" clause of the income tax law is working great hardship on owners of buildings. The association adopted a resolution urging an amendment to the national law, and offering the support of the association to the American Bankers Association which is making an attempt to have the clause changed.

As the law now is, tenants of buildings are instructed to withhold one per cent. of the yearly rental for income tax. The building owners want to make their own tax returns and settle for the taxes. They are willing that renters, however, should give information as to the amount of rent they pay. Mr. Bainbridge was reappointed chairman of the committee, which is to continue for another year.

Auction Business Enlarged.

William P. Rae & Company, auctioneers and brokers, 180 Montague street, Brooklyn, make the announcement that they have bought the real estate auction and brokerage business of the late William H. Smith. The offices heretofore occupied by the late Mr. Smith, adjoining the Exchange Salesroom, 189 Montague street, together with 400 Nostrand avenue, will be continued by the Rae Company, as branch offices to 180 Montague street. The Rae Company has been identified since 1879 with Brooklyn and Queens realty and has been instrumental in the development of several tracts, including Hillcrest-Jamaica and Sea Gate. The company is considering having an auction sale of lots on the former property on Labor Day. Mr. Smith's widow retains an interest in the business.

New Mortgage Certificates.

Harry A. Kahler, president of the New York Mortgage & Security Company, announces the introduction of two new features in the issuance of first mortgage 5 per cent. certificates. One of these provisions represents the adoption in a modified form of the general principle of amortization followed by the several mortgage banks of Europe, while the other, giving to the mortgage certificate holders the right, after three years, on sixty days' notice, to call for payment from the deposited mortgages, is intended to provide a means for preventing the necessity, in any emergency thereafter, of selling a certificate in the open market.

Mr. Kahler, who is the president of the New York Title Insurance Company of 135 Broadway, as well as president of the New York Mortgage & Security Company, explained the new ideas adopted in the latest series of certificates as follows:

"In a new series of five per cent. guaranteed first mortgage certificates, the New York Mortgage & Security Company has added two features not heretofore embraced in such issues by the other well-known New York mortgage companies. Frequently it is impossible for an investor to find a mortgage for an amount equal to the funds he may wish to invest. He is thus delayed in investing his money with consequent loss of interest, whereas he may at once purchase mortgage certificates for any amount that he requires, in multiples of $100, and interest will begin immediately. The mortgages securing these certificates are deposited with the Columbia Trust Company, as trustee, for the certificate holders. The depository must always hold mortgages of a par value at least equal to the amount of mortgage certificates outstanding.

"Our certificates mature in ten years, but we do not intend that every loan shall provide sinking funds or serial payments sufficient to amortize all loans within so short a time. Our company obligates itself to require a provision for some annual reduction of principal in every mortgage in order that the margin of security may be constantly increased, or to cover unforeseen depreciation, if any should occur. Serial payment loans also actually encourage borrowers to pay off their mortgages, particularly small mortgages on homes.

"The second added provision giving the mortgage certificate holders the right, after three years, on sixty days' notice, to call for payment from the deposited mortgages, is intended to provide a means for preventing the necessity, in any emergency thereafter, of selling a certificate in the open market."

PLATE GLASS PREMIUMS.

The recent issuance of a new price list by the plate glass manufacturers, according to an article in the bulletin published by the Fidelity & Casualty Company, has prompted the representative companies transacting plate glass insurance to consider seriously the matter of establishing a new basis of premium charge. At a meeting of the Plate Glass Service and Information Bureau a committee was appointed to prepare a new manual which will be consistent with the present market price of plate glass.

The 1909 manual, now in universal use, provides as a basis from which the varying discounts are made a premium charge which is wholly inadequate, in view of the prices that the manufacturers are charging for glass. The rates with few exceptions were computed twenty-five years ago on the basis of the 1,885 manufacturers' list.

Three factors were used—2½ per cent. for sizes valued up to and including $200; 3½ per cent. from $201 to $245; and 4½ per cent. above that amount. Since 1885 the list has been revised three times, in 1895, 1910, and lastly in 1914; and to illustrate the extreme variation in the cost of glass between 1885 and 1914, we quote the rates for a number of sizes most commonly used in store fronts, as they appear in the respective price lists:

| 96 x 50..... | $71.80 | $90.70 | $134.00 | $150.00 |
| 96 x 50..... | 71.00 | 113.00 | 167.00 | 178.00 |
| 96 x 60..... | 85.00 | 136.00 | 200.00 | 230.00 |
| 96 x 72..... | 108.00 | 173.00 | 240.00 | 276.00 |
| 96 x 84..... | 125.00 | 202.00 | 286.00 | 348.00 |
| 96 x 120..... | 179.00 | 288.00 | 412.00 | 496.00 |
| 108 x 120..... | 218.00 | 324.00 | 455.00 | 540.00 |
| 200 x 120..... | 1,001.00 | 1,458.00 | 3,167.00 | 3,167.00 |
| 200 x 130..... | 1,084.00 | 2,257.00 | 3,612.00 | 3,612.00 |

It will be noted that the first seven items show an increase of over 150 per cent., and the last two over 200 per cent.; and it can be seen readily that a premium manual in which rates are computed on the lower figures is hardly adequate where the cost of replacements must be controlled by the latest and highest figure. Therefore, it follows that the companies must take steps to secure a premium income which will offset the very considerable increase in the present-day cost of loss adjustment, and the most direct method is by the adoption of a new manual.

Plate Glass Men Meet.

At a meeting of the Plate Glass Underwriters' Association held at the office of the Fidelity & Casualty Company on Tuesday, July 21st, the commission situation in Greater New York was discussed. The association had disposed of the rate matter at a previous meeting, but there were several obstacles in the way of harmonizing the various companies on the subject of brokerage and agents' commission. The matter is still in status quo. The companies are required to file by August 1 a list of all brokers with whom there are special commission arrangements and a meeting of the association is to be called soon after in an effort to adjust the situation. The present rules of the association were reaffirmed at this meeting and will obtain until some action is taken at the next meeting. No new arrangements of any kind will be permitted until after August 18th, before which time it is hoped that the whole situation will be cleared up.

'Bus Franchise Controversy.

When the Board of Estimate holds its public hearing on the proposed extension of the auto 'bus line franchises, there will be a spirited protest registered by certain residents against the proposal to allow the coach companies to use uptown residential streets without the consent of the property owners.

William Wickham Hoffman, of Hoffman, Keogh & Jay, lawyers, with offices at 15 Broad street, who has been acting as attorney for several property owners of East 79th street, is planning to register vigorous objections as soon as he has the opportunity to appear before the Board of Estimate.

"The city proposes to allow 'bus lines to run through residential streets without consulting the owners of the properties along the way," said Mr. Hoffman. "In the case of elevated and trolley lines, however, the city protects the owners by requiring assents of one-half the value of the abutting property. It is a property right for an owner to have control of the street upon which his house is located, and when that right is taken away a consideration of definite value is removed.

"Another thing, East 79th street is one of the quietest residential streets in the city, in that section nearest Fifth avenue, and should be preserved as such. And where it approaches the East River it becomes a tenement district with the street filled with playing children. This means that there will be a decided increase in the accident risk. The same statement would apply to other residential streets."

OWNERSHIP OF CORTLANDT ST.

Was Originally in the Crown and Descended to the Public.

The ownership of the bed of Cortlandt street is in the City of New York, together with the right to regulate the use of streets for vault purposes, according to the decision handed down this week by the Appellate Division, First Department. The abutting owners have hitherto claimed to own to the middle line of the street. The case was entitled William W. Appleton et al., plaintiffs and respondents, vs. the City of New York, defendants and appellants. The case is considered of high importance to downtown real estate interests, and will be carried to the highest court.

The plaintiffs are the owners as tenants in common of premises situate on the northwesterly corner of Broadway and Cortlandt street, Borough of Manhattan, New York, known as No. 173 Broadway, and they claim to be the owners of the fee to the centre line of Cortlandt street adjacent thereto, subject to the public easements for street purposes. They concede that the city has the right to regulate their use of the street in front of their premises to the centre line for vaults or otherwise, but they contend that it has no right to compel them to pay for such use. The only theory on which the learned counsel for the respondent attempts to support the judgment is that his clients own the fee of the street to the centre line thereof.

The trial court found that plaintiffs own such fee, but that the construction of the vaults has not been authorized, and that they have no right to construct and maintain vaults under the street without obtaining a permit therefor. The counsel for the city contends that the court erred in finding that the city does not own the fee, and even though it does not, in deciding that plaintiffs own it; and he also argued that the judgment cannot be sustained in any event, for he argued that if the fee be in the abutting owners, the city has a right to make a reasonable charge for permitting the construction of vaults, and that the amount exacted by the city ordinance is reasonable.

Went Back to the Crown.

The Appellate Division holds that as it was a rule of the Civil Law, which was in force during the Dutch occupation, that the sovereign acquired a fee to all lands laid out as public streets through grants made by it; that this rule, in the absence of proof to the contrary, continued after the English conquest, and was in force in the colonies in 1733, when Cortlandt street was originally laid out, and that title to the bed of Cortlandt street when it was originally laid and staked out, vested in the public.

"In view of such original public ownership of the street bed, and furthermore, as, under chapter 18 of the Colonial Law of 1691, the public was authorized to acquire a fee in lands to be taken for a public street, the public, especially by virtue of the proceedings taken under the Act of 1784, owned a fee in the widened strip of Cortlandt street.

"But even if plaintiffs owned half the street bed as widened, the city would have the right, under and by virtue of its police powers, to regulate the use of the street for vault purposes and to charge a reasonable fee to cover the cost of supervision, inspection, &c.

"The construction and maintenance of a vault without a permit from the municipal authorities is a public nuisance which may be abated."

Bright Outlook for Nostrand Avenue.

Nostrand avenue is looked upon by many as the seat of a future building campaign under subway stimulus. The section has no rapid transit. Said a Flatbush broker:

"By the new subway route it will be possible to go from the junction of Nostrand and Flatbush avenues in less than one-half the time now taken to any part of Manhattan. The gain is obvious and the building development will be enormous over a great territory. By the surface cars in Flatbush avenue and Nostrand avenue extension, beyond the present terminus of the proposed subway, the entire region to Bergen Beach and Sheepshead Bay will be brought in close touch with the metropolis, and building operations in Westminster Heights, Flatbush Gardens and other recent developments should be greatly stimulated."

The Science of Floor Filling.

Concrete floor wear and how to check it is explained in detail in a little booklet, entitled "Toch's Cement Filler and Cement Floor Paint," just issued by the house of R. I. W. It should be looked over by every architect, builder, owner and, in fact, every person utilizing concrete flooring or walks of any sort. They are sent gratuitously to every person writing for them by Toch Brothers, 320 Fifth avenue.

Following is what the publishers say in introducing the book: "In practice, the constant attribution to which cement floors are subjected causes the surface to crumble away into fine dust—a process technically known as 'dusting'—while changes of temperature, oils, acids, etc., all tend to cause the cement to disintegrate, and in some cases to crumble.

"The remedy is, obviously, to give the floor a protective coating with a suitable material that will fill up the pores, bind the surface so that it cannot 'dust,' and protect it against the action of oil, acids, water, etc.—a coating that can be easily and cheaply renewed, in the event of wear, so that, regardless of purely surface wear, the body of the floor will be practically everlasting.

"Prior to 1905 there was no commercial coating on the market for the protection of Portland cement construction. Our invention was the first in the field, and from that time to this it has not been superseded by anything more effective. This material was patented on February 27, 1906 (U. S. Letters Patent No. 813,841), and is exceptionally rational. The fact that at this time there are a great many infringers tends to indicate that the material has appealed to the general public."

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Realty brokers generally are finding it difficult to interest prospective purchasers, because at this season of the year the sales branch of the market is normally at the lowest ebb. The heated term has rarely ever been conducive to activity, and this year it is no exception to the rule. The average buyer prefers to go out-of-town at the earliest opportunity rather than inspect properties while the temperature rises.

The autumn apartment renting season is not far off, however, and is viewed with optimism by brokers specializing in that department of the business. They are preparing for the inrush of clients who will seek new homes for the winter season. Nearly all the offices are busy making the preliminary arrangements for the handling of an increased business.

There is no doubt that a preference is shown for apartments over private dwellings during the winter season by those who can well afford either. Recent buying and building activity on Park avenue, West End avenue and other parts of the West Side indicate the demand and the trend.

"A Word to the Wise is Sufficient"

—or, at least, it should be to the wise, foresighted builder, architect or realty owner.

Our "Word" is this:—

¶ Don't neglect to install GAS PIPES when you are building. Don't wait until the structure is completed, and you are looking for tenants.

¶ No building is really modern nowadays unless it has an ample supply of gas for every purpose—manufacturing, cooking, lighting, heating, etc.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

A possible improvement in the condition of the auction market may be indicated by the sale of the "Bonavista" apartment house at 362 Riverside drive to the Arrow Realty Co., plaintiff, for $625,000, which is $5,556 below existing encumbrances. The property is subject to a mortgage of $550,000 and other items aggregating $80,556. It is understood that the building will be offered for resale. A. P. W. Kinnan is interested in the purchasing company.

When it is remembered that of late, high-class properties, involving large sums of monies, have been knocked down to parties in interest for considerably less than incumbrances and deficiency judgments obtained, the present sale, while an isolated instance, may be viewed in a favorable light.

Another rare occurrence just contrary to the above case was the sale of a building at foreclosure for a price which left a balance for the defendant. In this instance, the sale of the southwest corner of Willis avenue and 144th street, there was a surplus of $2,000 for the defendant, Ray Solomon. The property was struck down for $9,000 above a mortgage for $16,000, to Isaac E. Brown.

REDUCING COST OF OPERATING LOFTS

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager For The American Real Estate Co.

PRACTICALLY every building manager has a different way of organizing his service forces. Methods vary with the size of the building, the class of tenant and the type of clientele the tenants have. The character of engine-room equipment frequently has a bearing upon the organization of the service squads. But regardless of the type of building or class of tenant, the great objective of the men charged with the responsibility of making commercial building investments pay is efficiency among the employes who daily come in contact with the lease holders.

Of primary importance is the engine-room staff. Here is where the highest skill is expected. It is the engineer who can help make or mar the owner's investment if the man to whom he is directly answerable is not thoroughly versed in matters concerning the power plant. A vengeful engineer could throw an entire lighting system out of service by dropping a few pieces of broken glass into a dynamo in operation or by manipulating some of the parts of the boiler or fire pit. The purchase of a poor oil because of some illicit emolument that induces the sale might also work costly harm to the delicate machinery; and the petty thievery of waste, cloth, or soap powder by the women scrubbers may run up the cost of cleaning considerably in a year.

Several managers were asked how they handled situations like graft, dishonesty, indifference and insolence among their employees and their answers were entirely in harmony: They discharge offenders on the spot. But, in building maintenance, as in other lines of business, the effort is not to hire and discharge as many men as possible, but to perfect a corp of workers possessing every attribute that will tend to please and satisfy tenants by rendering impartial service to all.

Tipping Positively Barred.

Tipping is positively prohibited in buildings of the better class. All managers have come to realize that the acceptance of gratuities by porters, starters, engineers, scrubwomen and other employes ruins them for future efficient service. Some buildings make the penalty of violation of the tipping rule cause for instant discharge.

In some of the largest high-class buildings a sort of clearing house is maintained for all employees. Applications for positions are constantly being made by scrubwomen, porters, elevator runners, engine-room help, painters and other trades. These are filed away for reference by the janitor, superintendent or chief engineer, depending upon who does the employing and who has direct supervision over the help. References are demanded and are thoroughly looked into. Then the employees are given a set of rules and regulations to follow and are shown how things are to be done. They are put on probation and, if they fulfill expectations, are placed on the regular roll. Employment agencies are practically never used. Preference is always given to a friend of a present employee because that makes the favored one doubly anxious to make good and pleases the older employee into the belief that he has some influence with his superior, at least in the eyes of his friend. Employees in buildings who know that there is a waiting list are usually pretty jealous of their jobs.

In the employment of elevator runners men of no previous experience have proved to be the most satisfactory in many buildings. They have nothing to unlearn and they grasp the requirements of the building more thoroughly and more quickly.

Young men of clean-cut appearance are most in demand. The pay is from $10 to $13 a week. Some buildings pay a bonus of a dollar a week extra salary to runners who retain their places more than a year. This reward is offered to discourage shifting of jobs, which for some reason is remarkably prevalent among elevator runners, but even under the bonus system, some buildings are not able to keep more than two-thirds of their runners in the cars more than a year.

Elevator Running Monotonous.

The occupation of running an elevator looks easy to the beginner, but it is monotonous work. In the smaller buildings, say eight and ten-story structures, the elevator runner is required to know most of the tenants by sight within a week and to stop at their floor without having to ask the question of the tenant. In the larger buildings this work is not made a condition of efficiency, but the ability of the man to "hit the floor" each time he stops so as not to require annoying see-sawing up and down in order to bring the floor of his car exactly level with that of the landing counts in his favor in all buildings, and is expected of all good operators.

Here is where the greatest volume of complaint arises in the elevator service. Runners will pass floors some times after a tenant has pressed the signal button. A curt "car full" from the descending car does not help to make the irate tenant more pleasantly minded. A talkative elevator man never is countenanced in a high-class office building and neither is the man, when caught, who does not throw his controller at the top or bottom of his run, but depends upon the safeties somewhere in the inwards of the lifting mechanism to prevent a crash onto the bottom buffer or into the top staging.

Good Operators Valued.

Plunger elevator runners are in a class by themselves as far as running cars are concerned. Put a plunger elevator runner into a traction car and he will have difficulty in "hitting the floor." It is because the "respond" is different. Runners operating open shaft cars are less apt to "float" past signals than runners of enclosed shaft cars, and in the latter case, complaints of insolence are less frequent than where open shafts permit the operator to "talk back" to the tenant who has been left.

Managers frequently are inclined to be considerate of a good elevator runner who has been called upon the tapis on a complaint, because the work they do is extremely monotonous and yet very responsible. Running a ten by eight car up and down steadily at from 200 to 600 feet per minute for ten hours in a darkened shaft, opening and closing two doors at each stop (the inside door now being required by law) and making sure that the passenger is safely on or off before starting and keeping to the schedule maintained by the starter and at the same time watching his signal light and answering all sorts of questions regarding persons employed or who have offices in the building, is anything but an easy job, even at best; but the good of the service demands a civil tongued employee at all times, no matter what the provocation. Elevator runners are also forbidden to accept gratuities. Some building managers prohibit the runner from conversing with passengers or answering questions, the operator in all cases referring the inquirer to the starter.

Efficient Starters Rare.

The starter's duties are almost as numerous as those of the runner, but are more exacting. He must be at all times the courteous guide to the stranger within the gates. He not only knows the names of the tenants, but every one employed in the building. He keeps a sharp lookout for peddlers, or persons having suspicious errands in the building. In certain uptown buildings having a fashionable clientele he even has charge of the cab stand in front of the building; he must keep the elevators running on schedule and helps the postman in re-directing mail. His remuneration runs from $15 to $18 a week. Above all, he must be a person of good appearance, courteous of speech and know his building thoroughly.

Then comes the janitor. If he is a good janitor, with more than average mechanical ability and can handle men he is called a superintendent directly under the engineer who, in turn, is the next official to the manager. The superintendent gets $45 a month, sometimes more, depending upon his capacity, the size of the building and the arrangement of his responsibility. He does the employing of porters, who get from $1.50 to $2 a day. He also employs the scrubwomen who earn about $5 a week.

"Honest Graft."

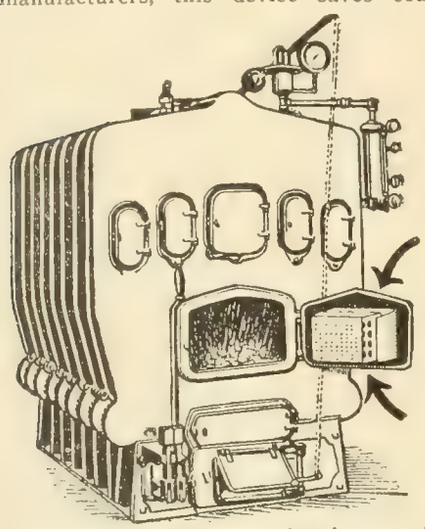
Many porters will abstract soap, while some women will take home soap powder or cloths, unless these commodities are doled out according to the amount required for one night's work. Then there is what is called by superintendents "legitimate or honest graft." Very often tenants will have an old rug, or a waste basket, a chair or some piece of bric-a-brac that they no longer have use for and these fall to the lot of the woman who cleans the office at night. These are all marked and recorded before they pass the janitor or superintendent at night.

Building managers constantly strive to keep the cost of cleaning down to a minimum consistent with efficiency. To do this they reduce it to a square foot basis. If there is any grafting or dishonesty in this department it will soon show up in an additional cost per foot for cleaning. This is checked off at frequent intervals and as soon as a change in figures is noted the leakage is stopped. After a workable cost accounting system has been introduced, whether it be the card index, square footage or unit department plan, these leaks are positively and permanently preventable. Laxity in discipline always results in waste and the more unskilled the labor, the greater is the need for rigid supervision.



In other words, the building manager is a housekeeper on a wholesale plan. He must be a good theoretical mechanic, have some of the qualities of generalship, be a statistician, know something about landlord and tenant law, and be adept in the intricacies of diplomacy. Given these qualities he may be expected to be able successfully to solve the servant problem, at least as far as commercial housekeeping is concerned.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Reduces Fuel Cost.

ONE of the simplest devices for conserving heat in boilers at a moderate first cost and no maintenance charges is being introduced by the Combusto Devices Corporation, 250 West 54th street. The illustration shows the application of the device to a boiler. It is seen attached to the door, where it does not interfere with the operation of the fire in any way and needs practically no attention. According to the manufacturers, this device saves coal cost, it gives perfect combustion to all fuel in the fire backs and saves the large percentage of heat energy in coal lost through the chimney draughts. It follows in its operation the true science of combustibility. It controls the oxygen in the air in such a way as to make combustion of the fuel complete and uniform and therefore eliminates smoke. Bituminous coal can be used in boilers equipped with this device with as much freedom and cleanliness as afforded by the use of anthracite. In this one point alone much saving in fuel can be accomplished.

A New Pump Valve.

FEATURED by an inserted steel disc, to which the rubber is vulcanized by a new process perfected by the Voorhees Rubber Manufacturing Company, of Jersey City, N. J., a new pump valve called Rub Steel is being placed upon the market. By this process the rubber is vulcanized chemically so that it is practically united with the steel, giving the valve the rigidity of the latter and the resilient seating surface of rubber. The same material is being introduced in Flexible Shaft Coupling, in which the same process of vulcanizing the rubber cushion is employed.

Reduces Sign Costs.

CONSUMPTION of electricity in the average illuminated advertising sign involves heavy expense. A sign reading "Lunch" is usually made up of 14-inch leters illuminated by 10-watt Tungsten lamps on each letter or 50 lamps on each side, the total requiring 1,000 watts in use. The economy made possible by the use of what has become to be known as the Multi Power Sign, which requires only 150 watts of electricity to give the service that 1,000 watts formerly did, should appeal to persons contemplating the use of electric night signs.

John M. Williams, Jr., the inventor, of 181 Christopher street, says that another advantage afforded by the use of his system lies in the fact that the small sign lamps are about twice as expensive as the regular 25-watt light used in the signs operated in his system. This is accomplished by the use of one light and a series of reflectors projecting the light outward.

In operation the full power of one lamp is given to many. The illumination is directed upward and the rays are reflected down through the cut letter in the sign, giving the appearance of many lights in illumination, whereas only one is actually used. Furthermore, this is accomplished without the use of transformers which, according to the inventor, is another item of saving peculiar to this system.

Water Heater in Gas Range.

USERS of gas ranges have long sought a compact device for instantaneously heating water by means of the ordinary gas jets affecting the same results as a water back in a coal stove. The illustration shows hot water being delivered from a gas range made by the Gas Stove Instant Water Heater Company, of Baltimore, Md. It is designed to be placed on the top burners of a gas range or hot plate and to utilize the heat ordinarily lost by radiation in cooking.

The essential feature of the invention is the triangular shape of the metal water chamber, which is made to fit about the gas jets and does not interfere with the direct flame therefrom in heating the bottom of the cooking vessel, but serves to intensify the heat. The excess heat instead of being wasted by radiation into the air from the periphery of the bottom of the cooking vessel is absorbed by the metal water chamber. The flame from the jets does not impinge on the V-shaped sides of the triangle, but rises to the bottom of the cooking utensil through slots that form the openings between the wings of the cross, and two long slots crossing at right-angles in the center.

The apparatus is made to operate by the lower V-shaped sides absorbing heat that would otherwise be wasted, accumlating in the inverted V-shaped spaces forming part of the periphery of the cross and terminating at the upper surface in slots for the flame to pass through. The water flowing through the metal chamber is thus heated and passes out of the appliance, rising to the tank reservoir in the same manner as from a waterback in a coal range. The result is that while the family meal is being cooked an ample supply of hot water is created and stored in the tank reservoir for washing dishes and other purposes.

By the use of a small pilot-light of blue flame made to impinge on one of the arms or wings of the heater, and after the main supply of gas has been cut off, the water circulation is maintained and renewed so that the supply of hot water will be sufficiently large to provide for the ordinary needs of the home as long as the pilot-light is kept burning.

The inlet for cold and the outlet for hot water is just far enough below the top surface of the triangle to permit of a small pocket or reservoir of superheated water, maintained at the boiling point, so that the top side of the chambered triangle becomes in itself a radiating surface to assist in supplying heat for cooking under the full flow of the lighted burner, and for keeping foodstuffs warm when only the pilot-light is kept going. This small sub-reservoir of superheated water does not interfere with the free flow of the water, being heated from the cold water inlet to the water outlet of the device.

The illustration shows the hot water pouring from the service tap into a pan on the floor. The intensity of the heated water is amply shown by the blur in the plate caused by the steam rising.

Handy Bracket for Electric Light.

OCCASIONS frequently arise where it is desirable to attach an electric light globe to a piece of furniture, a shelf or wall, so as to obtain more direct illumination on work. Such a device is being introduced by the Reliable Electric Company, of Chicago, which is in the form of an arm consisting of a spring clip and clamp for clipping the socket of an incandescene lamp and attaching it to some convenient object such as the top of a desk, shelf or where it may be used for a machine shop or automobile and repair work. It can be attached to any piece of machinery or object worked upon. It is also available for use in attaching a reading lamp to a bed post or chair. The accompanying illustration shows the arm itself as attached for a desk light.

Water Softening Device.

BUILDING managers, who have been having trouble with scaling of boilers may be interested to know that a compact and comparatively inexpensive device is being put upon the market by the Permutit Company, of 30 East 42d street, which softens water so that no matter how hard it may be it may be safely and economically used in boilers. Hard water denotes the presence of lime, which, when injected into the hot boiler, results in the precipitation of this foreign substance which producing a cake around the inside of the tubes, preventing quick heating.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Notable Improvement for Grand Boulevard—The First Eleven Story House—Current Operations are Generally of Good Quality.

HIGHER than any apartment house yet erected in the Bronx is the still incomplete Mount Hope Court on a commanding three-sided site at the intersection of the Grand Boulevard and Concourse and Tremont avenue. Standing on the crown of the hill, it is visible at a long distance. Its eleven stories have foundations of solid rock, and its construction is fireproof. It is a house which plainly has been built for investment, not for speculation. The materials and workmanship, the plumbing, lighting and heating, the decoration and conveniences, show plainly that it was built for investment and not for speculation purposes. Charles Schaefer Jr., of the Tremont Architectural Company, is the architect and engineer for A. F. Schwarzler, the owner and builder.

This operation marks a departure in construction in the Bronx, for besides being the tallest house in the Bronx it measures up closely to the best Manhattan standard. Contractors wish it could be said that there are many such to be erected in the borough, as work continues to be below normal. Owners and brokers do not complain of this, as it strengthens the market for what they have to sell and rent. Builders ascribe the dullness to the hardness of the money market. Some builders there are who can always command building money, and on the whole there is of course considerable work going on in the borough. Some of the jobs planned since the first of the year are here named.

M. Zipkes, architect, 220 Fifth avenue, prepared the plans for the two six-story apartments being erected at the northwest corner of 170th street and Wilkins avenue for Louis E. Kleban of 1116 Jackson avenue, owner. The cost is estimated at about $200,000.

STATE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Steady Improvement Reported in Building Trades—Very Busy in the Suburbs.

The number of men under employment in the building trades of Greater New York and Long Island has decidedly increased during the last two months. "We are going along very nicely now," said Secretary Tompkins, of the United Board of Business Agents, referring to the unions affiliated there, which include all the principal trade unions in the district, except the bricklayers and a few independent bodies.

"In Queens, Nassau and Suffolk counties the trades which can be used there are all very busy. Here in Manhattan a good amount of work is being started, including some very large jobs, but these will not require inside workers until the late fall or winter. We look for good employment during the winter."

Many mechanics from Manhattan are finding work in Brooklyn, the Jerseys and the suburbs generally. Drillers, excavators and rockmen are coming in for considerable work. Twelve thousand men are now employed in the subways, and soon there will be several thousand more. As there are a hundred thousand men in the building trades, and thousands more in allied lines, their steady employment will mean a great buying power at work for general prosperity before many months pass.

New Day Nursery.

The Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, occupying the block west of Park avenue, between 83d and 84th street, is soon to have a day nursery building at 240-244 East 84th street, which will be most complete in interior details and one of the finest buildings of its character in New York. It will be strictly fireproof, six stories in height, with a front of tapestry brick and cast granite trimmings. The stairs and halls will be of marble and caen stone, while all floors throughout will be of marble, tile or rubber tiling; and the walls will be wainscoted with faience tile or salt glazed brick with caen stone above. Many of the ceilings are vaulted and richly decorated. The principal rooms will have mantels of faience tile with open hearth. All windows will be of drawn or hollow copper and wall trim of pressed steel. Hardware throughout is to be of white metal. To complete the details, the building will have a thermostatic heating system. The ground floor will contain the general kitchen, laundry, isolation room and receiving room. On the first floor will be the dining-room, sacristy and chapel. The second floor will contain the library, nursery and diet kitchen. The third floor will be devoted to the kindergarten room and bed rooms. On the fourth floor will be a large play-room and bedrooms and the roof will be a playground with tile floor and having parapet walls of salt glazed brick. The architect is W. Weissenberger, Jr., and the consulting engineer, Thomas E. Murray. The general contract has been awarded to The Murphy Construction Company, 50 Church street, N. Y. C. # BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

DISTRIBUTORS MAKING PRICE INDUCEMENTS TO PROSPECTIVE CONSTRUCTORS TO ENCOURAGE ACTION BEFORE PRICES ADVANCE

Quotations Not So Low in a Decade—Mill Supplies Shrinking—Linseed Again Advances.

CURRENT prices on building materials are such as to indicate a disposition on the part of distributors to make every concession possible that will induce prospective builders to go ahead with plans at once. There is an increasing firmness in the supply department in other parts of the country where, outside of the metropolitan district, the building statistics show a volume of construction comparable with the high water mark of $376,507,817 in plan filings made up to this time last year. Here, however, the tendency is below last year's record, and it is with the purpose of counteracting this lethargy that current price lists are being made elastic.

There are only two notable exceptions to this rule; steel and linseed oil. In the last two weeks there has been a sharp upturn in the latter, resulting in a two-cent raise in current quotations to 56 and 57 cents. Dealers say this advance was due to falling off in supply and consequent higher seed prices at Duluth, rather than to an increase in demand. So close had consumers been buying prior to the advance, however, that the demand increased as soon as it was evident that the uplift was not due to manipulation with the result that even further advances are expected.

As the week closed the bottom level of 1.26c was dropped from structural steel quotations, leaving the list bare at the single figure of 1.31c. At the same time Raritan river common brick shifted its bottom level to $5.50 per M. wholesale, while Hudson common continued to rule uneasily at $5.25 to $5.75. Hardware and glass schedules also were nervous under improved undertone on Friday.

This is exactly what will occur in other building commodities, say local distributors, hence their interest in trying to make prospective builders see the wisdom of coming into the market now. Mill supplies are much lower than they were a month ago. At that time there was a tendency to make sacrifices in order to move materials. In some cases distributors took advantage of this condition and bought heavily. They knew that dealers were carrying very light stocks, and when the building movement actually did begin to develop they anticipated that the hand-to-mouth policy of buying would give way to a policy of stacking.

They looked for increased activity in June, but while other parts of the country showed improvement, the metropolitan district actually fell behind as far as its ratio of new building operations were concerned. Plans were filed, but for some reason a large percentage of building in New Jersey and New York failed to develop activity. Money was not as freely forthcoming here as it was in the West, apparently, and to help to overcome this difficulty prices were permitted to remain without change from the levels ruling in May and June.

Builders in some parts of Queens complain of the same sluggishness, as do those in New Jersey. They aver that money is not hard to get on good investment propositions, but that investors are undecided about whether the time is propitious to improve their properties. In Newark, for instance, the prospective change in the routing of the surface car system incidental to the erection of the Public Service Terminal is causing owners in the business section to hold tight to their property as it is pending closer surveys of realty values that will be possible a little later. In Queens there is marked hesitancy regarding building operations in accord with the effect that the new subway service will have there. Brooklyn owners are holding back for other possible values while Manhattan and the Bronx are undergoing another period of readjustment in trade districts that bids defiance to realty experts to solve at the moment.

Practically no new building projects are being lined up on the streets through which the new transit lines are being routed in any section of the city, while Jersey City, Newark and Hoboken, according to realty experts, are following a policy of watchful waiting to see the next trend of commerce and industry. Once these two factors are determined, the housing problem is resolved into a mere mechanical problem of putting up buildings enough to accommodate the new population.

At the same time builders say that it will be a long time before materials will be procurable at prices as low as those now prevailing. They predict that another thirty days will not lapse before the lead of linseed oil is followed by other commodities.

Building plan filings in the five boroughs as reported up to noon yesterday with comparisons with the filings of a week ago, follow:

| | Week Ending June 17. | | June 24. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | No. | Value. | No. | Value. |

| Brooklyn | 103 | 883,320 | 76 | 582,535 |

IRON AND STEEL.

Slight Strengthening in Structural Material—Low Level Off.

PRICES moved up slightly in the structural steel market Thursday. This was the first real evidence, outside of the upward shift in linseed oil, of a definite improvement in the basic material market and reflects the stiffness incidental to the stronger demand for fall deliveries.

The Carnegie Steel Company notified its customers of an advance of a dollar a ton on bars, plates and shapes. The minimum price now being 1.15c base, Pittsburgh. At tidewater city, the quotations on structural material are 1.31c flat, 1.26c level being eliminated. It is said that the largest steel companies are not sold very far ahead at the low prices heretofore prevailing and that manufacturers now show a tendency to make even a stronker effort to secure higher prices before long time contracts are freely taken.

This action immediately follows a sharp improvement in structural steel orders developing in the east for both plain and fabricated material. Orders for numerous loft and apartment buildings in this city have been taken within the last ten days, including 1,100 tons for an apartment building at 86th street and West End avenue, which went to the Hay Foundry and Iron Company, 800 tons for the McMorrow Realty Company, which went to George A. Just; 550 tons for the Mordecai Realty Company at 63 West 36th street, and 350 tons for an apartment at 42 East 62d street, which went to the Hinkle Iron Works.

The American Steel & Wire Company reports specifications against contracts booked since July 1 averaging about 5,400 tons a day. This is considered fairly satisfactory for July. New business, however, has averaged scarcely 4,000 tons a day, but the sales department predicts higher prices for wire products. The charges manufacturers are still reluctant to write wire contracts at prices at which they were taking business for shipment over the next thirty days.

Strike Talk Unconfirmed.

Reports were current this week that a large body of insite steel and iron workers were considering a strike for higher wages. It was also rumored that the strike would become effective next week. The demands were said to include a five-hour work day on Saturdays, nine hours a day five days a week, a minimum scale of $20 a week for finishers and $16 for helpers and $12 for apprentices, union agreement and sanitary shops. This does not include the structural iron workers, bridgemen or erectors, according to information received from various headquarters, and neither could confirmation be obtained from other sources as to the identity of the union affected.

LINSEED OIL.

Another Advance in Price of One Cent per Gallon.

REFLECTING in some degree the general lowering of supply of all building materials at source of production the second advance of one cent a gallon in linseed oil in this market this week was significant. While the second jump was primarily due to the scarcity of seed at Duluth the sudden buying movement at the consuming end had a great deal to do with it.

For almost a year linseed oil prices have been held at low levels. The cause was the same as that pervading all other departments of building materials and supplies. Dealers were content, in the face of a more or less desultory buying movement, to make their requisitions on the jobbing trade on a hand-to-mouth policy. The result was that when the market, despite warnings given in these columns some three weeks ago, actually moved up, and they were convinced that it was not merely another piece of manipulation, their stocks were short and, fearing further advances, they rushed in to buy. So great became this demand that cards were imediately moved up another cent

COMMON BRICK.

Raritan Moves Up on Bottom Range—To Prosecute Thieves.

HUDSON River common brick developed a slight gain in unloading operations this week, although the wholesale outward movement was less than arrivals by eleven bargeloads or approximately 3,850,000 brick. Raritan river brick interests eliminated the low level of $5.25 and refused to sell below the $5.50 minimum on list. The demand for yard brick in Newark was reported to be nominal on actual movement, but strengthening in undertone on later delivery.

Further investigation into the operations of the two men under arrest in Hoboken charged with, in one case, purloining brick from barges consigned by the Sayre & Fisher Company to the North Hudson Supply Company, and in the other case with receiving the stolen material, developed the fact that some of this brick has found its way into second-hand dealers' hands in this city when ready sales could not be made by the padrones, or "shoestring" contractors, to builders. It is the intention of those interested in the arrests reported in the Record and Guide last week to vigorously prosecute the men now in custody.

"This is a case," said a prominent brick man, "in which the honor of every brick manufacturer is at stake. It would not surprise me at all if facts showed that a large part of the present weakness in the brick market were directly due to lack of confidence in honest counting of brick.

"There is no doubt that many brick manufacturers do make an effort to give honest count, but when brick is constantly being missed from full cargoes by architects and contractors, and complaint to the distributor fails to bring permanent relief, it seems to me a specified instead. At any rate, it will do no matter of small wonder that other materials are harm to ask brick manufacturers and distributors these questions:

"'Is it not high time to counteract this distrust among brick specifiers?' 'Is it not the easiest way to put a check on employes in charge of transportation, even if to do so involves a little extra expense for honest inspectors?'"

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, July 23, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

NEW YORK, AUGUST 1, 1914

CONSOLIDATION OF CITY DEPARTMENTS

It Is Believed To Be Impending—Intimated by Counselor Elkus of the State Factory Investigating Commission—The Revision of the Labor Law Not To Be Extensive.

DISAPPOINTMENT is being expressed in business circles where reports have been heard that the revision of the Labor Law, and especially the factory regulations contained therein, may not be as radical as the public has hoped for and expected.

During the week intimations have come from semi-official sources that as a result of hearings held here and elsewhere the committee is of the opinion that only a few changes of importance are needed in the law. It is understood that Counselor Elkus contends that the only principal changes should be, first, an enlargement of the powers of the Industrial Board, and second, a better definition for the term "factory" as used in the law.

It is presumed that a statement as to the nature of the amendments to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature will be made in time for ample consideration by the interests affected. Regarding a related subject, the over-inspection of buildings, Mr. Elkus made the following statement to a representative of the Merchants' Association:

"We have found that one of the chief causes of complaint is the multiplicity of inspections. There are now five separate building departments in New York City, one for each Borough. Each has a different Superintendent at the head and a different set of employes, making possible five different ways of interpreting the law. The Bureau of Fire Prevention has to do with matters relating to the fire hazard in both old and new buildings. The Health Department has jurisdiction over buildings for the most part in so far as they are used as bakeries or food product manufactories. The Tenement House Department has jurisdiction over tenements. The Department of Electricity, Gas and Water Supply has jurisdiction over the installation of electrical apparatus and equipment, and the Police Department issues licenses after boiler inspection. Finally, the License Bureau must inspect and license theatres, moving picture establishments and so forth.

A New Building Department Proposed.

"The Police Department, the Fire Department, the Law Department, and the Tenement House Department have jurisdiction over the entire city. The Commission is considering whether it would not be advisable to consolidate practically all the various jurisdictions over buildings, so far as they relate to construction and alterations, in a Building Department for the entire city. The powers of the State Labor Department with relation to buildings would be transferred to the new department, together with those of the Fire Prevention Bureau. It is a question how far the jurisdiction of the Health Department and the Tenement Department should be merged in the new department.

"The advantage of this plan is that it would bring about uniform interpretation and enforcement of the law, reduce the number of inspections, and undoubtedly save a large sum of money for the city.

COMMISSIONER ADAMSON.

Advantages of Consolidation.

"The commission is now working on several alternative plans along the same lines. These will be submitted for criticism and suggestion to all persons interested at an early date.

"The commission failed to find substantiation of the complaint that the various departments are issuing conflicting orders, and it also failed to discover any case in which a manufacturer intends to leave the State because of the enforcement of the factory laws."

From the foregoing it is inferred that the committee still holds to the opinion that public dissatisfaction is not so much directed against the Labor Law itself as against the methods pursued in administering it, and that irrespective of what the city authorities are doing to co-ordinate inspection work, the State Factory Investigating Commission is planning radical changes in local organizations in expectation, doubtless, of assent and cooperation from the city authorities.

Statement From the Fire Commissioner.

Commissioner Adamson of the Fire Department when asked as to the progress being made by the Mayor's committee in reducing the multiplicity of inspections, said to a representative of the Record and Guide:

"I am sure that a way will be found to prevent the constant annoyance of property owners by repetition of inspections and possibly by the conflict of orders or the issuance of new orders due to a change of mind on the part of officials. Many conferences have been held in the last few months to consider this subject, and I consider that great progress has been made. I think the Fire Department was the first department to take up this matter, though not the first to say anything about it publicly. We happen to be in a position where the complaints of property owners first make themselves heard, and I think the Fire Department was the first to make a practical move to reduce the cause for complaint.

"The first step that was taken was the formation of a committee of technical experts, due to the efforts of Mr. F. J. T. Stewart, of the Board of Fire Underwriters, and President Robert D. Kohn of the New York Chapter of Architects. This committee was made up of representatives of a number of outside organizations and representatives of the City Departments, and its object was to formulate and adopt standards which might be used by all of the city departments.

The Mayor's Committee.

"The next step, I believe, was the appointment by the Mayor of a committee of city department heads, of which I was chairman, to consider the general subject of co-operation between departments with a view to reducing duplication of inspections and any conflict of orders, if such existed. This committee found that the first logical step was to adopt harmonious standards which would be used by every department, and thus avoid the possibility of a department changing its mind and ordering one thing today and another thing tomorrow, and also avoid the possibility of one department ordering something in conflict with the requirements of another department. It was therefore decided that we should first proceed to formulate a set of standards which would cover every condition in the building.

"As the work of the outside committee, to which I have referred, was already well advanced in doing this work, it was decided that the Mayor's committee co-operate with it, as this department and several others had been doing since last January, and endeavor to push its work to a conclusion as rapidly as possible. This is now being done, and I feel sure that the work of this committee, after it has been considered and adopted by the various departments, will go a long ways in reducing cause for complaint. Every department affected is represented on this committee—in most cases by technical men.

"There have also been a number of conferences called by Mr. Abram I. Elkus, of the State Factory Commission, and these have been extremely helpful. All of the departments interested were represented at Mr. Elkus' conferences, there was a full discussion of every phase of the matter, and an effort was made to arrive at a plan of co-operation whereby any duplication or conflict of departments would be prevented.

"I think that these discussions and interchanges of views did a great deal to clear the air and to impress upon all of the department heads the importance of exercising care not to harrass property owners.

Practical Progress.

"I think the Fire Department has made practical progress in this matter. For example, we have arranged with the Labor Department that when it sends us complaints of violations which come under the jurisdiction of this department, that it shall give the exact floor of the building where this violation exists and the name of the person responsible. Upon the receipt of this, instead of sending around an inspector, this department communicates by letter with the person responsible, calling his attention to the violation, requests him to remove it, and states that within ten days or two weeks an inspector will be sent around to see whether the violation has been corrected. By this plan we estimate that our inspections are reduced by the number of 5,000 every year, as that is about the number of complaints of this kind that we receive.

Sympathy for Property Owners.

"I sympathize fully with the feeling of the property owners in this matter. I have felt all along that jurisdiction over safety in buildings is distributed over too many departments. I believe there should only be two departments dealing in this matter, namely, the Fire Department, which should have jurisdiction over every matter effecting fire prevention, no matter in what class of building, and, secondly, the Health Department, which should have jurisdiction over the entire subject of ventilation, sanitation and health regulations generally in a building.

"I do not mean by this that I would take away from the Labor Department its just control. This control, however, should be regulated by a legislative and ordinance-making body and not by an administrative body. In other words, the Industrial Board should be continued with power to make regulations for all factories and factory buildings, but those regulations should be enforced by the local authorities which I have named. The Fire Department should enforce the Industrial regulations in respect to fire prevention matters, and the Health Department in relation to health matters.

Housekeeping Inspections.

"It seems to me the thought of creating a fire prevention bureau separate from the uniformed force, with its great experience and the opportunity which it offers for co-operation, is absurd to the last degree. How the uniformed force can co-operate with the Fire Prevention Bureau in real fire prevention is being demonstrated now in this department. The uniformed force is now making all of the 'housekeeping' inspections. There have been over 500,000 of these so far. One of the results is that for the last six weeks we have been having a reduction in fires of between 75 and 80 per week.

"These laws should be enforced with sanity, intelligence and judgment. If the heads of departments show a disposition to treat the property owners in this spirit, one source of irritation will be removed. The lot of the real estate owner in New York is anything but a happy one just now, and this fact should at all times be borne in mind by officials who have the power to issue orders affecting property. It certainly is always borne in mind in this department, and I trust that no property owner will have substantial reasons for complaint of any lack of consideration or just treatment from the Fire Department."

ETHICAL CODE OF NATIONAL REALTY BOARDS

The Golden Rule in Business—Increasing Appreciation of High Ideals—Standards Adopted at Pittsburgh Convention

APPLICATION of the Golden Rule to the real estate business was urged upon the members of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges by the Committee on Code and Ethics at the Pittsburgh convention in a report which was adopted without discussion or objection. The basis of the report had been under consideration at previous conventions and its general purport was well understood. The chairman of the committee, Henry W. Armstrong of Pittsburgh, who presented the report, in some preliminary remarks said the members of the committee desired to express their appreciation of the honor which the president had conferred upon them in this appointment, indicating as it has his belief that they each as individuals appreciate the beauty and utility of ethical standards of living and that without incongruity the same may be adopted and practiced by those engaged in the real estate business. Parts of the code follow:

Duties of the Broker and Client.

Should the location of a property offered a broker to sell or rent be such that he cannot render prompt and efficient service, he should either immediately enlist the co-operation of a fellow broker more favorably situated to accomplish prompt results or recommend that the owner place the property in the hands of such broker.

The broker should, if possible, promptly and carefully inspect and appraise such properties as he accepts for rent or sale, that he may be prepared intelligently and truthfully to advise the owner regarding the actual value of each and as to the prospects for securing the price desired; also that by viewing its peculiar advantages, if any, he may be stimulated to earnest effort to accomplish a sale, as well as by reason of the familiarity with the property thus acquired, to avoid misrepresentation.

It is also a duty of the agent or broker to suggest to owners in an appropriate manner, as circumstances appear to warrant, the making of such repairs or improvements to buildings or premises which after deliberate consideration he believes will make the property more attractive to prospective tenants or purchasers and yield increased returns, justifying the new expenditures.

The broker may not safely and usually cannot honorably speculate for his own account with the property of his client. As a general rule he would do best to make sales directly for the account of the owner, deducting only the usual commission. However, in some localities, especially in the Far West, in the marketing of large tracts of land, it is customary for owners to make a net price to brokers, choosing that plan as being mutually advantageous.

It is doubtless a duty of the broker strongly to encourage his client to express in the deed the real consideration for which a sale is made, for the sake of the moral effect thereof upon all concerned, to aid in preventing fraudulent practices as well as for the sake of the great advantage which should accrue to property holders in general, by reason of the improved opportunities afforded assessors to arrive at a fair and equitable basis for taxation. In rare cases circumstances may appear to justify the entering of a merely nominal consideration, but the latter custom is never open to the charge of intended misrepresentation.

Duties of an Agent.

The duty of the agent, to those owners whose property he holds in charge for rental purposes, requires him to spare no effort to secure reliable tenants for vacant properties as promptly as possible, agree to or recommend to the owner the making of such repairs as would be equally fair to owner and tenant, and make contracts therefor, with at least as careful regard to economy as if the property were his own. He should make prompt collections and remittances at regular intervals and ever keep in mind that the exercise of patience and courtesy, while discussing with the tenants affairs relating to the property, will not only increase his own popularity, but will usually enhance the interests of the owner.

The agent should guard the reputation of both the client and his property by declining under any and all circumstances to rent the premises to persons desiring to occupy the same for immoral purposes and should any owner wish him to do otherwise, it is his duty to the owner, as well as to himself, to decline to accede to those wishes even at the risk of the property being withdrawn from his agency.

Should Give Good Advice or None.

When appealed to by a client for advice, the agent or broker should never turn the applicant away with ill-considered suggestions, merely to save himself time and trouble. He should either decline to advise or take time to familiarize himself with all the essential details of the case, so that he may intelligently guide the applicant to his advantage rather than to his detriment. He should especially avoid giving advice upon legal points with which he is not thoroughly familiar by reason of practical experience, but should instead earnestly recommend that his client promptly consult a lawyer regarding such matters.

Duties of Broker to Buyers.

An invitation to deal with him, extended by the broker to the public, through any sort of medium, should be a guarantee to anyone who responds thereto that he will be dealt with in an honorable, straightforward manner, and no duties or responsibilities which the broker has assumed toward the owner by reason of the acceptance of his property for sale, can justify the broker in dealing with the former in any other manner, as "duties never conflict."

Duties of Brokers to Each Other.

In his attitude toward his fellow brokers each broker should endeavor to the best of his ability to at all times follow the Golden Rule—"As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." By the use of this quick acting and infallibly accurate computing scale, the ethical quality of any contemplated action may be immediately determined, but should complete success in this endeavor not immediately crown his meritorious efforts, compliance with the following suggestions will in the meanwhile be helpful and indicate good progress.

A broker worthy of respect and confidence will never indulge in unfair criticisms of or untruthful statements regarding his fellow broker, either for the purpose of securing a personal advantage, at the expense of his fellow broker's reputation, through resentment for past injuries, either real or fancied, or for any other reason. The man who maligns his brother brings the whole family, including himself, into disrepute.

Brokers should recommend and earnestly encourage the granting of exclusive contracts by owners to brokers who make a specialty of the vicinity in which the property offered is located, because of the obvious and decided advantages accruing therefrom to all concerned.

Should a broker desire to offer a property for which he knows a fellow broker holds the exclusive agency, either under a written contract or otherwise, he should solicit permission to do so from the latter only and not directly from the owner, and the exclusive agent should at all times be willing to accept a satisfactory buyer or tenant from the former, provided he has not already in prospect a buyer or tenant, as well as to agree to an equitable division of the commission with the broker whose customer he accepts.

BREWERY COLONY IN KIPS BAY DISTRICT

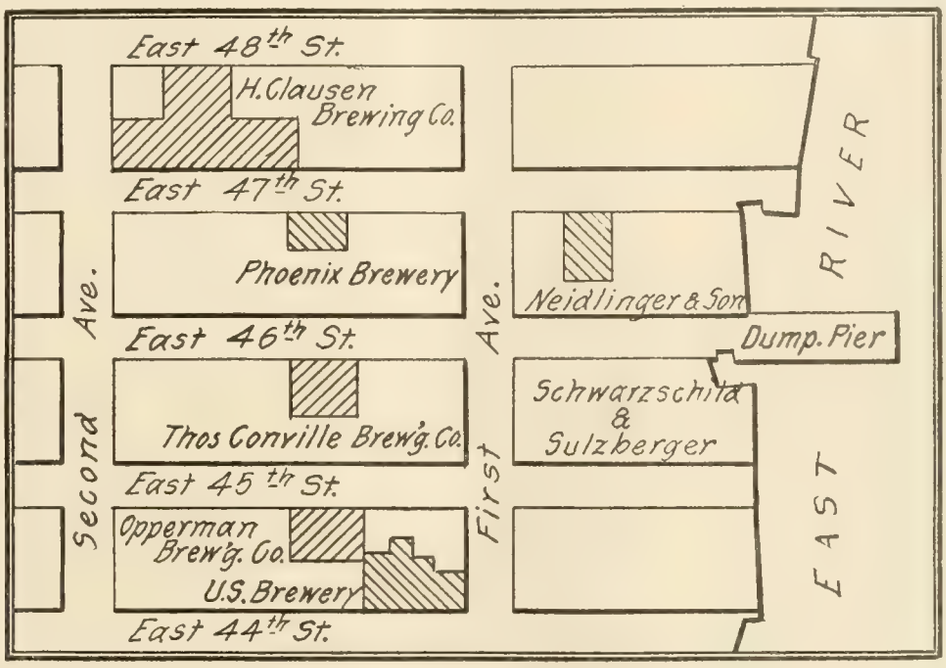
Acquisition of Large Waterfront Plot by the Schaefer Brewing Company Adds Another Concern to the Old-Established Center

FOR more than half a century there has been a brewery colony in the Kips Bay section of the city, east of Third avenue, between 40th and 60th streets. That it is still desirable for such purposes is evident, by the fact that the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company, one of the earliest of the brewer settlers in the district, intends to erect a large plant along the East River, from 51st to 52d streets, having sold its Park avenue property to St. Bartholomew's Church.

There are within the radius of one mile probably more breweries than in any other section of the city. Farther north, large companies, including those of George Ehret, Jacob Ruppert and George Ringler, own brewery plants, but their number and collective size is not as large as that of the group in Kips Bay district.

The tendency of allied businesses to create centers of their own has been a noteworthy characteristic of New York's commercial development, and the brewing industry is no exception to this rule. The reasons for the selection of this particular section of the city are not difficult to determine. The entire river-front, or in the vicinity to the river-front, is most desirable for the brewing business, because the salt water is needed for the ice machines and for the condensers used in the manufacture of beer. Another advantage is the shorter haul for coal and other supplies from the barges. If the concerns were located some distance from the water-front it would involve not only additional expense but also delay in delivery.

The Central Park Brewing Company occupies the major portion of the block bounded by the East River, Avenue A, 56th and 57th streets. Peter Doelger's buildings take up practically the entire block bounded by Avenue A, First avenue 55th and 56th streets. Peter Doelger died in December, 1912, the owner of nearly three hundred parcels of well located real estate.



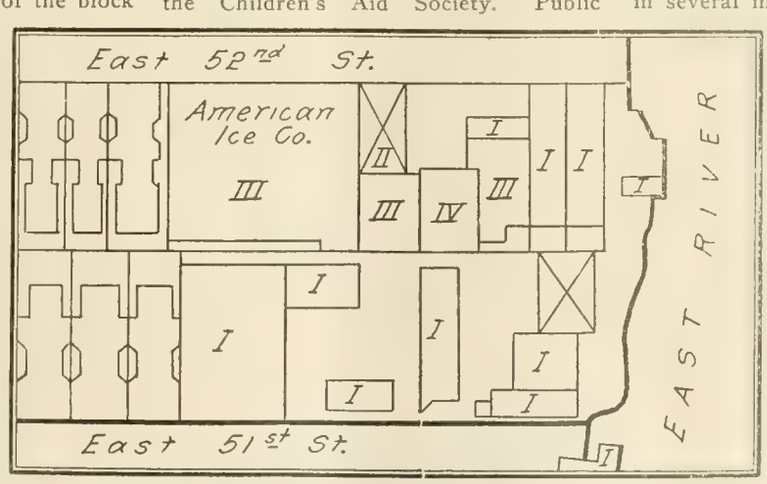
The Consumers' Brewing Company of New York is situated on the west side of Avenue A, from 55th to 54th streets; and further west on the same block most of the property is occupied by the Henry Elias Brewing Company. Nearer Third avenue are the plants of the Jetter Brewing Company, and of Joseph Doelger's Sons. The latter firm has been established in business on that block since 1846. Just east is the large establishment of Jacob Hoffmann.

Farther south, at Second avenue and 47th street, are the Henry Clausen Brewing Company and the Phoenix Brewing holdings. In the next block is located the Opperman Brewing Company and just south the United States Brewing Company. With this number of similar manufacturing concerns grouped together, it was inevitable that kindred business would also become established in the immediate vicinity, such as the ice plants, malt and other supply companies.

Typical of all water-front sections, the Kips Bay district houses a number of factories, coal pockets, stone yards, etc., with no particular class of industry conspicuous, except the breweries. There are to be found also rows of tenements and in direct contrast, here and there, a row of pretty brownstone residences. With this mixture of business and residential properties Kips Bay presents a number of interesting studies. For its social and moral uplift there was recently organized the Kips Bay Neighborhood Association, Charles C. Burlingham, president.

Other similar social service associations include the Kips Bay Branch of the Charity Organization Society and the Children's Aid Society. Public schools include No. 27, in East 41st street, No. 73, in East 46th street, No. 135, in East 51st street, and No. 59, in East 57th street.

For the benefit of the residential sections of the district religious and educational institutions are not lacking. One of the most imposing ecclesiastical edifices in this city, the Roman Catholic Church of St. John the Evangelist, occupies with its school, the entire block front on the west side of First avenue, from 55th to 56th street. Further west is the German Evangelist Church and in East 57th street, near First avenue, is a Jewish synagogue. Other religious institutions include the St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church, at the corner of Second avenue and 47th street, and the Beekman Hill Church, in East 50th street. In East 44th street, near Third avenue, and extending through to 43d street, is the Roman Catholic Church and school of St. Agnes.



MAP OF PART OF KIPS BAY SECTION.

Here, in 1663, lay the farm of Jacobus Kip, then secretary of the province, comprising about 150 acres of meadow, woodland and stream. Fourteen years later Sir Edmund Andros granted to David Duffor a tract of nearly 60 acres on the shore of the East River from 41st street to 48th street. On this farm, in addition to other buildings, was erected a grist mill, the first industrial development in what was destined to be a center of a brewing and other manufacturing district.

Just west of First avenue, between 51st and 52nd streets, stood the famous mansion and country seat of William Beekman. In the green house of this dwelling Nathan Hale was confined, while the British officers deliberated on his fate. It served also during a period of the Revolutionary War as the headquarters of the English commanding generals, Howe and Clinton.

Hemmed in among the tenements, and in several instances outbuildings of the breweries, may be found some of the old Dutch Colonial residences, typical of the period. They may still be recognized in their strange surroundings by their solid masonry and quaint old fashioned construction. They are the last of the landmarks of Dutch occupancy of Kips Bay, long before the farm lands were invaded by the incoming tide of immigration. This brought with it industrial concerns and congested home communities. What stands out most conspicuously, however, in the Kips Bay district and makes it an interesting unit in the chain of New York industrial trade centers, is the brewery colony which is evidently there to stay, while other business centers shift constantly. The district is one, however, which will not be affected directly by the projected rapid transit lines.

PROVISION FOR FUTURE RAPID TRANSIT

Advantages and Disadvantages of Subways, Elevated Structures and Open Cut Systems Discussed at National Conference on City Planning

By JOHN VIPOND DAVIES

THE development of all big cities of the world has been dependent on transportation. The early cities were with hardly any exception built on waterways where the water furnished the means of transportation, and even in the development of New York City, the original city plan was laid out with the east-and-west streets running between the North (Hudson) River and the East River at frequent intervals, because the transportation was by those rivers, and the increased facilities for intercommunication from side to side were considered of superior importance to the longitudinal movement which it was then believed would always remain upon the waters of the North River and the East River.

The steam railroad brings the city into touch with the outer world and yet at the same time it can, and must continue to, handle a very large share of what is usually described as rapid transit business.

Functions of Surface Systems.

The function of the street surface railroad is that of distribution within limited areas of the population, and as the population spreads and the distance and time for distribution become greater, it is obvious that a point is reached in the evolution of a city when some means of quicker and more rapid handling of passenger service becomes necessary.

Generally speaking, it can be assumed that a properly built railroad track, whether on surface right of way or viaduct or steel structure, or in a subway, is capable of doing only the same passenger business, or, in other words, can serve to operate the same number of persons per hour; and, further, that the operation and maintenance, including depreciation and all other charges, will, if a road is doing a reasonably full business, use up about 45 per cent. of its gross income, the remaining 55 per cent. being available to pay the interest charges on the capital invested. It, therefore, can readily be seen how important it is with light traffic to keep the cost of construction and equipment low, considering that, for illustration, the Interborough Rapid Transit Subway in New York, consisting in part of subway and in part of elevated structure, must haul more than 2,000,000 pay passengers per annum per mile of single track to meet fixed charges for structure and equipment; or, further, that a road which would cost, for structure alone without equipment, say $500,000 per mile of double track, would have to haul at a five-cent fare 910,000 pay passengers to pay interest charges on its expenditures for that structure and, if equipment were included, would have to haul probably 1,400,000 pay passengers per annum.

Statistics Given.

It will help materially in this consideration to have clearly stated the approximate relative costs of producing different structures, and the table published in the adjoining column presents in comprehensive detail what may be considered as the average cost for the general construction of structures and the installation of structural equipment, but without power or rolling stock. The figures do not include the value of property for rights of way or easement and are given on the basis of constructing a double track railroad in each case, although reduced to the cost per mile of single track.

In the matter of speed of operation of improvements under varying conditions, it is well to bear in mind that for street surface railroads in congested portions of great cities the average speed does not exceed 8 miles per hour. In the less dense districts of a city this speed is increased to 11 or 12 miles per hour, but the average speed for street trolley railroads in cities will not exceed 9½ miles an hour. Similar electric trolley service in outlying districts on private right of way will average somewhere between 12 and 15 miles per hour. Local service on elevated railroads or subways or in open cut, with stations approximately 1,200 feet apart, will operate at an average speed of about 15 miles per hour. Express service on subway or elevated railroads or in open cut, with express stops spaced about 2 miles apart, will operate at an average speed of about 25 miles per hour, while steam railroads operating rapid transit suburban service, with stops at longer intervals, have an average operating speed of 30 to 35 miles an hour, depending on the district served and the frequency of stops. The spacing of stations on any type of rapid transit railroad is an important factor as affecting train operation and development of the district.

| Trolley Railroad in suburban district, either on public roads or private right of way where no paving is required; complete with overhead trolley construction, track bonded; all in operating condition | $25,000 |
| Trolley Railroad on city streets, including asphalt or granite block pavement for width of tracks and 2 feet outside of tracks; complete with overhead trolley construction, track bonded; all in operating condition | 42,000 |
| Underground Trolley Railroad in congested streets of a city, including necessary pavements, conduits, etc., and with reasonable allowance for changes of subsurface improvements: | |
| New York | 126,000 |
| Washington | 48,500 |
| Elevated Railroad of a type and for the loading permissible to meet requirements of Public Service Commission of New York; complete with stations, contact rail, ties and track; averages | 125,000 |
| Railroad in open cut similar to Sea Beach Railroad of Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company in Brooklyn, where work is executed with steam shovel and with concrete walls; averaging cost of bridges and stations as part of the cost; complete with contact rail, ties and track; averages | 225,000 |
| Railroad on masonry viaduct filled in with stone ballast, similar to structure now being erected on Queens Boulevard from Queensboro Bridge to Greenpoint, on Long Island, New York; complete with stations, contact rail, ties and track; averages | 330,000 |
| Subway such as the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn, where work is unaffected by subsurface improvements, where the digging is easy and can be done with steam shovel and under typical ideal conditions; complete with structural and track equipment; averages | 402,000 |
| Subway such as the Broadway Subway now being constructed in New York City, where the work is very difficult and involves extreme interference with subsurface improvements of all kinds, the support of street surface, trolley car tracks, underground trolley construction, etc.; complete with structural and track equipment; averages | 1,190,000 |
| Iron lined Tube Tunnels under waterways or below water level; complete with structural equipment and track; averages | 2,700,000 |

The increase in travel in relation to the population of cities, as illustrated by New York, indicates the growing necessity for constantly increasing facilities by all classes of transportation service. In New York City in 1860, by all means of public conveyance, there were only 43 rides a head of population per annum. In 1870 this figure had increased to 100; in 1880, to 150; in 1890, to 230; in 1900, to 247; in 1910, to 322; and the most recent figures indicate about 360 rides a head of population per annum during the last year.

The various types of structures which have been developed for rapid transit service comprise:

Types Enumerated.

1. Tube Tunnels.—In cities where the underlying soil is sand, clay, silt or other water-bearing material, below tidal or river levels, or under conditions where construction must be carried on without breaking the surface of streets, tubular tunnels, usually carrying a single track within each tube, are built by use of a shield and the lining constructed of cast iron or steel segmental plates. This type is used also for passing under rivers or waterways where no other type of structure is equally advantageous.

2. Subways.—By subway is meant construction in the open of a railway below surface grade and the structure covered over so as to restore intact a continuous street surface. According to the difficulties of construction, this type may be more or less expensive; but even in the cheapest form, with ideal conditions, the cost of producing such structures is so great as to warrant its being used only in districts where the population has reached a condition of practical saturation, or in commercial districts where the population has to enter and leave in large numbers.

3. Open cut.—The open cut method of construction of rapid transit facilities necessitates gravity retaining walls and construction at a depth which will permit highways to be abridged over such open cut. This method has an advantage over a subway in the matter of first cost due to the fact that usually steam shovels may be used.

4. Viaducts.—The development of viaducts with masonry and solid fills was the earliest type of construction of steam railroads through European cities. As applied to a street, it is very questionable whether it is a desirable type, as the masonry and piers have of necessity to be massive and obstructive.

Above Ground Systems.

5. Elevated Railroads.—The elevated railroad, constructed of steel, serves a function which it would be difficult to replace. The first cost of such a structure is reasonable and its application to surface conditions is remarkably easy. A solid track floor of reinforced concrete increases somewhat the cost, but reduces the noise, and probably reduces somewhat the cost of maintenance. To the traveler this mode of transportation is particularly desirable since he gets the full benefit of light and air while traveling. The great function served by the elevated structure is to enable a railroad to be constructed which does not interfere with the use of the street surface and provides rapid transit operation at the smallest cost.

The introduction in the last 15 years of electric power for propulsion has advanced greatly the rapidity of such developments. New York started in 1875, when its population, now included within the territory of the Greater City, was 1,700,000, to build elevated railroads, operated with steam locomotives, by private capital, and for years they were a financial failure. Brooklyn followed suit at a later date, about 1885, and managed to survive for several lean years until the territory served grew.

HOW LAND IS DEVELOPED

William E. Harmon Gives Some Inside Information—Regarding Mortgages and Release Payments — Street Improvements.

William E. Harmon gave the real estate convention at Pittsburgh some advice regarding suburban land development. He said, first, that he rarely paid over forty per cent. cash for his raw acreage. Press reports quote him as follows:

"We rarely, if ever, pay over 40 per cent. cash," added Mr. Harmon. "We like to buy our properties from 30 to 33 per cent. cash—balance secured by a purchase money mortgage running five or six years—preferably six, with interest at a rate not exceeding 5 per cent. The mortgage should contain a release clause providing for a distribution by the mortgagee of the amount of the mortgage with not more than 20 per cent. additional over the plat, fixing prices on each lot in accordance therewith, which price shall constitute the price at which said lot is released, together with rights-of-way over all streets and alleys.

"Sometimes an owner will demand his release payments in sums of from $1,000 to $5,000 at a time, but if so we always require that if we are obliged to pay larger sums than our immediate release requirements, and are not prepared to ask for releases up to the amount of our payment, that we can call for releases subsequently until they aggregate the amount of money we have paid. I suppose more investments have been wiped out through inadequate or improper release clauses than would be represented by all the capital stock and deposits of all the banks of Pittsburgh, and it is so easy to do the thing properly in the first place that there is no excuse for neglect of this most essential matter.

"In addition to the amount of cash necessary to purchase the property, a developer should have available an amount approximately equal to this amount for the purpose of preliminary expenses such as improvements, advertising, construction of houses, etc. If a sale goes right this may be more money than you need, but if it should go wrong, you will need every cent of it. To illustrate: Assuming a piece of property cost $100,000 and a first payment was $40,000, we would in this instance set aside $30,000 for our preliminary work; if we paid $30,000 cash, we would set aside from $30,000 to $33,000 for preliminary work, for in the latter case the release requirements would be heavier than in the other case cited."

Street Improvements.

"With regard to street improvements, my point of view is to make them as good as possible; that is to say, as good as your clientele will stand. In Chicago it costs us from $250 to $300 to put the improvements in on every thirty feet of ground, but in Chicago it pays to do this. On the other hand, in an industrial city like Pittsburgh people would not pay for such costly improvements on the class of property we handle, and one-half the above amount is probably about as much as is practical to spend. The point to be kept in mind is to give the people all that they will pay for; in this way you are creating something of a permanent character, and the benefit comes to you as well as to your customer. Besides sewers, gas, water, electric lights, curbs, macadam or asphalting and sidewalks and parking places, floral and shrubbery embellishments, which represents what might be termed perfect improvements, we have added what we have termed a maintenance fund amounting to $1 to $1.50 per front foot, which is paid in by the purchaser during the term of his installments, and which is used for keeping the property in an attractive, park-like condition, removing snow, etc.

"In the Russell Sage Foundation Homes Company, with which I have been connected in an advisory capacity since its beginning, we have a permanent maintenance fund in which we followed the suggestions of Edward Broughton, who made such a successful development in Baltimore of the property called Roland Park.

"Now, I could spend a good deal of time going into the cost of street improvements, but I don't think that is necessary here. Moving dirt costs from seventeen to twenty-five cents per yard, and moving excavation and stone $12.50 a yard, and granolithic curb and gutter cost from fifty to sixty cents a foot, and sidewalks from eight to fifteen cents a square foot; macadam, $1.25 a square yard, and asphalt, $2.50. These figures are not strictly accurate and vary in different places.

"It might be said of the form of maintenance fund established in the Sage Foundation operation that in its essence it becomes a permanent charge against the property, and is somewhat hard to establish, because it is in perpetuity, but when it can be put through the permanent effect upon the property is undoubtedly worth the individual contribution of the lot owner, and in the long run the property would show the effect in its enhancement in value."

—Mount Morris Park was bought for $26,000 and is now worth $7,500,000.

—New York City is the owner of 5,500 parcels of real estate, valued by the assessors at $1,300,000,000.

QUEENSBORO BRIDGE CHANGES

New Plans for Rapid Transit Tracks and Carriage Drives.

The plans of the Bridge Department for the reconstruction of the Queensboro Bridge, to adapt it to the operation of the rapid transit trains of the Dual Subway System, are favored by the members of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens. A delegation headed by Robert W. Higbie, president, and John Adikes, chairman of the Transit Committee of the Chamber, called upon Bridge Commissioner Kracke this week and made a thorough study of the new plans that have been devised to carry both the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Subway trains and Interborough Elevated trains across the bridge, without reducing the total roadway capacity. The plan provides for two rapid transit tracks on the north side of the lower level, and two rapid transit tracks on the south side of the upper level; and two 26 ft. roadways for vehicles, one on the north side of the upper level, and one on the south side of the lower level.

After inspecting the plans those present at the conference express themselves as greatly pleased with the efficient solution, which is the result of the efforts of Bridge Commissioner F. J. H. Kracke, Chief Engineer A. L. Bowman and Traffic Engineer C. M. Ingersoll.

The Queens Chamber of Commerce took the position months ago that there should be no delay in the early reconstruction of the bridge in order that rapid transit might be inaugurated as soon as possible on those extensions into Queens, which connect with the station on the Bridge Plaza, Long Island City, and at the same time urged the Bridge Department and the Public Service Commission to take into consideration the serious matter of the proposed reduction in width of the present roadway by the operation of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit trains. It was also urged that additional roadway space be provided, if possible, on some other part of the bridge to compensate for any reduction of the present roadway on the lower level. The plans as proposed, will not only insure the early inauguration of rapid transit across Queensboro Bridge, but will give a total width of 52 feet for vehicles.

NEW WASHINGTON HEIGHTS APARTMENTS

George & Edward Blum, Architects.

162D STREET AND FT WASHINGTON AVENUE.

A NEW high-class elevator apartment is nearing completion at the southwest corner of Fort Washington avenue and 162d street by the Friedman Construction Company, owners and builders. The plans were prepared by George and Edward Blum, architects, 505 Fifth avenue. The building is six stories in height and covers a plot 140 x 161 x 102 x 100. The facades are of Indiana limestone and tapestry brick, with a decorative treatment of terra cotta. Balconies and fire escapes are of ornamental iron and tile. Forty-two families will be housed in this building in suites ranging from four to eight rooms each with one or two baths. The building, which represents an expenditure of over $200,000, will be ready for occupancy early in September, 1914.

Too many To Let signs in a neighborhood do it no good in public estimation, and real estate boards are advising moderation. A multiplicity of signs exaggerate conditions which may be far from being as bad as they seem.

There is plenty of gold for export to Europe, the U. S. Treasury officers say, and it will come back, with more besides, in payment for American manufactures and food supplies that will be needed in case of a general war.

August Belmont has had added to the list of his great public services the completion of the Cape Cod Canal, celebrated this week. May a good net income from tolls reward his public-spirited investment.

One of the sad things connected with city life is the absence of playgrounds for boys and girls. It constitutes one of the main reasons why families move to neighboring villages. One of the best things the Real Estate Board can do is to lead the movement to prevail on the owners of vacant lots to let the children have them for playgrounds.

In compliance with the request of property owners along William street, Manhattan, and with an opinion of the Appellate Division, the Public Service Commission has agreed to draw up the liability clause in this contract in a different manner than usual. Heretofore the contractor for any section of work assumes all liability resulting from such work. The work in William street, however, will be through very low and partly made ground, and for that reason the property owners wish the city to be primarily responsible for any damage that may result to their buildings. The contract will accordingly be drawn in such a manner that the contractor will still be responsible, but he will have the backing of the city.

The Lower West Side.

Mr. Cyrus C. Miller is right in comparing the West Side of Manhattan from Chambers street to 23rd street to a withered limb. A limb which has been allowed to become withered, because it has been deprived of the blood necessary to its vigorous development. As a consequence of the natural advantages of its situation the Lower West Side of Manhattan should have been the particularly industrial part of the city and should by this time have been covered with warehouses, factories and business offices. It is the part of Manhattan which is most accessible to communication with the rest of the country and with the world, but it has never been allowed to profit by its natural advantages because in every respect it has been denied any sufficient machinery with which to turn its advantages to good account.

In the first place, its street system was laid out apparently for the purpose of isolating it. It was provided with no thoroughfare connecting it with the Upper West Side and with the central business ridge of the island. It did not even have the benefit of a straight avenue connecting Greenwich Village with upper Broadway. It has been equally ill-provided with means of transit. The surface cars which ran through that part of the city provide a most inferior means of communication with the other parts. Some districts did indeed profit from the Ninth and Sixth avenue elevated roads, but not for long. When the first subway was built the West Side was left entirely out of account, and the consequence was the cream of the wholesale trade was diverted to the line of Fourth avenue on the East Side. Finally, what was worst of all, no attempt has been made to improve the means of handling the freight which needed to be shipped into the West Side and shipped out of it.

In this respect nothing has been done during the last forty-five years except to build improved docks. The freight has to be hauled in and out the city in trucks and barges. The New York Central has tracks running down the West Side; but they are all of comparatively small use compared to the advantage which would be derived from a modern freight railway, which was properly connected with warehouses and docks. The largest city in the United States has treated this phase of its business machinery in the spirit and with the neglect comparable to that of a backward Southern village, and it is no wonder that the community is not now deriving anything like the economic benefit from the West Side of Manhattan which it ought to derive. A better illustration could not be asked of the close relation which exists between private parties in business and a responsible public policy of business encouragement. If New York showed anything like the business public spirit that the German cities have developed, the lower West Side of Manhattan would now be crowded with factories and warehouses, and its working population would be living remote from their work in New Jersey or the Bronx.

A Revival on the Way.

The revival in business which was predicted in the Record and Guide some weeks ago seems to be slowly but surely putting in its appearance. There are evidences of an increased volume of business in many different parts of the country, and this increasing activity has been taking place without the assistance of any of those stimulating causes upon which business men have apparently been counting. Congress has not adjourned, and has gone ahead with the legislation in relation to trusts, which were supposed to be so dangerous to business prosperity. The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in regard to the increase of freight rates has not at this writing been formally announced, but its general nature has been an open secret, and it is known that the railroads will get only a part of what they have demanded.

The effects of this decision are already fully discounted, and it will not result in the paralysis of business in which it was expected to result. The more cheerful feeling is due in part to the prospect of unprecedently large crops, which are likely to be sold at high prices, and impart to a general revival of confidence. Business men are recovering from their scare and are more ready than they were to invest capital in new enterprises or in adding to existing plants. Of course the recovery is only just beginning and it is being expressed more in a change of disposition and spirit than in the announcement of matured plans; but unless the increase in confidence receives a setback it will undoubtedly bear substantial fruit during the coming fall and winter. What the consequences of the wars breaking out or impending in Europe at this writing may be to the business of this country cannot now be foretold.

At this moment Europe is on the brink of a war involving the great powers. Whether the crisis will eventuate in anything more than a localized attempt on the part of Austria to punish Servia while the other powers keep off, or whether all the powers will be brought into the conflict by their alliances and ententes, is a question yet unanswered. As the answer may come before these lines reach the reader, this is not a time for prophecy. But it can be said that the American government is fortunate in having no entangling alliances and also fortunate to be in a sound financial condition.

A Confusion of Laws.

The fire-hazard in some factories has been made the reason for much legislation in the last few years. Private societies and governmental commissions have been chartered to formulate and promote restrictive laws and regulations. Men and women of more or less wealth and leisure, with a desire to be of service to their fellow men, have found opportunities. Others have found remunerative positions as investigators, inspectors and technical experts. The legislation has emanated both from the city and the State, and new powers have been conferred and new authorities ordained in order to enforce it. A large mass of labor legislation has come from the labors and reports of the State Factory Investigating Commission which was appointed in 1911 to investigate conditions of manufacturing in loft buildings in first and second class cites, and which has since had its powers enlarged and its tenure prolonged. The body of laws enacted this year under the designation of New York State Labor Laws fills more than sixty pages of fine type in a special bulletin issued under the direction of the Commissioner of Labor. A mere index of brief titles of labor bills introduced fills fourteen other pages. There seems to be a new fancy for welfare work that finds expression in legislative bills to regulate the construction, maintenance and taxation of buildings. No doubt it is only a passing emotion, but the temporary consequences have been serious to real estate interests, besides confusion and conflict in administrative circles.

Laws passed in 1913 were repealed this year, and now the whole code of labor laws is being revised. According to a former statue, one of the two required means of exit from a factory building might be an outside fire-escape if, in the opinion of the Industrial Board, safety was not thereby endangered. An amendment made this year, however, provides in effect that whereas formerly the permission of the Industrial Board was to be obtained before an outside fire-escape could be used, such fire-escapes may hereafter be used until the board affirmatively "finds" them unsafe. (The use of outside fire-escapes in buildings over five stories high remains contingent upon the approval of the board.) At first it was required that stairways in factory buildings more than four stories high should be enclosed with fire-resisting material, but the law did not define the material. The latest amendment applies this requirement only to buildings more than five-stories high, but the regulations for fire-resisting materials have not yet been promulgated. A third modification made by the Legislature this year is that windows leading to fire-escapes may be provided with frames and sash covered with metal instead of being made of metal, and the definition of fireproof windows has been changed so as to permit frames and sash covered with metal instead of being made of metal. The duty of providing proper ventilation and also dressing and emergency rooms for women has been laid upon the person operating the factory and lifted from the owner.

While these amendments have been favorable to the landlords, still remaining are many requirements which if not unjust are crude and absurd. It is highly desirable that they be revised, a relief which the Governor has promised and the Factory Commission has undertaken. But more than this is justly due. An opportunity is presented of once for all, settling the conflict between city and State authority, and of reducing the fundamentals of the law to the simplest possible terms. A State Labor Law should not be loaded with a helter skelter collection of construction details. Leave the details for departmental rules and regulations; and where cities are already equipped with a full quota of inspection bureaus, leave the enforcement of the law and regulations to the local authorities, whose work in turn should be reduced, co-ordinated and synchronized, much after the manner that Superintendent Miller has already suggested to the State authorities. If these reforms should follow the present confusion, real estate would be measurably compensated for a long series of unjust impositions.

The Single Tax in Other Lands.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

There was introduced in the Legislature at the last session an act, "to amend the Greater New York charter, by providing for a difference in the rate of taxation on the value of land wholly unimproved, and the rate on the difference between the value of the land with its improvements and the value of the land wholly unimproved."

This act provides only for a shifting of the rate from the improved property to that of the unimproved property by easy stages covering a period of five years, so that at the end of five years, unimproved property will bear 50 per cent. of a higher rate than real estate wholly improved. The change is to be gradual so as to almost be imperceptible, and in that way the change can be brought about without any sudden revolution or shock. The owners of real estate and the institutions lending money on bond and mortgage can gradually adjust themselves to new conditions. It must be borne in mind that it was not proposed in this act to change the values of the unimproved and improved property for the purposes of taxation; it was only the rate that is to be adjusted.

In other countries the taxes imposed on the owners of real estate property is more onerous than here. Lloyd-George's budget of 1909 imposed four different taxes upon land, the first and most important of which was the so-called increment value duty. This imposed a tax of 20 per cent. upon the land increment arising after 1909, payable by the owner when land is sold, leased for more than fourteen years, or transferred at death.

In Germany the first of the recent experiments in taxing the increment of land was made in the model German colony of Kiao-Chau, established in China in 1897. The land and tax ordinance of 1898 imposed a tax of 33⅓ per cent. of any increment of value accruing thereafter to private purchasers of lands acquired from the government, a tax of 6 per cent. on the value of land, exclusive of improvements, and a tax on land sales at auction. In 1904-5 Frankfort and Cologne took the lead in this reform. By 1910 the increment tax was in operation in 457 cities and towns in Germany, yielding a substantial revenue, the rates of taxation being as high as 25 per cent.

In 1911 the German Empire introduced an imperial tax upon the unearned increment. This law imposes a progressive tax, increasing according to the percentage which the increment bears to the original value of the land. The rate is 10 per cent. of the increment when that amounts to 10 per cent. of the original value, and increases one per cent. for each additional 20 per cent. of increment until it reaches 19 per cent. on increments ranging from 170 per cent. to 190 per cent. From that point it increases one per cent. for every additional 10 per cent. of increment, until it reaches 30 per cent. on all increments of 290 per cent. and over, with provision for certain deductions. The imperial tax is intended to unify the taxation of the unearned increment throughout the empire and will replace the local increment taxes. To compensate the cities for the revenue thus lost, the law provides that 40 per cent. of the product of the imperial increment tax shall be apportioned to the local governments, while the States are given 10 per cent. and the empire retains 50 per cent. Authority is granted, however, to impose additional rates for local purposes, so that some measure of local option is retained.

In Australia, Queensland has already adopted the exemption of all improvements, and New South Wales, South Australia and every other State, as well as the federal government, are moving steadily in the same direction.

New Zealand has had a graduated state land tax since 1891, which has already to a great extent accomplished its purpose of breaking up large estates. In 1896 local bodies were empowered to levy their rates on the unimproved value of land. By 1909 not less than 85 districts had adopted the method with satisfactory results.

Of the nine Canadian provinces, three have taken important steps toward the single tax. In British Columbia, provincial revenue is still derived from poll, property, and income taxes, but since 1891 municipalities have been permitted to exempt improvements from taxation in part or in whole. Since 1892, indeed, municipalities have not been permitted to assess improvements at more than 50 per cent. of their actual value. Under the authority thus granted all the important urban and many rural municipalities are now exempt entirely, thus raising practically all local revenue from land. The Government, through its Finance Minister, Hon. Price Ellison, now formally announces its purpose to adopt the single tax for all provincial revenues. He says, "Our aim is to reach a point where direct taxation will be eliminated and our revenues will be obtained from the natural resources of the province. This I regard as a sound policy."

In Ontario, 300 municipalities have petitioned for power to reduce taxes on improvements. By twenty-three to one, the Toronto City Council, in January, 1913, submitted to the citizens the question of exempting buildings, whereupon the citizens voted in the affirmative, four to one.

Land owners are adopting a false policy in proclaiming that their property is being reduced in value and confiscated and that it will bring a revolution in real estate through destroying mortgage values. By adopting this false cry they are depreciating the value of their own property and destroying the real estate market. So it is they and not the advocates of the milder form in taxation as represented in the Herrick-Schaap bill that will be responsible for depreciation in values. Their policy should be to meet the advocates in this reform half way and to agree on a policy of reform in taxation that will benefit the community as a whole.

B. C. BROWNFILLE.

Growing Cost of Government.

The cost of municipal government has grown rapidly since the simple methods of the fathers have been made to give way to the so-called modern systems. The comparatively few regulations which the old charter builders thought sufficient have been expanded into elaborate codes, small committees have grown into big departments, and petty offices into high-salaried commissionerships. In most cities the increase in taxation has been out of all proportion to growth of population.

A report just made public by the United States Census Bureau deals with the per capita expenditures of municipalities for other than public service enterprises, and it covers the operations of 195 cities having a population of 30,000 and over in the year 1912. The total per capita payments of these cities for expenses of the kind indicated averaged $17.34 in that year, an amount representing an advance of $4.22, or 33.2 per cent., as compared with the year 1902; that is, just a decade before, when the expenditure per head of population was $13.02.

The per capita payment for fire department service for the 195 cities increased from $1.30 in 1902 to $1.62 in 1912. The per capita cost of police protection increased from $1.84 in 1902 to $2.04 in 1912. The expense for education shows the largest advance for the decade, rising from $3.61 in 1902 to $5.02 in 1912.

Strength of American Finances.

It would be idle to attempt an estimate of how far foreign liquidation of American stocks might go in the event of a great European conflict, says the Wall Street Journal. The amount of foreign investment in American securities is enormous, and if investors were obliged to liquidate on a large scale, the consequences would be difficult to foretell. American securities can now be liquidated more readily than those of other countries and that is one of the chief reasons for the recent heavy selling here. The situation, so far as our stocks are concerned, will end, however, like a run on a bank which promptly meets all demands and demonstrates its strength and solvency. In that case there is a rush of depositors to put back their money; and when New York has successfully withstood the present wave of selling, there will be a return rush of foreign buyers for the securities of the country in which liquidation can be accomplished under any circumstances.

Ticket Booths and Choppers.

The method of control for all principal stations on the new subway lines to be operated by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation will be by ticket booths and choppers instead of turnstiles, but at stations where traffic is light, turnstiles may be established and continued until the commission decides that conditions require the substitution of ticket booths and choppers. This means that ticket booths and choppers will be used at all stations on the new lines in Manhattan, except the stations in the Centre Street Loop and on the Nassau street extension of such loop. The question as to this extension is left open until the plans shall have been completed. Ticket booths and choppers will be used at all stations on the new lines in Queens Borough; on the Montague street-Flatbush avenue connection in Brooklyn; on the main line of the Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn, including the extension to 86th street; at all stations on the New Utrecht avenue and Culver line elevated roads in Brooklyn north of and including 62nd street and Avenue I; also at the 18th avenue and Coney Island stations on the New Utrecht avenue line, and at the Coney Island station on the Culver line. The engineers were instructed to design all other stations so that ticket booths and choppers may be installed when the commission desires without inconvenience or much expense, but that in the meantime turnstiles may be used if the company so desires. The use of turnstiles will be permitted on all lines built and owned by the operating company, subject to the right of the commission to order a change when conditions demand it. The commission also, directed its chief engineer to provide for the immediate construction of stairways at both ends of the stations on the New Utrecht avenue line.

LIVERPOOL INTERESTED.

In Mr. Lustgarten's Story About New York Real Estate.

The Liverpool (Eng.) Daily Post and Mercury contains an interview with Mr. William Lustgarten, of the real estate firm of Wm. Lustgarten & Co., of New York, and secretary of the Tax Law Revision Committee. The report says:

"Mr. Lustgarten, who is over for a holiday in company with several friends, told how the old tenement houses of New York are being remodelled and modernized as a result of the partial adoption of the principle of the taxation of land value. In New York the system proposed in Mr. Lloyd George's present Budget, of separating land and buildings for the purpose of assessing and rating both occupied and vacant land at its fair value, has been in operation since 1903, and the economic consequences have been important and far-reaching. The effect of the rate on unused building lots has been to make it imperative for the holders to bring them into use. The building of new houses has been greatly stimulated, and to these new tenements have been attracted large numbers of tenants of the old consumption-breeding rookeries.

Renovation of Old Houses.

"Firms like that of Mr. Lustgarten then step in, buy the old property at the price of the land, entirely renew the interiors and the roofs, equip the houses in the most modern up-to-date style, including improved sanitary arrangements, the conversion of cellar kitchens into storerooms, and the provision of white enamel sinks, stationary slate washtubs, etc. This is precisely the kind of scheme suggested recently by our own Special Committee on Leaseholds in regard to the old Corporation property in the Abercromby district, and the advocates of that plan will be encouraged by the success of the venture in New York. 'Not only,' said Mr. Lustgarten, 'are the renovated tenements quickly let, but there is always a waiting list of tenants ready for them, and it is certain that the health of the city will be greatly improved.'

"Mr. Lustgarten expressed himself as perfectly satisfied that the taxation of land values in New York has been of enormous public benefit, and he is a strong advocate of raising the tax to 100 cents on the dollar, while realizing that the profits of land speculators, like himself, would then disappear. An annual tax of 1.85 per cent. on the selling or capital value, equal to 37½ on the annual value, makes it impossible, he said, to hold land out of use. Many wealthy families have had to partition their large estates on Manhattan Island because to hold them out of use was too expensive a luxury.

"As an instance he mentioned a corner site on 11th avenue, owned by the Astor estate. It had never been built upon since the Creation, but its selling value was assessed for the purpose of taxation at $37,500, though measuring only 75 feet by 125 feet. At public auction Mr. Lustgarten bought the plot for $46,000, and in thirty days he sold it again at a profit of $5,000, and it is now occupied by a big warehouse.

To Abolish Slums.

"During his visit to this country Mr. Lustgarten has seen a good deal of London, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Liverpool, and noted the congestion to be found at the heart of each city, while within a ten-minutes' ride by train there are thousands of acres of open country. Many of the old houses, he said, ought to have been scrapped generations ago. 'In Edinburgh I saw tenement buildings five stories high, which are said to be 600 years old. Why, in New York we have a sinking fund for every building, and every thirty years practically everything is scrapped and rebuilt out of the amortisement fund. If you had a tax on the land values you would have to do the same, and slum property would be demolished and rebuilt without any cost to the city. The quickest, cheapest and most equitable way of clearing your slums is just to put a tax on your land values.'

"Mr. Lustgarten added that he looks forward to a big building boom in New York next year. By then the effects of the slump of 1907 would have passed away, and the opening of the Panama Canal would cheapen shipments to the West and reduce the railway freight rates."

How He Grew Rich.

The late Charles Edgar Appleby, who accumulated a fortune estimated to exceed $25,000,000 in real estate, once gave expression to these views:

"If I had spent ten per cent. a year more between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one I would not have been worth ten per cent. of what I have. That ten per cent. made me forehanded.

"I have always advised young men that the way to become wealthy is to save. Saving and careful investment will make any man well off.

"Real estate stays in a family longer than money. For that reason I believe in investing in land.

"It has been my rule to keep the value of my property in land, not in building. Land can't wear out, can't deteriorate, doesn't demand insurance and doesn't need repairs. The value of land constantly advances. That of buildings constantly deteriorates. I never mortgage my property. I prefer to lease my land to others to build upon, or to lease it for purposes not requiring big buildings. That is what I call scientific investment."

Objecting to a Tenement Law.

Brooklyn real estate interests are complaining considerably on account of the Tenement House law prohibiting the erection of a tenement or apartment house containing a room which has less than 70 square feet of floor space or less than 7 feet wide. Under this law it is unlawful to construct a room 6 feet 10 inches by 11 feet, but it is lawful to construct a room 7 by 10 feet, which is considerably smaller. The former room would contain 74 and a fraction feet while the latter would contain but 70 square feet.

To the inexperienced person this might seem like a harmless little feature of our modern method of enacting laws without due consideration to the unlooked-for effect they might have, but it is a very serious matter, especially in Brooklyn, says the Brooklyn Times. Brooklyn feels the burden of this law more than its sister boroughs, because of the fact that here the normal width of lots is only 20 feet. There are thousands of these lots in Brooklyn for which three-family houses would be a most logical improvement, but they are practically unusable and unsalable because of the expense and difficulty of complying with this joker law.

The present law forces the construction of large tenements. To some persons this might seem to have been an object in passing the law, but it creates congested conditions, and from the standpoint of good government and good morals, the fewer families under one roof the better.

One prominent real estate man, in commenting on this law said: "The destruction of property values cannot be continued much longer with impunity. The city will soon find that notwithstanding its new subways, its borrowing capacity will disappear and many public improvements will be delayed for years.

Proposed New Highway.

Because of the large amount of vehicular traffic over the Long Beach road a movement is on foot to have the thoroughfare widened to 100 feet and rebuilt. There is also a sentiment for an entirely new highway from a point between Freeport and Rockville Centre southwest to Long Beach. The present Long Beach road is fifty feet in width and extends from the Merrick road at Rockville Centre south through Oceanside to the Beach. As many as 1,500 automobiles an hour pass over it during certain hours on Sundays.

One-half million dollars is the estimated cost of building a new highway, while the cost of rebuilding and widening Long Beach road would be considerably less. A new highway to Long Beach would pass through Oceanside the same as Long Beach road does and that section is now undergoing extensive development and improvement. The Long Island Railroad has built a new station at Oceanside.

Nassau County, however, does not want to pay all of the cost of these proposed highway improvements because automobilists from everywhere in and adjacent to New York City travel to the ocean front of the county. It will urge the state to make the improvement.

New School at Douglaston.

Douglaston is to have a new modern school house to be built on the site of the present one, which is not large enough to accommodate the increasing number of pupils in the fast growing section. The plans, specifications and appropriation have already passed the New York City Board of Education and the Board of Estimate. In October the bids for construction will be accepted and the work of demolishing the old building and erecting the new one will begin. Owing to the style of architecture in Douglaston Park, which adjoins Alley Park and the school house tract, the plans have been drawn with special care as to design and modern conveniences. The specifications call for a modern brick building and the appropriation and estimated cost is $129,000.

Douglaston Park and contiguous communities have developed so rapidly during the last few years that it has become imperative for the city officials to meet the need of larger and better educational facilities. The entire market of North Shore real estate has shown encouraging results in spite of the so-called business oppression.

The Committee Controls the Board.

The Board of Estimate as now organized gives the City Plan Committee a majority vote in the Board. This may have some advantages, though they are not apparent. Questions of the greatest importance, calling for the expenditure of large sums, will be submitted to this committee. A unanimous report means the committee can always carry its plans through the Board of Estimate. In this connection the Bulletin of the Real Estate Board says:

"It seems to be a grave mistake that any sub-commmittee of the Board of Estimate should control a majority vote in the Board."

Steinway Tunnel Progress.

The Steinway tunnel will be completed by the first of the year, and ready for a shuttle service from Long Island City to 42d street and Lexington avenue, Manhattan, according to Engineer Shailler, who has charge of the work now being done in the tubes. With the exception of the laying of the tracks, the work of that part of the tubes under the river is about finished and the men are now working on the land ends of the tunnel, both in Long Island City and Manhattan.

Money Well Spent

Every day in Brooklyn some already-built apartment house is made modern and convenient by the installation of electric light.

The owners of these buildings realize that the public is educated to the many advantages of electric service. They are quick to grasp not only the fact that vacant apartments rent quicker when electrically equipped, but also that tenants are willing to pay more for an electric-lighted apartment than for any other.

The money spent, then, to make the necessary installation is really not an expense, but an investment that pays large returns.
